Poison Search Narrows

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The death toll of Tijuana's mass poisoning mounted today as scientists said a pesticide found in bread may be the killer.

The pesticide, parathion, was blamed tentatively by seven U.S. chemists working at Sacramento, Calif. A spokesman said enough poison was found to kill children but not adults.

The dead— whose numbers as given by officials varied from 14 to 34— were almost all children.

The report of 34 dead came late Tuesday from Pedro Mireles Malpica, district federal attorney general. In Mexico City, the attorney general's office said it had learned officially of 18 dead.

In addition, about 250 others were being treated at hospitals and clinics.

In the grieving border city, stricken since Sunday, crying parents carried their young dead to clinics in their arms.

"The people, they keep coming. We do all we can, but there are too many," said Dr. Jorge Salas of the Red Cross clinic.

The disclosure that parathion had been discovered in bread brought release of 19 dairy officials and street milk vendors held for questioning since Monday. A ban on milk was lifted, and residents of Tijuana stopped boiling their drinking water.

Fred Roth, chief of the residual pesticide laboratory of California's Department of Agriculture, said he and six other chemists found parathion in the stomachs of two of the stricken children.

An amount of parathion smaller than an aspirin tablet would kill an average sized man, Roth said. It is widely used in agriculture, particularly on vegetable crops.

It was theorized that the liquid pesticide spilled into flour that was later made into bread in Tijuana.

Police Stop Two Incidents At Carnival

A heated exchange of name calling occurred between a group of about 15 youths Tuesday night at the Cotton Carnival.

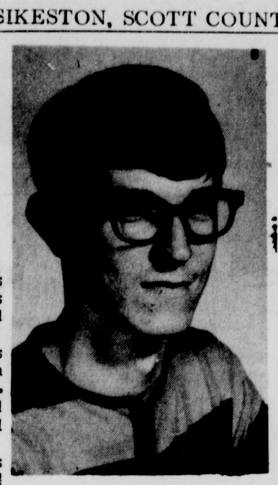
What caused the name calling incident is unknown, but the disturbance was broken up rapidly by the four policeman patroling the carnival grounds, Police Chief Arthur Bruce said. No arrests were made.

Chief Bruce and Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick received complaints Tuesday that a concession arcade at the carnival was showing a lewd movie in a coin operated machine. After investigation, the operator was forbidden to show the movie.

In other activity, six motorists were charged Tuesday with exceeding the speed limit. They are. John F. Ferrell, Sikeston; W. L. Scarbrough, 320 Wallace; Richard M. Schiferl, 702 Montgomery; William D. Williams, 909 Sikes; Shirley McCormick, 209 Crowe, and Roy D. Weichard, 223 Marian.

James R. Elliott, Bertrand, was charged at 9:40 p.m. Tuesday with running a red light on East Malone, police reported.

Rochester Baker, 224 Dixie, reported to police at 11:18 p.m. Tuesday that a fishing tackle box was taken from his car.



Gary A. Wiss

Wiss Advances To Semifinals in As U.S. Scholar

Gary A. Wiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wiss, 612 Dorothy, has been named a semi-finalist in the 1967-68 national merit scholarship program.

Wiss ranked first in his class of 246 students at the end of his junior year. At that time he had a grade point average of 3.717 out of a possible 4.

Wiss is president of the student body. He is a member of National Honor Society and a forward on the basketball team, who won all state honorable mention last year.

Wiss will attend Valparaiso University in Indiana or the University of Missouri at Rolla. He plans a career in engineering.

The 14,000 semifinalists appointed throughout the nation have advanced to the second step in the competition for about 2,900 merit scholarships, valued at more than $8 million, to be awarded in 1968.

Semifinalists scored the highest in each state on the national merit scholarship qualifying test given in February. They constitute less than one per cent of the graduating secondary school seniors.

Donald E. Rice of Cape Girardeau, a student at Central high school, and Mark H. Nenninger, Cape Girardeau, a student at Notre Dame high school, also were named semi-finalists.

Rice reported that he planned to major in chemistry in college and career in that field. Nenninger reported plans to major in engineering in college and for a career in the field.

Escaped Mental Patient Caught

FULTON, Mo. (AP) -- Two Fulton police officers and two Highway Patrol troopers caught an escapee from the Fulton State Hospital today on Route C south of Fulton.

The patrol said he was armed but offered no resistance.

The escapee, William Elmer Herron, 23, was caught as he was walking down a country road after he had left a pistol and a rifle on a porch at the farm home of Ernest Schmid.

As a highway patrol car came toward him from one direction and a Fulton police car from the other, Herron held a pistol above his head.

Officers said Herron complained of being cold.

Herron took the weapons from the Leo Chapman home southeast of Fulton Tuesday. He fled in Chapman's pickup truck, which was found later at a railroad crossing on U.S. 54. He reportedly threatened another family and then ran into some nearby woods.

Herron, a native of Caruthersville, Mo., was a patient at the state school and hospital at Marshall, Mo., before coming to Fulton.

He apparently walked away from an outside paint crew Monday. The sheriff's office said he complained that he was ill and said he was going back into the hospital for medical attention.

Colder Weather Slated Tonight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The coldest weather of the fall season will hit Missouri tonight.

A frost warning was issued for the northwest where the low tonight is expected to hit near 30. Farther south, around Kansas City, scattered light frost is considered possible. In the rest of the state the temperatures are expected to be in the upper 30s and the low 40s.

The shift to colder weather came after showers hit every section of the state. Rains up to an inch and a half were common in the northern, central and west central sections.

Kansas City rainfall was 1.25, bringing the total for the month to nearly eight inches.

Consumer installment debt exceeded $60 billion at mid-1965, more than 14 per cent of disposable personal income.

The raid was carried out by officers of the State Highway Patrol, the Douglas County sheriff's office and agents of U.S. Bureau of Narcotics.

Arrested were Marshall Bedford Bradley, 24, and his wife, Aurelia Jane Bradley, 45.

Sheriff Chancey Sherman said about 70 pounds of marijuana, processed and packaged for shipment, were confiscated. The value of the marijuana was estimated at about $4,650.

Federal narcotics agents said the couple would be taken to Springfield later today to appear in U.S. District Court.

Route 77 to Chaffee Will Open Thursday

Route 77 from Route 25 at Blomeyer to Chaffee will be opened to traffic at 2 p.m. Thursday, W. D. Carney, district engineer said today.

The route has been closed to traffic to reconstruct a bypass bridge over the Cotton Belt railroad north of Chaffee, which was damaged in July of 1964.

"We wish to emphasize that motorists who drive this section of highway should exercise extreme caution, since some work will be in progress by the contractor, R. P. Stephens, and his subcontractors," Carney said.

Work remaining consists of final clean up of the project, painting of structural steel on the bridge and other miscellaneous items.

Heavy rains have slowed work on building the stretch of Interstate 55 between New Madrid and Portageville this summer and it is doubtful that it will open until in 1968, James Toft, assistant to the district construction engineer, said. Earlier completion had been planned for late fall.

Anchor Toy to Buy Building

The intention of Transogram Co. Inc. to purchase the building Anchor Toy Corp., 1620 East Malone, has been renting from the city since 1955, for $42,000 was announced by Mayor Kendall Sikes at a city council meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday at the city administrative building.

Anchor Toy Corp. is managed by Robert Henzi. It is a subsidiary of Transogram, headquartered in New York City.

After discussion among council members, City Manager W. Raymert Miller and City Attorney Manuel Drumm as to how the city could legally administer the money, a general agreement was reached. Council members indicated that the $42,000 would be used for industrial development.

Creation of a special committee to disburse the funds was discussed. Although no formal organization was set up, council members favored appointing a six-man committee to explore avenues of using the money for industrial development. Proposal of the committee should be subject to the council's approval, providing an added safeguard, Drumm said.

The committee to administer the funds would be appointed by the council and could include a representative of each band, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, a representative of the Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, and a member of the city council, Sikes suggested.

Representatives of SIDC were planning to come before the council to ask for a mill tax to raise funds for drawing industry, but this should prevent the tax proposal problems, Sikes said.

The council passed a resolution authorizing a grant agreement to accept $892,000 to assist in water and sewer improvement. The grant from the housing and urban development department was announced Sept. 11.

Forms for the grant are being prepared in the office of city consulting engineer Wm. Riddle, Dick Inman, director of Sikeston Light & Water, said.

HUD has certain provisions in the grant agreement, which allows it to reduce the grant under certain conditions. It is unlikely that the city will receive the full amount of the grant announced, Inman told the council.

An ordinance calling for bids for the paving of East Kathleen Street from Selma to Dona with 1 1/2 inches of asphalt on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutters was passed. The work will be paid by he issuance of special tax bills to propment erty owners.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

CAN THEY SALVAGE ED LONG?

In recent weeks a strange and frightening phenomenon has been taking place within the ranks of the Democratic party.

After LIFE magazine uncovered Senator "Ethical Ed" V. Long's deep and questionable financial involvement with Jimmy Hoffa's lawyer, Morris Shenker, it became apparent that Long was in political trouble. Accordingly, some of the Senator's cronies in St. Louis and Kansas City decided they must band together to salvage their sinking comrade.

Who are the friends who are trying to pull off "Operation Salvage"?

FROM ST. LOUIS

MORRIS SHENKER. Well-known criminal lawyer who through the years has represented just about every big time St. Louis police character, including hoodlum Buster Wortman. Shenker is now Jimmy Hoffa's lawyer and is Senator Long's occasional partner in the practice of law to the tune of some $140,000.

LAWRENCE CALLANAN. Two-time convict and undisputed boss of the smelly Steamfitters Union of St. Louis. Callanan is Long's principal labor booster and labor money raiser.

HAROLD GIBBONS. St. Louis Teamster boss who runs the Teamster operations in Eastern Missouri while his boss, Jimmy Hoffa, is serving time in a federal penitentiary for jury-tampering.

WILLIAM CLAY. Negro committeeman of the 26th Ward in St. Louis. Clay, formerly a militant civil rights demonstrator (as witness his jail time for contempt of court arising out of "sit-ins" at a St. Louis bank), lost some of his militancy upon becoming a paid "consultant" to the all-white Steamfitters Union.

FROM KANSAS CITY

ALEX PRESTA. Convicted of bootlegging during the Prohibition Era, Presta heads the remnants of the old Binaggio faction in Kansas City's North End. (Binaggio was slain, gangland style, in 1950.)

State Senator JASPER BRANCATO. Presta's political ally, Brancato is Senator Long's official greeter when the Senator comes to Kansas City. While the Missouri Senate is in session, Brancato functions to defeat any measure which would improve law enforcement in Kansas City or otherwise modernize Kansas City Government.

State Representative WILLIAM ROYSTER. A behind-the-scenes operator in the Missouri House of Representatives, Rep. Royster sponsors such "high-minded" measures as those which would loosen up enforcement of Missouri's liquor laws, the "branding-iron" bill which would have given the Kansas City political machines greater control over Kansas City elections, etc.

LOUIS WAGNER. Wagner is a Kansas City lawyer who for years specialized in representing tavern operators charged with violating the State's liquor laws. He attempts to control one of Kansas City's bigger Negro wards.

This is the crew which has banded together in an effort to pull off "Operation Salvage." We can only speculate as to the motive behind their efforts as these men are not often seen doing something for nothing.

If this group succeeds in getting "Ethical Ed" Long renominated for U. S. Senator, then it will be the Democratic Party itself which has to be salvaged from its own apathy in letting people of this type take over.

We hope that good Democrats throughout the State of Missouri wake up in time to vote for Tom Eagleton and to head off such a political travesty.

GOVERNOR HEARNES' WARNING

Missouri Governor Hearns is not whistling in Dixie when he predicts that full implementation of the federal government's welfare programs will add an extra $70 million to this state's budget. Indeed, the partial implementation of Medicare's Title 19 program by the last General Assembly has already added several millions, with next year's estimates to run above $10 million for this one phase.

No one with even the wildest imagination could have predicted all of the requirements of the Medicare act, with its provisions that a small amount of federal funds be used to supplement larger appropriations by the state to delve into all kinds of welfare projects. Not only are the states required to divvy up the money, without anyone suggesting how this is to be done, but the act provides such stringent penalty provisions that in the event the states don't comply with Uncle Sam's wishes, they will lose other federal welfare grants. This is the part of the Medicare act that has irritated statehouses across the nation.

Missouri, like every other state, is operating on a tight budget, faced with rising education, mental health and highway costs. These needs deserve high priority, just the same as do welfare programs. When one is expanded beyond the state's ability to pay, then other programs must suffer.

The irritating point of it all is that the federal government, by dictum, is setting the state's priorities for them, without so much as a formal request. This process not only riles Governor Hearnes and the legislature but it serves to disrupt an orderly program of progress of all essential state services.

Governor Hearnes has performed a real service when he complains of these federal regulations aimed at controlling and expanding state budgets for a single program. We hope he continues his protests and perhaps others will eventually join him.

Missourians, as well as Americans, need to know the details of these latest federal restrictions on state budgets, state taxing powers and the right of the citizens to decide for themselves which programs shall be expanded.

We have gone a long way down the road of federal control, and there are many who believe we may have reached the last mile of the federal government's mission to control the activities of the states.

A PARODY

One of the most graphic demonstrations of what the ABA proposals might do to crime reporting was written by Richard D. Smyser, managing editor of the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) Oak Ridger. As chairman of the freedom of information committee of the Associated Press Managing Editors he presented it to the annual meeting of APME in Buffalo in 1965.

Taking a well-known verse about the Lizzie Borden murder he adapted it to present-day newspaper treatment and then to what it might be under the new ABA rules, as follows:

ORIGINAL

Lizzie Borden took an axe
And gave her mother 40 whacks,
And when she saw what she had done,
She gave her father 41.

AS IT MIGHT BE TODAY

(using standard newspaper policy)

The Bordens, Emily and Max,
Were found dead Tuesday, slain by axe.
Police said 80 blows were sledged.
Their daughter did it, it's alleged.

AS IT MIGHT BE TOMORROW

VIOLENCE AND POVERTY

When a congressman says something like this which can't be politically popular these days, it is worth quoting. . . .

Rep. Henry Schadeberg (R-Wis.) said: "If violence is born out of poverty, then it must be understood that organized violence is born out of organized poverty. If there is organized poverty, then the blame must be placed squarely on the shoulders of those who use such organized poverty for their own political ends; who talk about waging war on poverty but who do little to win it because the major share of that budget is being used to support an ever elite corps of poverty generals whose interest is not in winning the war but in waging the battle merely to keep their jobs. Perhaps the same curse is laid on the waging of the war in Vietnam. . . a refusal to allow our troops to win a decisive victory."

Enough said.

NEW YORK (AP) -- Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you think you have dental woes, consider the plight of George Washington. The "father of his country" had lost all his teeth by the time he was 40, and in later years wore at least three sets of false teeth.

Although Dr. Sigmund Freud's psychoanalytic theories are under considerable scientific attack, some 250,000 Americans pay a million dollars daily to lie on a couch and talk about their emotional problems.

Much fun is poked at the vanity of bearded hippies and beatniks. But men who wear beards have always been vain of them. During the 17th and 18th centuries gentlemen of class even wore cumbersome cardboard boxes in bed to protect their chin whiskers while they slept.

The tireder people become individually, the more energy their civilization seems to need. It is estimated that between now and the year 2000, the United States will consume twice as much energy as it did in the last 150 years. And in the next 33 years the whole world will use up as much energy as it did in the last 2,000 years.

The chances are one in six that you have some kind of allergy-- or will develop one during your lifetime.

Quotable notables: "The average Hollywood film star's ambition is to be admired by an American, courted by an Italian, married to an Englishman and have a french boy friend."-- Katharine Hepburn.

Tip to the thrifty: Don't leave your money dormant in a bank too long. In some states small bank accounts that are inactive for 10 years or more may be closed out by the bank with the balance, minus service charges, being sent to the state.

Artful weavers: Spider webs are almost as distinctive as human fingerprints. Each of the 30,000 known varieties of spiders has its own style of weaving and turns out a new web daily made of self-spun filaments stronger than a strand of steel the same thickness. Some spiders even weave nets and use them to "lasso" their prey.

Famous firsts: The first rear view mirror on a motor vehicle is believed to have been used by Ray Harroun, a famed racing driver. Installed over the dashboard of his Marmon "Wasp" racer, the mirror helped him win the Indianapolis 500-mile race in 1911.

History lesson: What U.S. presidents bore these nicknames: "Father of the American Navy," "Petticoat Pet," "His Fraudulency," "Grandpa's Grandson," and "That Man in the White House"? They were John Adams, Martin Van Buren, Rutherford B. Hays, Benjamin Harrison, and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Frontier: Man's next frontier will be an old one-- the undeveloped tropics. The tropical zone includes more than a quarter of the earth's land. Although as yet uncrowded with people, about four-fifths or all existing plant and animal species dwell in the tropics.

It was Charles M. Schwab who observed, "The man who does not work for the love of work but only for money is not likely to make money nor to find much fun in life."

One of the new State laws which goes into effect October 13 requires he covering of loose loads on motor vehicles. The law, designed to protect the traveling public, primarily affects trucks, both commercial and private.

Section One of the new statute reads: "All motor vehicles, and every trailer and semi-trailer operating upon the public highways of this state and carrying goods or material or farm products which may reasonably be expected to become dislodged and fall from the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer as a result of wind pressure or air pressure and-or by the movement of the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer shall have a protective cover or be sufficiently secured so that no portion of such goods or material can become dislodged and fall from the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer while being transported or carried."

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, said "This law will help alleviate the hazard of objects falling from one vehicle onto another. There have been instances, for example, where flying objects have caused drivers to lose control of their vehicles. There are also cases where falling loads have induced extensive damage to vehicles in the immediate area."

The Patrol Superintendent also noted that the new legislation states that anyone found in violation of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished as provided by law.

A $20,000 prize Texas bull was sent over to Saigon under the U.S. AID program to improve the breed of Vietnamese cattle. He was put in a field with local cows, but displayed no interest at all. After hasty consultations, the bull's Texas breeder was flown over to Saigon. He walked up to the bull and held what appeared to be a whispered conversation with him. The beast promptly began making vigorous approaches to the cows. Afterward, U.S. and Vietnamese officials asked what had happened. "Well," drawled the Texan, "I was able to clear up a misunderstanding. He thought he was over here purely as an advisor."

WOMAN -- THE WORK HORSE

Man works from sun to sun, but woman's work . . .

Well, woman's work is done more often than the old saw maintains. Recent statistics, however, indicate that it is less often done than man's.

According to the Women's Medical News Service, a 14-nation study made by the United Nations shows that mothers, both working and nonworking, in Communist and capitalist countries alike, have less free time than their husbands.

By free time is meant time to do what one wants to do as opposed to what one has to do.

For the United States, the study found that the working mother has an average of 2.8 hours of free time on weekdays and 7.1 hours on Sundays. The nonworking mother has about 3.5 hours free on weekdays and about 7.5 hours on Sundays.

The working father, in contrast, has about 4.1 hours of leisure time on weekdays and 8.5 hours on Sundays.

Not a great deal of difference, to be sure, but enough to start a good argument.

If interest rates are easing, insofar as the naton's independent and smaller businesses are concerned, there is no evidence they are paying any less for money. In fact, indications are that they are paying slightly more.

This is indicated in a special quarterly study of the continuous year long survey conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business. With returns from approximately 35,000 independent proprietor respondents now tallied, it appears that the average rate is now 6.8 per cent.

This contrasts to an average rate of 6.2 per cent charged at the same time last year, and with 6.6 per cent reported in January of this year.

In only two states, Vermont and West Virginia is the rate shown as less than 6 per cent. In both states the average interest rate is reported at 5.9 per cent. An even 6 per cent average is reported in Maryland, North Carolina and Tennessee.

The highest average rate of 7.4 per cent is reported in Idaho with the next highest California and Oregon where the average rate is shown as 7.2 per cent.

THE ANSWER IS -- TASTE

In this day and age of high-powered publicity-seeking among the world's fashion designers looking for a place in the sun, it's not easy for Mr. Consumer to sort out serious offerings from frivolous. The current "pitch" to get men to wear mini-skirts is an example of the latter -- with the straight-faced proponents claiming that skirts are more manly, more comfortable and more flattering. (Since when did gents' knees become a thing of beauty?) Let Mr. Consumer beware of the garish and the gimmicks -- let him judge all the offerings as to their taste -- bad or good.

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: Parson is gonna run for Guvner, ask me to vote fur him. I told him no.

How come Gramp, he's been as good preacher, ain't he?

Shore, but like I told him, it's fur his own good. Money and power, prestige and all turns the head of the best of em. Look at Solomon when he got on top he wandered off after wild wimmin and taxed the people and nation into what we calls bankruptsy and the Bible talks like God got fretted at him and lowered the boom. And there is example after example of that even in our time.

Yept but you say we got to have good men in office.

Yept but we don't want to lose no more good preachers, got to have string on them officeholders, know all bout their bizness and pull em out when they don't do right.

H.L. Hunt Says

GOVERNMENT T.V.

The proposed fourth television network, to be operated by a federal corporation with "co-operation" of the three national commercial networks, has been loosely termed "public TV." The public will not operate this network if it is formed; the public will only be required to pay for it. The Government, through the proposed Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will operate the network. Therefore, it will be "Government TV," not "public TV." This mis-labelling does not square with the Government's own "truth - in - packaging" proposals.

The basic objection to this scheme is constitutional. Nowhere in its enumeration of powers of the Federal Government does the Constitution permit such activity; indeed, the Bill of Rights prohibits it. The First Amendment specifically forbids "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press"; how then can the Government control a major segment of the press (which now includes radio and TV) and a major forum for verbal expression without curtailing or abridging the freedom and rights of the people?

The presidentially-controlled Corporation for Public Broadcasting, whose 15-member board would be picked by the President, would be able to control the contents of so-called educational programming by making grants to producers of educational shows. This function is presently being done by tax-exempt, psuedo-liberal foundations which have supported a steady flow of anti-capitalist, pro-socialist propaganda through the present National Education Television Network (NET), which has over a hundred affiliated stations. The fourth network scheme would take the burden of financing leftist TV propaganda off these huge foundations and allow them to expand their propagandizing in other media. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Joe Resnick, D-N.Y., elected from a suburban area north of New York City, has probably done more for small farmers and antagonized more wealthy farmers than any other congressman on the house agriculture committee, of which Resnick is a member.

When Resnick started investivating the American Farm Bureau Federation, all but three members of his 36-man committee colleagues were members of the farm bureau, others feared this powerful lobby.

However, Resnick has kept up his probe. While other congressmen have spent thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money on summer junkets abroad, Resnick has dipped into his own pocket to pay staff and travel expenses for a one-man investigation.

He has discovered that the farm bureau recently invested $3 million in the Pizitz shopping center in Birmingham, Ala., on top of an earlier investment of $5,500,000 in the same shopping center. It also owns a $10 million shopping center in Birmingham.

Resnick points to the fact that farmers can survive only if they get a reasonably high price for their products. Yet a shopping center can survive only if it sells at a low price to the consumer. No farm co-op, says Resnick, should be in this conflict-of-interest position.

Another possible conflict Resnick has unearthed is the manner in which the farm bureau sells pigs and poultry to farmers; then sells them feed; finally buys fattened hogs and poultry back from the farmers. All this is in competition with private firms which pay taxes. The farm bureau doesn't.

But what Resnick is probing is the allegation that the farmer could purchase feed at a price under what the farm bureau sells to him if he was not tied by a contract. Also the age and weight of the poultry and hogs are controlled by the farm bureau so that the farmer becomes an underpaid farm bureau minion.

Resnick has also shown that around 50 per cent of the farm bureau's members are not farmers, that the apparent main purpose of the farm bureau is to operate a hugh insurance business, that it uses tax exemption to operate filling stations, to sell heating oil, fertilizer, real estate and even sells mutual funds on the stock market; that It plugs the 27-1/2 per cent oil depletion allowance, which increases farm taxes; and has favored the big farmer to the detriment of the medium-size and family farmer.

POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

Resnick has stirred up tremendous support for his investigation tion from small farmers, plus a lot of businessmen who have objected to the tax-exempt status of the farm bureau.

Resnick has also unearthed some revealing facts regarding the extreme right wing politics of the farm bureau and has linked it up with the liberty lobby, whose founder, Willis Carto, has said the United States made a mistake by getting into the war against Nazi Germany.

Resnick's chief witness regarding right-wing activities has been Mrs. Brice Ohmstede, former public relations director for the farm bureau in Nebraska, who testified:

"It has become pretty evident that they are a part of an interlocking of right-wing organization whose goal appears to be the overthrow of the American government."

"That is a very serious charge," commented Resnick.

Mrs. Ohmstede agreed, but gave evidence showing that the farm bureau had tried to stifle free expression, purge schools and libraries of books not to their liking, and attacked as communist anything with which they disagreed.

"My first experience with the farm bureau's anti-communist drive frightened me," testified the former public relations official for the farm bureau in Nebraska. "At the farm bureau convention in Lincoln in November, 1962, speaker after speaker told the Ladies' groups that the Communists were taking over the schools and the churches."

LBJ TALKS

President Johnson is a vigorous and compulsive talker. When he talks he uses his hands.

At a White House luncheon the other day he sat beside Dick Berlin, top executive of the Hearst newspapers, talking chiefly about the war in Vietnam.

Near the start of the luncheon the President knocked over a glass of water. He apologized, and got a White House waiter to keep it from going into Berlin's lap. Later in the luncheon he knocked over a glass of red wine, also in Berlin's direction. This time he was too intent on what he was saying to call for a waiter.

Berlin remarked: "Now I've had two baths."

FOOTNOTES AND HEADLINES

Public health service doctors privately suggest that national leaders set an example against cigarette smoking. President Johnson will have no trouble with this. He gave up cigarette smoking long ago. Neither will vice President Humphrey, Gov. Romney of Michigan nor Gov. Rockefeller of New York. None smoke. Ronnie Reagan of California might have more trouble. . . Reagan wasn't in a smoke dream when he put across the biggest tax increase in California history -- in fact, the biggest in the history of any state-- $1 billion... Reagan was elected in a campaign in which he claimed Gov. Pat Brown was overtaxing. Reagan's new record budget will be $5,080,000,000. His cigarette tax goes up from 3 cents to 7 cents a pack, and on October 1, to 10 cents.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

ALL LABOR WATCHING

Bitter Showdown Battle Looms Over Punishing 50,000 Teachers For Breaking No Strike Law.

New York: -- The precedent-smashing teachers' strike may not do for Nelson A. Rockefeller what a police strike did for a vintage Republican known as Calvin Coolidge. But the school stoppage was a story with a built-in sleeper crisis which will project the Governor into the national spotlight in a new tougher role.

The walkout broke the brand new no-strike law entitled the Public Employes' Fair Employment Act. And Governor Rockefeller -- through a state board -- will say that 50,000 teachers can be wrong. They violated a state statute forbidding public strikes.

And there will be no amnesty.

The United Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) will not be forgiven as the Transport Workers Union was when it paralyzed this city's gargantuan transit system early last year.

But can a union really be punished for striking?

Most union chiefs just don't believe this could happen here. A few days in jail means little. The martyrdom is worth it. During the big subway strike of '66, this column was the first to reveal that the transit workers leaders actually insisted on staying in the county hoosegow, when City Hall passed on word they could be released -- and at the very least, autos would be dispatched to bring them down to the Mayor's chambers for intimate talks.

But that was pre-PERB -- the new Public Employment Relations Board, which virtually all major labor leaders are now watching closely. The board was skillfully created by an erudite trio of labor specialists -- the gentle Dave Cole, the ivory-towered George Taylor, and Harvard's peppery strategist, John Dunlop.

Built into it is the power to hit a guilty union right in the solar plexus, which in the world of labor is the pocketbook, the treasury. And not by fining it alone. But by the hardest of blows, the denial of the right to an automatic dues checkoff.

Under the checkoff system, in the case of the New York teachers union, the city, through the Board of Education, simply withholds the $5-a-month dues from each of the 50,000 instructors and passes it on to the union. In effect, the city, or any employer, thus services the labor organizations' headquarters.

The law, as written by Cole and his colleagues, gives PERB the absolute mandate to move against the union if it breaks state rules. Thus PERB now is seeking to determine first if there really was a strike, secondly, if it was forced by undue provocation by the Board of Education, and thirdly, if the union is guilty, how it shall be punished.

Gov. Rockefeller nursed this act. He will insist on action. Obviously there was a strike. Obviously the Board did not provoke it. Obviously PERB now will have to determine how to make the punishment fit the "crime."

It is a safe prediction that PERB will decide to suspend the automatic dues checkoff. This suspension could force the union to collect its own dues from 50,000 members in the most sprawling of educational systems -- for as long as 18 months.

This could cost the union hundreds of thousands of dollars. But there's more. At the end of the dues checkoff suspension period, the union through its officers must take an oath that it will not again sponsor, support, encourage or lead a strike.

What self-respecting labor leader could do that? Without the strike threat in his hand, he's like gin and tonic without the gin. But the law is the law and the Governor and his board are determined to avoid killing it before the ink on it dries. It took effect Sept. 1. The union deliberately flouted it.

But there is more here than a duel between labor's avant-garde and a State Board.

The dues checkoff is American labor's most sacred possession. To some national unions this means corporations annually pass on as much as $55 million in union dues -- taken right from employes' payrolls. It is the difference between being a major force and being the weak central "head offices" of European labor. It is this difference which enables them to put platoons of organizers in the field; computers for membership pensions and services into the major offices; political action committees into the precincts; lobbyists into the halls of Congress. It is what makes it possible to maintain as many as 700 national office field men and keep them on the move across the land.

So, inside labor, the leaders and their technicians are keeping a death watch on this development. Denial of the checkoff could set a precedent some day in the private as well as the public sector.

But the teachers' federation chose to make the issue. They have left the Governor no leeway. And the issue now is: can a union deliberately defy the law and not expect the authorities to attempt to take action? If this is true then what will the state, county or municipality do when the transit strike looms again in a few weeks?

No one denies that Nelson Rockefeller is a friend of the labor movement. But he is also the governor of all the people.

So the issue is joined -- not alone for New Yorkers but for the public everywhere.

SMOKERS IGNITED THEMSELVES

NEW YORK (AP) – Careless smokers are blamed for 30 per cent of the fire deaths in New York City.

The Fire Department's annual report said 74 of the 243 fire victims in 1966 died as the result of "smoking carelessness." The 243 deaths was a record number of deaths for a single year.

The number did not include the 16 firemen who died in fighting fires last year. This also was a record total.

Smoking carlessness also was blamed for 25.5 per cent of the 36,800 building fires in the city last year. Cooking carelessness was listed as the cause of 17.8 per cent of such fires.

FJORD RENTED OUT

BERGEN, Norway (AP) – The export-minded Norwegians are earning foreign currency by hiring out a mile of water.

Bergesn Mekaniske Verksteder, a big shipyard here, tests its newly built ships on a measured mile in the near-by Bjoerne Fjord. The "test mile" is considered to be one of the best in Northern Europe.

So the shipyard earns extra money by hiring it out to other shipbuilders. The biggest vessels can sail in the deep and calm waters.

Smooth conditions are essential for the test, taken by every ship on delivery to the owners. The test is to show that the ship has the contracted performance. During the trial, instruments record every phase of the ship's mechanical operation.

Charges are scaled according to the size of ship and duration of tests, ranging for $70 to $200.

Mrs. Hinson Hostess to Canalou Club

CANALOU -- The Canalou Community club met at the home of Mrs. E. B. Hinson in Morehouse for dessert at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

A new project was adopted for the coming year. Mrs. David Croom and Mrs. J. W. Page of Sikeston will conduct a series of studies developed by the Great Books Foundation for grade children. Time has been arranged for an hour during the regular school day, once a week, in the fourth grade at Matthews.

A contribution was made from the club treasury and individuals gave to a fund to buy the required books.

The club agreed to furnish refreshments for the UNICEF Halloween party at Canalou.

The county council is planning to publish a cook book should be sent to Mrs. Fred Lasters, route one Catron, 63833, or Mrs. Nelson Lumsden, Canalou, 63828. Proceeds from the sale of these books will be used for sending delegates to state, national, and international meetings.

Several members promised to make and fill ditty bags which will be sent to soldiers in Vietnam through the Red Cross.

Mrs. Orrin Hunt gave the lesson on "Citizenship." She told the requirements of citizenship on the national, state, and local levels, and she stressed the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. A discussion followed.

The next meeting will be on Oct. 18, with Mrs. Nelson Lumsden.

Hogs Meet Golden Hurricans Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK. -- Arkansas opens its Razorback Stadium season for 1967 against the aerial giants of college football, Tulsa's Golden Hurricane in a 2 PM kickoff this Saturday. Tulsa, after a 30-day practice period, will begin defense of its national collegiate passing championship -- a title it has held for five consecutive years. Coach Glenn Dobbs is preparing no less than four talented quarterbacks to keep Tulsa in the running; two of them his own talented sons -- Glenn III and Johnny.

No team has successfully stopped Tulsa's heralded passing attack -- but the Razorbacks have fared perhaps a little better than most. Over these five championship years, Tulsa quarterbacks have completed an average of 17.8 passes out of 34.6 attempts for an average 200.4 yards a game against Arkansas. That's still better than the total per-game averages for all five seasons: 21.9 complete out of 38.4 attempts for an average of 276.3 yards per game.

The five games (1962-66) have all gone to Arkansas: 42-14, 56-7, 31-22, 20-12 and 27-8. Tulsa's nine TD's have included five passes, three runs from scrimmage and an interception return.

The Arkansas - Tulsa gridiron series is steeped in tradition going back to 1899, making it the oldest non-conference rivalry on the U of A books. They met in Muskogee, Okla. that year in the mud, with Arkansas Industrial University playing Henry Kendal College to a scoreless tie.

The series moved to Tulsa in 1925, and by 1933 it had become an annual Thanksgiving Day game in the Oil Capital. Skelly Stadium gave the Hurricane an 8-7-4 advantage during those years -- including tremendous war-time teams (when Glenn Dobbs passed his way to All-American honors).

Since moving to Fayetteville as a regular early-season contest in 1954 -- Arkansas has charged into a commanding lead, 27-12-4. The Porkers have won eight straight and 11 of the last 12. As a matter of fact, it has become Arkansas' best offensive outing of the year. The Hogs have averaged 31.2 points a game in the last 12 contests.

Everybody likes a band at the football game -- but here's a case where the crowds have literally driven the bands away. The Arkansas - Tulsa game used to be "Band Day" at Razorback Stadium. That's when the UofA had 8,000 empty seats to spare. But -- no more. A full house (40,000) is expected for this 44th renewal and except for the two bands from competing schools -- there just isn't any more room. Both the UofA Marching Razorback Band and the Tulsa band will perform at halftime.

Last Saturday's 7-6 loss to Oklahoma State was the fourth one-point defeat for Arkansas under Coach Frank Broyles -- against two wins. In terms of all "close games," however (where three points or less separated the two teams), Arkansas is still ahead, eight to six. The last time OSU had beaten Arkansas was in 1953, Bowden Wyatt's first year, by the same score, 7-6.

Razorback fans would have been lost without a program last Saturday night. Nearly half of the 33 Porkers who saw action in the Oklahoma State contest were making their varsity debut. Eight newcomers were in the two-platoon starting lineup and Coach Frank Broyles used a total of 15 sophomores in the game--by far the greatest number in his 10 years at Arkansas.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the phrase that every follower of baseball knows and uses today got its start way back around 1889 when a player by the name of Art Sunday came up from Houston, in the Texas League to join the Toledo Mud Hens in the Old American Association? Finishing out the end of the year with the Hens, Sunday compiled a batting average of 3.98 in 31 games. But as most of his hits were short, choppy low fly balls just over the infield and out of the reach of the outfielders, one of the Toledo Sports Writers described his hits as something he'd brought up from the Texas League. Hence the term Texas Leaguer got its birth and it's been a part of baseball ever since.

DID YOU KNOW -- that one of baseball comedian Al Schacht's favorite stories concerns the minor league clubowners who loved to brag about his success? The clubowner told the same story to everyone he met. He said he was a self-made man who was a star player in the majors -- a successful manager and a good clubowner and had a quarter of a million dollars in the bank. One day, this particular clubowner met the late Jake Ruppert, who owned the New York Yankees. He told Ruppert about his success and finished with the story of the money in the bank. Ruppert was not impressed. He took a coin out of his pocket and said: "All right, my good man. I'll match you for the quarter of a million."

DID YOU KNOW--that Bill Tilden was the greatest amateur OR professional tennis player that ever lived? He's placed at the top of the pile in any listing. Then I think I'd name Rene Cochet, the French player of the late 1920's. He came next to Tilden in many an international match. And while he didn't remain at the top too long, because of the war, I think the redhead, Don Budge would come next on my list.

DID YOU KNOW -- that when John L. Sullivan met Jim Corbett for the world's heavyweight title, the Boston Strong Boy was a 50-1 favorite, yet lost the title on a knockout to the dancing master?

Twins Shift Into AL Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota reclaimed undisputed possession first place in the pulsating American League pennant race Tuesday, riding a pair of Harmon Killebrew's mighty home runs and a homer and triple by Bob Alliston to a 7-3 comeback victory over California.

The triumph lifted the Twins out of a first-place tie with Boston, which lost to Cleveland, and into a one-game lead. The idled White Sox are in second place, one point ahead of Boston.

Killebrew's 435-foot two-run homer after Cesar Tovar singled ignited a four-run rally in the sixth inning that wiped out a 3-2 California lead.

TIE FOR LEAD

Killebrew then added a solo shot 430 feet to left-center in the seventh, tying him with Boston's Carl Yastrzemski for the American League homer at 43.

Alliston hit his twenty-fourth homer with the bases empty in the fourth inning, after tripling and scoring on Rod Carew's single in the second. Allison also singled in the seventh. Carew added three singles for the Twins.

After Killebrew's homer off loser Jim McGlothlin, 11-8, in the sixth, the Twins added two more runs with the help of three Angel errors.

Allison walked, moved to second on Carew's single and scored when Jim Fregosi threw the ball into the dugout trying for a double play on Ted Uhlaender's grounder.

Uhlaender then raced home when Bobby Knoop bobbled pitcher Jim Katt's grounder. Uhlaender appeared to be an easy out at the plate, but he knocked the ball out of Bob Rodger's glove for the third error of the inning.

Kaat weathered a three-run third inning to post his sixteenth victory against 13 defeats. The Angels batted nine men that inning, scoring on three singles, Tovar's error, a walk, a hit batsman and two fielder's choices. Aurelio Rodriguez' single drove in two runs and Bubba Morton's hit accounted for the third.

Kaat allowed only five hits and struck out 13 in pitching his thirteenth complete game.

Kaat now has 207 strikeouts for the season, the third Twins pitcher to pass the 200-mark this year.

The Twins set a home attendance record, with a crowd of 8012 pushing the season total to 1,467,024 with one home game to pay.

At Boston, the light-hitting Chico Salmon drove in three runs with a homer and a double to offset Carl Yastrzemski's forty-third homer as the Cleveland Indians jolted Boston's pennant hopes with a 6-3 victory Tuesday.

Salmon, who carried a .222 batting average into the game, hurt the Red Sox by doubling home the first run and then scoring himself in the second. He capped his spree by hoisting a two-run shot into the left field screen in the sixth for his second homer of the season.

Cleveland scored its third run on a throwing error as the Boston defense collapsed behind starter Gary Bell in the third. Chuck Hinton's tenth homer leading off the sixth against Jose Santiago accounted for the Indians' other run.

The Red Sox were unable to break through Cleveland right-hander Luis Tiant until the seventh.

Jose Tartabull launched the three-run uprising with a one-out pop single to shallow right. Jerry Adair followed with a line single to the same sector. Tartabull stopping at second.

Yastrzemski, who lined his thirty-first double to right center in the fifth, looked at a ball and then lifted a tremendous drive into the centerfield bleachers.

In addition, his 43 homers tied him with Ted Williams for the most home runs hit by a left-handed hitter in Red Sox history.

Bell, who had defeated his former teammates three straight times since being acquired from Cleveland in June, ran into trouble in the second inning.

Tony Horton, sent to Cleveland in the Bell deal, singled and scored as Salmon lined his double into the left field corner. Salmon came around on two infield outs.

Tiant was credited with a hit when his soft liner popped out of Jerry Adair's glove to start the third. Bell retired the next two batters, but Max Alvis lifted a high fly to short center.

Baseball Round-Up

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just about everybody has a finger in the American League pennant pie, including Mother Nature, but Harmon Killebrew shoved his whole fist into it.

Killebrew walloped a pair of tape measure home runs Tuesday helping Minnesota whip California 7-3. The victory moved the Twins one full game ahead of both Boston and Chicago. The Red Sox lost 6-3 to Cleveland and the White Sox bowed to the elements when their game at Kansas City was postponed by rain.

The rainout left the Sox in second place, one percentage point ahead of Boston but Chicago must play a doubleheader tonight. Fourth-place Detroit, still alive, stayed 1½ games off the pace by whipping New York 1-0. Washington trimmed Baltimore 4-1 in Tuesday's other AL game.

In the National League, Chicago edged St. Louis 8-7, Atlanta nipped Cincinnati 4-3, Houston topped Philadelphia 3-2, Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 3-1 and San Francisco slugged New York 8-3.

Killebrew hammered a 435-foot shot following Cesar Tovar's sixth inning single as the Twins busted loose for four runs, wiping out a 3-2 California lead.

An inning later, Killebrew's 43rd of the season went into orbit. Bob Allison also homered for Minnesota.

Jim Kaat pitched a five-hitter and struck out 13 for his seventh victory this month. It ran his season's record to 16-13.

Boston, meanwhile, was victimized by light-hitting Chico Salmon, who drove in three runs with a homer and a double. Salmon started the Indians off by doubling home a run and then scoring another in the second inning. Four innings later, he lofted his second homer of the year with a man on base.

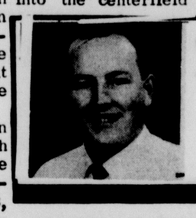
Chuck Hinton also homered and Luis Tiant went the distance for Cleveland despite Carl Yastrzemski's 43rd homer, which accounted for all three Red Sox runs.

The Red Sox trail both Minnesota and Chicago by one game in the loss column. They play the Twins the last two games of the season but can not make up the ground against the White Sox unless either Kansas City or Washington beats Chicago at least once.

Detroit stayed alive on Mickey Lolich's four-hitter, against the Yankees. Ed Mathews' sixth inning sacrifice fly drove in the game's only run against loser Mel Stottlemyre, 14-15, who allowed only three hits.

Lennie Green sliced a double to left, the first hit off Stottlemyre, opening the sixth. He raced to third on Dick McAuliffe's single to center and McAuliffe reached second on the throw to the plate. After Al Kaline was intentionally walked, Mathews' fly ball drove in the run.

The pennant race resumes today with Cleveland at Boston and California at Minnesota for day games and Chicago in Kansas City for a twi-night doubleheader. The Tigers have the day off.



Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

The two selected groups of schools differed widely. The schools with the higher ratings had a mean enrollment of 638 (ranging from 330 to 1468), they had 20 to 85 teachers, and were located in cities with populations from 2,000 to more than 100,000. The assessed valuation of the school districts ranged from $6,004,400 to $99,200,000, with the mean assessed valuation of the groups being $23,563,465.

The schools with lower ratings were all in small communities with populations from 127 to 526. They had four to nine teachers. The mean enrollment was 84 (25 to 142). The school district's assessed valuation ranged from $647,456 to $2,609,064, with a mean assessed valuation of $1,170,483.

On the basis of Dr. Cain's study, the larger schools appeared to have many advantages. They had a wider variety of sports participation, with more administrators spending more time on the programs. They made up their schedule of contests earlier, had more experienced and better educated administrators at higher pay levels, older coaches with longer experience and a higher educational level who were paid better and were retained longer, had better quality of officiating for which they paid more, and had better facilities.

Dr. Cain's dissertation offered several recommendations. These include: Schools which are unable to provide acceptable and adequate personnel and facilities which will permit a quality program of interscholastic athletics should be reorganized into units with a potential for meeting these standards.

Specific requirements for certification of interscholastic coaches should be established by the Missouri State Department of Education.

All schools that participate in interscholastic athletics should formulate a philosophy for their athletic program that is properly designed to achieve desirable educational goals.

The sportsmanship rating system for interscholastic basketball contests used by the Missouri State School Activities Association should be carefully reevaluated in all areas.

The requirements for initially becoming a licensed basketball official with the Missouri State High School Activities Association should be raised, and the association should initiate a statewide program aimed at the improvement of the quality of basketball officiating.

All schools with interscholastic programs should provide for sending cheerleaders to district and state leadership clinics.

Dr. Cain, a native of Dixon, Mo., was chairman of the department of physical education and director of athletics at Central Methodist College, Fayette, in 1964-66.

MU Leads Big Eight Rushers

KANSAS CITY -- The "mod" group so far in Big Eight Conference football has made the scene with a strong rushing defense as figures in this department mark a parallel between the ground-game crushers and the win-loss column.

Missouri, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, Oklahoma State and Kansas State are all still undefeated, and have been rather uncompromising when it comes to allowing ground passage permits. The Tigers have surrendered only 50 yards in 40 plays, a per-play mark of only 1.25 yards a try.

Almost as stingy is Oklahoma with its 1.8 allowance (53 yards in 29 attempts by Washington State). At 1.9 is Colorado's vaunted front five, giving up just 153 yards in 83 tries against Baylor and Oregon. Nebraska has allowed 120 yards so far, Oklahoma State an average of 137, and Kansas State only 155.

The marks of Missouri (50.0), Oklahoma (53.0), and Colorado (76.5) are all under the Conference's best ground defense finish in the last 18 years. And, only Oklahoma's 43.3 limitation back in 1938 stands better than either the Tigers' or Sooners' average to date.

Offensively, the honors are split three ways, with Missouri and Oklahoma stepping back to the front again. Kansas leads in passing.

Missouri, with its 285 rushing lengths, holds a wide lead over Oklahoma (211) and Nebraska (209), the only other two with averages over 200, as balanced offense appears to be "in" this year.

The Jayhawks, following preseason indications that swirled through the air in Kansas, made their aerial charge with 171 from Bob Douglass. Kansas State, figured early to be one of the team passing leaders, too, has staked a claim for second with a 161 average, while Oklahoma is third with 152.

This pass total for the Sooners lets them balance out their offense and take the total lead with an impressive 363 figure.

All Over In National But Rhubarbs

By the Associated Press

Basketballs and baseball managers take some funny bounces. . .and now Rod Reed has seen a little of both.

Reed, a former pro cager making his pitch for a baseball job with the Atlanta Braves, inadvertently touched off one of the season's zaniest rhubarbs Tuesday night at Cincinnati.

The Braves edged the Reds 4-3 for Reed's second victory in the majors. But both managers played the game under protest and neither one was around for the finish. . .because an umpire dared to change his mind.

Rookie Umpire Frank Dezelan signalled a foul tip on a pitch to Reed in the Braves' eighth, then reversed himself and called it a ball. After a hassle at home plate, Reds' skipper Dave Bristol and Atlanta pilot Billy Hitchcock were ejected, along with Cincinnati second baseman Tommy Helms.

Both managers then announced they were completing the game under protest.

The victory was the first of the season for Reed, who played for the Detroit Pistons in the National Basketball Association before giving up the court game. He pitched for the Braves' Richmond farm club until his recall early this month.

Willie Mays slammed a pair of homers, driving in three runs, Willie McCovey unloaded a 450-foot, three-run blast and Jim Hart hit a solo homer as the Giants pounded the Mets.

The Dodgers' Don Drysdale registered his 190th career victory with relief help from Ron Perranoski, matching the club record set by Dazzy Vance. Al Ferrara's two-run homer in the first inning was the big blow for Los Angeles.

Chuck Harrison's leadoff homer in the ninth lifted the Astros past the Phillies for their third straight victory.

The Cubs caught St. Louis in the ninth. Ron Santo homered to tie the score, Al Spangler doubled and Randy Hundley knocked in the winner with a two-out single. Lou Brock, who socked two homers for the NL champions, sent them ahead 7-6 with a two-run shot in the top of the ninth.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Elmer Flick of Cleveland won the American League batting title in 1905 with an average of .306? In the National League, .320 is the lowest figure to win a batting crown and that honor goes to Mickey Doyle of the 1915 Giants.

Birds' Bakken Scoring Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — John Unitas and Willie Richardson of the Baltimore Colts lead the National Football League in pass throwing and receiving respectively, according to statistics released by the league today.

Unitas had 43 completions out of 66 attempts for a 65.2 percentage and 668 yards. Richardson has 13 catches for 203 yards, a 15.6-yard-per-catch average, and two touchdowns.

Jim Bakken of St. Louis leads the scorers with 30 points on nine field goals and three extra points. Dan Reeves of Dallas leads the rushers with 183 yards on 33 attempts, a 5.5 yard average.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the greatest all 'round athlete in the American Sports history has to be Jim Thorpe? When anyone mentions the name of Jim Thorpe, the old Indian athlete, there is hardly ever an argument. Thorpe, who came out of Carlisle College as one of the world's greatest gridiron players, went on to star on the track and field and was named the greatest athlete in the world by the King of Sweden, during the 1912 Olympic games. Then Thorpe turned to professional football and baseball. He was good enough to win a niche in anybody's hall of fame on the professional gridiron and was good enough to spend several years in the major leagues. Thorpe could run, toss the weights, smash a football line, bash a home run, box with the best amaterus, wrestle with the pros and do virtually any other athlete could do and do it better. I don't think there's an argument in the world when one names Jim Thorpe as the greatest all-round athlete the world has ever known, or will know.

Arkansas State Meets Tennessee Tech Saturday

JONESBORO -- After an astounding 21-8 upset victory over Western Michigan Saturday night, the Indians of Arkansas State University have a week to get ready for the Golden Eagles of Tennessee Tech.

ASU should be in top physical condition for the contest, but the Indians must avoid a mental letdown. ASU's opening victory over WMU represented a win over one of the most powerful teams to ever appear in Kays Stadium, while T-Tech is not that well known.

However, the Eagles have always been a nemesis for the Tribe, winning 10 ot 15 outings between the two teams. Last year, ASU won 49-13 in a season opener after squeaking by the Eagles 12-7 at Cookeville the previous year.

The Indians exhibited an explosive offense and a rugged, although sometimes erring, defense against WMU. Steve Gankiewicz, the pint-sized fullback at 190 pounds, is again expected to be a big gun in the ASU offense.

Against the Broncos last week, Gankiewicz, who was the Southland Conference's leading scorer last season, carried for 163 yards and three touchdowns in 25 attempts.

The Indians were out-weighed 31 pounds per man in the defensive line, yet ASU's hitter proved so tough that the Broncos went to the air to move the ball. The Indian pass defense made a few mistakes but made up for them with three interceptions.

Along with Gankiewicz, ASU has the passing duo of Tim Keane to Gerald Jumper and the running of halfbacks Frank McGuigan and Benny Winford.

Tennessee Tech builds its offense around quarterback Dale Swain and fullback Larry Schreiber. Swain, a senior, has two outstanding pass receivers in halfback Terry Parks, who is also a fine runner, and big end David Hudson, also a blocking terror.

Schreiber was the Eagles' top ground gainer last year, rushing for 591 yards. Rounding out the backfield is halfback Jo Raleigh.

Last week Tennessee Tech stopped rival Murray State 22-21. Tech jumped out to a 14-0 first quarter lead before Murray fought back.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Shoeless Joe Jackson was not the first big name ball player to play without shoes? As a matter of record, Hans Wagner played several games in his stocking feet when he first came up to the Pittsburgh Pirates. He couldn't find shoes to fit.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Stoney McGlynn, former pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, once pitched a doubleheader for the Red Birds and won both contests, 1 to nothing? While with the Milwaukee team in 1909, McGlynn won 14 straight shutouts.

Our Sports Night desk will be open from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. each Friday night and Saturday morning during the prep gridiron football season.

All coaches are reminded to call in their game during that time in order to keep receiving their complimentary paper.

Big-Big-Big

Mike Moropoulos, Santa Barbara High School line coach displays a big grin as he weighs in Bob ("Big Man") Pointer, 18, starting tackle for the Dons football team. Bob tipped the scales at 447-pounds, without pads. He is 6-feet, 1½-inches tall. (AP Wirephoto).

The tournament will be limited to the first 100 players or 50 teams. Call or write Tudor Willis, 134 W. Main St. in Malden for entry procedure.

The tournament will get underway at 9 a.m. with a shotgun start. Practice rounds may be played Oct. 5-7.

DID YOU KNOW -- that in the true sense of the word as we know it today, Bobby Jones was the first and only man to capture the grand slam title of golf? That's the National Open and Amateur and the British Open and Amateur. Bobby captured those four crowns back in 1930 and then retired from active competition except for his own meet in the Masters Open. But back in 1916, when it was not so common for Gold pros or amateurs to run around the world playing gold, Chick Evans of Chicago was rated the Grand Slam champion of his era when he won both the National Open and Amateur titles. Chick also won the Western Amateur four times in a row and was one of the greatest golfers of his day.

Big Red In St. Louis Sunday To Take On Lions

ST. LOUIS -- Jim Bakken, now a permanent member of the NFL record - setting club, will be faced by the man he succeeded, Garo Yepremian of the Detroit Lions, when the Cardinals and Detroit tangle here Sunday.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1:05 p.m. (CDT) at Civic Center Busch Memorial Stadium.

Now 1-1 after their 28-14 triumph over Pittsburgh, and sharing the lead in the Century Division with the Steelers and Giants, the Cardinals will face a Detroit club that is a surprising 1-0-1 after a 17-17 tie with Green Bay and a 31-14 victory over Cleveland.

With rookie Mel Farr and Tom Nowatzke leading the way, the Lions pace the NFL in rushing. Milt Plum, who has regained the starting quarterback berth, hit 16 of 27 passes for 229 yards against Cleveland, and has a two-game total of 23 completions in 44 attempts for 270 yards.

The Big Red defense slammed the door on a Pittsburgh attack that had rolled up almost 400 yards and 41 points against the Chicago Bears, halting the Steelers with 94 yards rushing.

In addition, the Cardinals intercepted three passes (two by Pat Fischer, one by Bobby Williams) and forced the Steelers into five fumbles, recovering three of them.

Bakken, having the greatest day of his career, notched seven field goals in nine tries, both NFL records. Yepremian, the Lions' left-footed soccer-style kicker had the previous record of six field goals, established a year ago. Yepremian and Lou Michaels, then of Pittsburgh, shared the attempts mark of eight.

Bakken's previous highs were five field goals, against Philadelphia in 1964, and seven attempts, against the Atlanta Falcons last year.

In addition, Bakken achieved his records with two different centers and two different holders. Bob DeMarco was the center and Larry Wilson the holder for the first five tries (four good), and, after injuries to them, Irv Goode became the center and Bobby Joe Conrad the holder for the final four attempts (three good).

"I knew what the record was," Bakken said, "and I hoped I'd have a shot at it. But when the time came, I tried to forget about the record and just concentrate on kicking the ball. The centers and the holders did great jobs, and all I had to do was remember to kick it straight."

Bakken totaled 22 points for the day and his 30 for two games gives him the early NFL lead. His 22 points were the most ever in one game for a kicker, and his 19 apperances on the field are another apparent record. The Wisconsin blond had the nine field goal tries, nine kickoffs and a conversion.

The Cardinal kicker is one game away from another NFL record. He has booted field goals in 13 consecutive games, one short of the NFL standard of 14 established by Cleveland's Lou Groza back in the 1950-51 seasons.

Offensive line injuries forced some juggling during the game, but the protection held up well enough so that Jim Hart was not dumped at all during the game and the running attack averaged 3.9 yards a carry. With Ken Gray sidelined by bruised ribs, Goode started at left guard, DeMarco at center and Rick Sortun at right guard. When DeMarco went out, Goode shifted to center and Dave O'Brien moved in at left guard.

Our Field hospital unit was bivouacked under canvas on the dusty plains of California's Hunter Liggett Military Reservation. One sergeant had his Pekingese with him, and the pooch always hit the breakfast chow line looking for a handout. This particular morning the mess sergeant served that perennial unfavorite -- creamed chipped beef on toast. The first man in the chow line put his piece of toast on the ground in front of the little dog and daintily poured the chipped beef on it.

Roars of approval thundered from everyone in line as the pup sniffed at the mixture uncertainly, then turned his back on it and with his hind leg covered it up with dirt.

Frank Holby

In North Africa I was attached to a headquarters company as liaison officer for the commanding general. The youngest lieutenant colonel in the outfit, I was quite proud of my duties and rank. One day I roared up on my motorcycle and parked it on the steps of the building I overheard one ask the other, "Who's that?"

"Highest-paid errand i boy in North Africa," was the reply.

Bridge Recommendations Sent to Federal Officials

CARUTHERSVILLE - Recommendations by the Memphis office of the U. S. corps of engineers on the Missouri state highway department's revised plans for the Mississippi River bridge at Caruthersville were forwarded to federal officials in Vicksburg, Miss., and Washington, D. C. Major James A. West, deputy district engineer of the corps of Engineers' Memphis office, the unit's recommendations were to be mailed over the signature of Col. James Vivian, District Engineer at Memphis.

Major West said he could not divulge the contents of the recommendations, which were mailed first to the Mississippi River Commission office at Vicksburg and will then be mailed directly to the Corps of Engineers' Chief Engineer in the Washington, D. C. The recommendations first went to the Mississippi River Commission as a matter of formality and for information, he said.

The Memphis office's recommendations dealt with recent protests by barge line firms on the Missouri highway department's plans for the proposed span across the Mississippi to link the Bootheel with western Tennessee. The barge lines, speaking through the Mississippi Valley Association, protested the State Highway Department's proposal to build a 900-foot span on the river's downward side, contending that such length should be increased to 1200 feet.

The Memphis office's recommendations, once reviewed by the chief engineer of the corps of engineers, will be sent to the commandant of the U. S. coast guard for what is presumed to be the final decision in the matter.

The coast guard's recent transfer to the newly created department of question as to which indivual will ultimately make the final decision. It is possible that Alas S. Boyd, the new secretary of transportation, will make the decision rather than the coast guard's commanding officer.

Major West said he could give no estimate as to when a decision would be reached.

If the Missouri highway department's plans are rejected new plans will have to be drawn, resulting in a delay and additional costs will be tacked to the original estimates of $15 million by for the span.

U.S. Grand Jury to Probe Crime in Southeast Missouri

KENNETT - The United States district attorney in St. Louis is planning to extend a grand jury investigation of criminal activities into Southeast Missouri the Dunklin County Democrat reported.

The U.S. Attorney, Veryl Riddle, would give little detail as to what the federal grand jury plans to look into nor would he say what areas of Southeast Missouri will be placed under investigation.

Riddle, appointed U.S. Attorney for the eastern half of Missouri, is a former practicing attorney from Dunklin County.

He said he could not publicly disclose at this time just what areas of Southeast Missouri will be investigated for fear it would open "dry up our sources of information."

Teacher Shortage Not So Severe

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - The State Department of Education announced that the teacher shortage in Missouri is not as bad as it was last year.

Commissioner Hubert Wheeler said that a survey made in August indicated the shortage would still be about the same as last year but another check this month showed there were fewer vacancies now than at this time last year.

The survey indicated about 178 vacancies exist today compared with 473 at this time last year.

Included in the investigation by the new grand jury will be organized crime in the St. Louis area as wellas out-state regions. To aid in the investigation, the Justice Department has provided assistance from its Organized Crime Division in Washington.

Racketeering and gambling will also be targets of the grand jury, Riddle pointed out, but without any more specific indications as to areas in question.

The grand jury was impelled by Federal Judge James H. Meredith, another former Southeast Missourian. It has met for a brief orientation and is slated to begin its investigation sometime during October.

The federal grand jury had the power to investigate in any field where federal laws may have been violated. When there are sufficient grounds for prosecution where a violation has been found then an indictment is returned and federal charges filed.

Riddle was appointed to the federal post last spring. At that time he pledged full and vigorous law enforcement in the Eastern District of Missouri.

Not only he he pleased to attack organized crime that operates on a large scale, Riddle also stated he would campaign against unorganized crime.

Rapid-Transit Train Service Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department is postponing until the first of the year the start of three-hour rail passenger service between Washington and New York.

Service had been set to start Oct. 29.

The system involves the use of self-propelled electric cars on the 250-mile trip, but not enough of these are ready, the department announced after a meeting with spokesmen for the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Budd Co., manufacturer of the cars.

In addition, the announcement said, performance and reliability tests must be completed.

The federal government is providing $11.5 million for the project while the Pennsylvania Railroad is contributing $45 million.

RAISIN RICE PUDDING

- ½ cup raw rice
- 3 cups diluted MILNOT (1½ cups MILNOT and 1½ cups water)
- ½ cup seedless raisins
- ⅓ cup butter or margarine
- 3 eggs, beaten
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg

Mix rice with 2 cups of diluted MILNOT in the top of a double boiler. Cook over hot water until tender. Add raisins and butter. Combine eggs, sugar, vanilla, salt, remaining MILNOT. Then stir into a greased 1½-quart baking dish. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Set in a pan half full of warm water. Bake in slow oven at 325° for 30 minutes or until set.

You'll love cooking with MILNOT. Same rich taste as milk or cream, because it takes almost a quart of milk to make one can of MILNOT! Yet it costs half what you pay for whole milk.

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Several ladies have asked me to repeat some of my recipes of the past, and so gentlemen, if you will bear with me this week, I will at least bring some enjoyment to your table.

This one is new and simply delicious!!

BROCCOLI SURPRISE

Cook and drain one pkg. of frozen broccoli pieces. Melt ½ of a stick of oleo, and pour over broccoli. Melt another ½ stick of oleo with ½ lb. of Velveeta cheese.

In layers in a casserole, put broccoli, then cheese mixture, and ritz crackers, (crush fifteen Ritz crackers), until all is used up. Then bake at 350, until done.

Just ate this at bridge club and was extremely good and sooo easy!

Tuna or Chicken Chow Mein

Use either 1-7 ounce can of tuna which you have rinsed and drained in cold water, or use two fryers you have boiled and boned.

Mix together in a large casserole:

Your chicken or tuna
1 can of golden mushroom soup diluted with ¼ can of water
1 cup of diced celery
¼ cups of minced green onions
¼ lb. of cashews
1 three oz. can of chow mein noodles (reserve 1/2 cup of the noodles for your top)

Mix and top with noodles and bake at 325, for 40 minutes. Don't let it get too brown and dry out.

What a different type salad and again soo good!

Kraut Relish

Mix:

1 no. 303 can of undrained chopped kraut
1 cup of chopped green onions
1 cup of diced celery
1 can of chopped pimento

Bring this to a boil. Pour ½ cup of vinegar and 1 cup of sugar over this. Cover and let age in ice box for 24 hours.

I always think sugar cookies are tastless, believe me these are not.

SUGAR COOKIES

Cream 2/3 cup of butter with 1 cup sugar
Add 1 egg
Mix in 2 cups of flour
½ ts. salt
½ tsp. of baking soda
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix well and chill. Roll out thin, slice and bake at 350, for 10-12 minutes.

These are all in for the first time round, so get out the rollin' pins ladies and for a change use them on the counter top instead of the husband top.

The enrollment is reported by officials to be greater than the total number of students in 15 other Missouri public and private junior and senior colleges and it is expected it will be greater than 24 such schools next year when sophomores are enrolled.

BOSTON (AP) — A Somerville, Mass., woman gave birth to a healthy girl in Massachusetts General Hospital although the mother had been in a coma for 170 days. Dr. Barry G. Aranson, the attending physician, attributed the normal delivery to extraordinary care by the hospital staff. The woman, Mrs. Shirley May Sweency, 36, had suffered a cardiovascular accident and collapsed nearly six months earlier.

Stamps In The News

EUGENE O'Neill, winner of four Pulitzer Prizes and a Nobel Prize for literature, will be the first American playwright to be honored with a U.S. stamp.

The $1 O'Neill stamp, of the "Prominent Americans" series will be issued Oct. 16 at New London, Conn., his boyhood home. The design features a portrait of O'Neill based on a photograph which captures his characteristic brooding mood. The stamp will be printed in dark purple.

Across the top of the verticle stamp is "Eugene O'Neill." In the same type beneath the photo is "Playwright."

O'Neill was born Oct. 16, 1888, in New York — 79 years prior to the issuance of his special stamp. He died in Boston Nov. 27, 1953.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New London, Conn. 06320. The envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First-Day Covers Eugene O'Neill Stamp." Requests must be postmarked no later than Oct. 16.

This year's ASDA (American Stamp Dealers' Association) Postage Stamp Show to be held Nov. 17-19 in New York will be a special treat for first-day cover collectors.

The show will feature first-day sales of three new issues. One will be a new U.S. 5-cent regular postage stamp, a 5-cent United Nations commemorative showing a motif from a stained glass window by Marc Chagall, and a special U.N. art presentation sheet of six 5-cent stamps that combine to show the entire Chagall window.

The Israeli Ministry of Posts has announced it has released a set of 12 envelopes with official post office cancellations from occupied territories.

According to word from the Israel Philatelic Agency in New York, the envelopes have cancellations from the following cities — Jerusalem, Jericho, Gaza, Bethlehem, Hebron, Ramalla, Nablus, Jenin, Tul Karm, Rafiah, Kahn Yunis and Deir el Balah.

Each of the 12 envelopes is affixed with a 15-agorot definitive stamp, the official seal of the Ministry of Posts, plus the cancellation. The cancellations have the names of the cities inscribed in Hebrew, English and Arabic. All, except the Jerusalem cancellation, include the word "ZAHAL" — the Hebrew name of the Israel Defense Forces.

This unusual set of envelopes is available at your local stamp dealer or you may write directly to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

DOG OF THE YEAR, according to an annual contest sponsored by a dog food company, is a 180-lb. St. Bernard named Mijo, from Anchorage, Alaska. Mijo swam to the aid of her 13-year-old mistress, shown here. When a mud slide plunged the girl into chin-deep water, her feet stuck in the mire. As Mijo reached her the girl seized the dog's collar and the dog pulled her free of the mud and towed her to a nearby bank. For her heroism, Mijo's awards include the Ken-L Ration gold medal, a gold-plated leash, a $1,000 U.S. Savings bond, a year's supply of dog food, and a dinner in her honor in Chicago.

COED FASHIONS FOR CAMPUS and date-time are perter than ever this time around. Hit the campus in the all-wool plaid mini-jumper (left) with never a worry about peeping petticoats. It comes with its own plaid-trimmed panties. A-line in shape, it closes with tiny brass hooks and eyes. The dress to meet "him" in (right) is empire in line with a self-belt to mark the place. The skirt flares out beneath. In all-wool gabardine with tiny sleeves and a stand-up collar, i. comes in paprika citron and grass green. These designs are by Craig/Craely.

Ann Landers

Screaming Mothers Need Care

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Ashamed Screaming Mother" had special meaning for me because my own mother was the champion screamer of all times.

A child never forgets when a mother says, "I wish you had died when you were a baby. You have been a terrible disappointment to me." Or-- "You ruined my life. I wish I had never had you." It's unbelievable the soul-searing things that can come out when a nut begins to yell her head off.

My mother's favorite expression after one of her screaming fits was, "I love you so much I would walk into the ocean to save you." Since we lived 1,000 miles from the nearest ocean I could see no chance of her proving her love in this dramatic manner. I once said to her, "If you love me so much why don't you just treat me a little better and stop saying such awful things?"

I'm a grown woman now and my mother has been in a mental institution for many years but I can truthfully say I have little or no compassion for her. I have memories. Please get this vital message across to all screaming mothers everywhere. It could save their youngsters a lot of grief. -- ONE WHO SURVIVED

Dear One: It is difficult to get ANY message across to a mother who would say to her child, "I wish you had died when you were a baby," and then, minutes later, offer to walk into the ocean to prove her love. You might just as well try to bore a hole through a brick wall with a toothpick.

Your mother's wide emotional swings indicate that she was a very sick woman. What I would like to tell all screaming mothers everywhere is this: When you feel yourself slipping out of control, get professional help. Don't wait until you slide over the edge. It may be too late.

Dear Ann Landers: Don't give me heck. Just tell me what to do. I am 19 now and have grown up a lot these past three years.

When I was a junior in high school there was a gad. If a fellow liked a girl he gave her a street sign. I now have in the basement of our home signs which read Yield, Slow, Dangerous Curve, Stop, Go, No Passing Allowed, and Soft Shoulder.

I would like to take these signs back but I don't know where they belong. Also, I don't want to get into trouble. Will you please tell me what to do? -- CHANGED SIGNALS.

Dear Changed: Telephone the police and ask if they will send someone from the Traffic Department to your home to pick up the signs, or if they would prefer that the signs be brought to the nearest station.

Be aware that you are in possession of property which you do not rightfully own. I am hopeful that the police will be lenient since you are volunteering to return the signs.

And, by the way, I hope no lives were lost because some fun-loving kid removed a sign which was placed at a critical spot for a very good reason.

Confidential to Want To Help: You are not a physician and neither am I. It is a fact that some skin eruptions are caused by emotional problems, but I would not attempt to diagnose the case and neither should you. Suggest that your friend see a specialist.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Report From Washington
Stuart Symington

Poverty Organization Told To Shape Up or Shut Down

Editor's Note: Senator Symington this week is completing his current trip abroad in connection with his work as a member of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees. The past few days, he has been in Israel, other parts of the Mediterranean area and is returning to Washington the end of this week by way of England. In his absence, this report was prepared by his office.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM EXTENDED -- The House and Senate have agreed on a two-year extension of the food stamp program. Funds are authorized in the amount of $200 million for this fiscal year and $225 million for next year to help needy persons obtain a healthy diet.

The food stamp program permits a family to purchase $16 worth of designated surplus food for $10 worth of stamps, with the Federal government paying the difference.

RENT FUNDS RESTORED BY SENATE -- The Senate has approved the $40 million budget request for the 1968 rent supplement program that has been eliminated earlier by the House. The urban program funds are included in the independent offices appropriations bill. Differences between the two chambers will be worked out in a Senate-House conference.

CANNED HAM IMPORTS -- Forty-five Senators, including Sen. Symington, have urged the Commissioner of Customs to take immediate steps to counteract action by the Common Market which would result in undercutting the U.S. canned ham domestic market.

The Common Market has authorized an export subsidy that would amount to approximately 50 cents on a two-pound can of ham. The Senators have asked the Commissioner to impose a countervailing duty to offset this export subsidy set by the Common Market.

PROGRESS ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN -- Opportunities for women to contribute to progress in the fields of education and fairer employment practices continued to expand in 1966, according to the Third Annual Report on the Status of Women.

The efforts and achievements of Missouri groups are pointed out in this report compiled by the Interdepartmental Committee and Citizens' Advisory Council on the Status of Women. They include the successful bid by the Missouri Commission on the Status of Women to secure an amendment to the Fair Employment Practices law to rule out employment discrimination by sex.

PORTAGEVILLE -- The six-county organization which has administered poverty programs for over two years in Southeast Missouri got the word in no uncertain terms--shape up or shut down.

The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation learned that only two programs will funded in November for the coming year and the budget will shrink from about $2.5 million to $600,000.

Wayne Thomas, regional administrator for Community Action Programs, told DAEOC that the administrative organization in the six county program must be completely revamped before the full $600,000 allocation will be approved.

An estimated $100,000 in poverty funds will be granted DAEOC, nearly 80 per cent of it for administrative costs. The remainder will go for Home Health Aids in Stoddard County and possible the After School Study Center in Kennett.

The remainder of the $600,000 allocation will come only when DAEOC "has put its house in order," Thomas told the group in Portageville.

Thomas said no other programs, including Neighborhood Service Centers, will be refunded immediately and suggested that personnel be notified of this.

In order to get the "mess" straightened out, regional officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity have suggested -- parctically ruled--that a management consultant firm be employed.

At the meeting Monday night were three regional OEO officials, Thomas, Assistant Director Dean Lupkey, and Field Representative John Wandeless. Lupkey, a key man on Regional Director Don Thomason's staff ovserved and did not take part in the meeting.

Thamas gave the presentation based on the findings of a 16-man evaluating team that was in this area in July to observe the DAEOC operations.

"We found some very serious problems," Thomas said quite frankly. He said that instead of operating a sic-county program, DAEOC has had 24 separate programs (referring to the Community Action Agencies.) "No one knows who has the authority now the responsibility." A director is hired to do a job but not given the authority to carry out day-to-day operations without approval of the board. Then, when a problem arises or a decision is to be made there is nobody who knows whether it should be decided by the CAA, the county board or the DAEOC board, Thomas pointed out.

The director has no means to hire and discipline the personnel who must carry out the programs, he continued. He has a weak position with no authority.

In addition, Thomas stated, it is a nice system on paper but nobody seems to pay any attention to the paper. There is also a lack of training.

The Neighborhood Service Centers, he went on, are going backwards. Instead of referring people to agencies, agencies are referring them to the Neighborhood Service Centers to provide taxi service. People are hauled to get groceries, to the doctor and many other places and the real job is not being done.

The evaluators did recommend that the six-county organization be maintained rather than splitting them up in any way. Currently the organization covers Pemiscot, Dunklin, New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott and Mississippi counties. He said there would be no advantage in dividing it up.

This virtually killed hope of a new three-county organization being formed in Pemiscot, Dunklin and Stoddard counties. The Bootheel Economic Encouragement Program (BEEP) had hopes to take over administration of poverty programs in the three counties.

Thomas said there is no doubt but that the DAEOC staff must be rebuilt completely. Some persons may lose their jobs, others shift jobs and some stay where they are. But a new personnel system with a personnel officer who can handle these problems is a must. The personnel must be placed on a merit system for hiring and advancement.

The regional CAP director was blunt when he said, "Mr. Wright (executive director) is not the man for a $2.5 million program. A smaller program, maybe, but not that large."

For a program the size of the one in Southeast Missouri a top-notch man is needed, Thomas said. This is something the management consultants can do -- recruit nation-wide to find the right man. Then the board must give him the authority to carry out the program if it is to be successful.

Thomas had the floor for nearly two hours, first outlining the OEO recommendations and then answering questions.

He said there is a long list of management problems, most of which will have to be resolved by the consultants. The main thing, he stated, is that a more effective administration must be set up as the current system is not getting the job done.

The head of CAP programs in an 11-state area went on to say programs in the Delta area have not been up to par. They will have to seek a new direction and more effective means to achieve the goals of the war on poverty.

Current programs, including the Neighborhood Service Centers, are slated to end November 30th. After that only the program in Stoddard County is assured continuation with the study center in Kennett a possibility. The administration of DAEOC will continue to function with federal funds but the main task will be to "get its house in order."

The Head Start program for pre-school children and the Homemaker Aides will be continued but under the sponsorship of the University of Missouri -- not DAEOC.

Thomas said if the reorganization of DAEOC is successful, it is likely that Head Start will be back under its direction by the fall of 1968.

If the re-organization of administrative procedures is carried out, OEO will find additional DAEOC programs as they are capable of handling them with hopes of the entire $600,000 allocation in DAEOC's hands within six months after the next component year has passed.

The DAEOC board voted to make an effort to employ a consulting firm as soon as possible with hope of getting things "shaped up" before the end of November. The main objective is to keep from having to close the Neighborhood Service Centers, considered the key link between the administration and the poor people of the area. There are 24 such centers in the area.

Thomas said the OEO could consider refunding these centers only if DAEOC is well on its way to meeting the recommendations by early November.

Hope for such an accomplishment, in view of the studies the consulting firms myst make, is very slight and one official said it would probably be Frebruary before such progress will be made.

A letter with all of the detailed recommendations by the regional office will be sent out very soon, Thomas said. The report of the evaluation team will not be made public as it is considered "administratively confidential" because it quotes a great deal of hear-say comments made to the evaluators.

If You Were the Judge

Horseburgers Okay For Self Consumption

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While the automobile was largely responsible for the disappearance of the horse, the authorities pinned at least part of the blame on Carl the butcher. While inspecting his shop, several police officers found a batch of hamburgers stacked in his ice box that were made of horsemeat.

Carl was arrested and charged with possessing unadulterated hamburgers, for the purpose of sale, in violation of the law.

"There's no proof that I intended to sell the burgers," Carl objected in court. "The fact is, I made them for myself and my family. We like horseburgers."

"It's a good alibi," responded the district attorney, "but it won't stand up. If Carl and his family had to eat all those horseburgers, they'd stop talking and start neighing. Obviously, they were for sale as charged."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you trot Carl off to jail?

This is how the judge ruled: Carl went free. The judge held that it is not against the law for a person to manufacture meat products from horsemeat if it's for his own use. And, in this case, concluded the judge, there was insufficient proof that Carl had made the patties for sale.

Dexter Makes Labor Survey

DEXTER - An effort to make a labor survey of the community is being started this week by the Chamber of Commerce and its industrial committee.

The effort is being made with special emphasis at this time because of "feelers" this week from an industry, seeking a site location, the representatives of which visited Dexter early this week. But the industrial representatives asked immediately for an up to-date labor survey, mainly seeking prospective men employees.

The Chamber of Commerce hopes to secure at least 600 to 800 names and address and other information on prospective employees from this immediate area.

Forms are being prepared and will be distributed through the schools, asking the parents to fill out the forms sent to them by the students. Additional forms will be supplied the students, so, if the parents know of additional persons who might want employment here, they may fill out one of the survey forms for them.

Forms will also be supplied to local industries, which mainly employ women, asking them to fillout one of the survey forms for their husbands, if their husbands would be available for employment.

Local barber shops will also be supplied with the labor survey forms and asked to contact persons, who, though employed elsewhere, often return to Dexter and might be available for employment here.

It is expected also that a small booth will be set up at the forthcoming Stoddard County Fair, where persons may fill out one of the labor survey forms if they desire.

This, it was emphaized, is an all-out community-wide effort and could be of lasting value, not only to Dexter, but to communities throughout the entire county. Results of the survey will not only be available for the industry now considering Dexter as a possible site, but for other industrial development work, as well, it was pointed out.

All persons, whether they are now employed or not, are urged to fill out one of the labor survey forms. And, if persons elsewhere are known about, and it is known that they would be pleased to return to Dexter for employment, then a form can be filled out for them, too, it was pointed out.

WASHINGTON (AP)— Creation of a senior service corps for elderly persons who want to work in community improvement projects was urged by Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo.

In a statement to a Senate subcommittee, Long supported a pending bill to help senior citizens whom he said want to be active but are not given the chance.

Such persons could work in libraries and public schools, help homebound and ill mothers, and work on park and street improvements and clean - up and paint programs, he said.

Under the proposed legislation, Long said, "citizens will be paid for their efforts. They will know they can do the job and they will get the satisfaction of helping others while helping themselves."

In 1894, President Grover Cleveland proclaimed amnesty for persons convicted of polygamy.

In 1904, a woman was arrested for smoking a cigarette on Fifth Avenue in New York.

In 1939, after 19 days of stubborn resistance, the defenders of Warsaw surrendered to the Germans.

In 1950, former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis was defeated by Ezzard Charles at Yankee Stadium after a 15-round decision.

Ten years ago, members of the Baghdad Pact agreed to expand the pact's program to meet the threat of Communist subversion in the Middle East.

Five years ago, more than 400 died in the flash floods around Barcelona, in Spain.

One year ago, two U.S. Marine planes bombed a friendly South Vietnamese village by mistake, killing 28 and wounding 17.

Rolla Center Counsels On Fallout Shelters

ROLLA -- People protected by adequately constructed and stocked fallout shelters would have a good chance of surviving the radiation effects of a nuclear blast.

How to include such shelters in all new industrial, educational and office buildings is a job of the University of Missouri at Rolla professional development center and 49 others like it in the United States. This center sends a team of teachers to Missouri towns to advise architects and engineers on shelter construction in public buildings.

The team, sponsored by the office of civil defense of the army, studies architectural building plans and recommends a rearrangement of the design to cost. In most cases, a specifically planned basement as to size, location and wall thickness, will provide an adequate shelter.

The team conducts classes in Missouri towns on fallout shelter analysis.

The UMR center was started last year and has entered wide-scale service this year. The team has aided in the construction plans of fallout shelters in 23 new buildings. Among these are the proposed University City library and the Sisters of the Pallottine Society Convent in Riverview. The team is meeting with the St. Louis city school board and the St. Louis city architects and engineers on the inclusion of fallout shelters in St. Louis buildings.

According to Prof. Robert F. Davidson, director of the UMR program, the nation needs about 200 million more fallour shelters in order to provide protection for every citizen. These shelters must be conveniently placed not only in residencies, but in places of work for the safety of all.

Population Tops 198 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau Monday estimated the U.S. resident population at 198,065,000 as of Aug. 1, up 202,000 from a month earlier and 10.5 per cent above the 179,323,175 persons counted in the 1960 census.

American families today are using almost twice as much hot water as they did 10 years ago.

Employment High in Bootheel

Employment has remained at a high level in Southeast Missouri with an increase of 160 employes in Butler county in three months, the state division of commerce and industrial development reports.

The cotton crop is six percent below last year and 35 per cent below the average year because of unfavorable weather. Soybeans have been planted to replace acreage lost in cotton, and the corn crop is expected to be one of the best in recent years in Southeast Missouri.

Under commercial construction the agency notes a Ramada Inn being built at Cape Girardeau will have the first 100 units completed this year and an additional 148 units completed in 1968. The motel will have convention facilities to seat about 900.

Florsheim Shoe Company will begin construction of a factory at Cape Girardeau which will employ 350-400.

St. Joe Lead Company dedicated its newest facility, the Fletcher mine and mill. The mine has a capacity of 5,000 tons of ore a day.

A new 35-bed hospital at St. Genevieve will be completed in December, employing 70. All equipment will be adequately sized to permit expansion of the hospital to 70-80 beds without change or replacement.

Bankers and savings and loan companies indicated loan applications for new homes were far below normal the first quarter of the year. They expect the remainder of the year to show an increase but not to exceed the boom year of 1965.

Retail sales continue to climb in the area, with Cape Girardeau nowing an increased volume of $1,154,392.66 over 1966.

Lake development in the area has increased. Seventy-five per cent of the tourists come from other parts of the state, and many retired persons come from other states. Increased tourism has been a major factor for increased economy in Southeast Missouri, the agency reported.

The agency said the economy of the Cape Girardeau area should experience a continuing, steady growth because of commercial construction, increased volume of retail sales, small manufacturing and tourism.

The Bootheel portion, however, is experiencing a downward trend because of the loss of cotton. It is expected that soybeans will be the number one crop this year and, along with a good corn crop, will somewhat offset the loss in cotton.

Comparison of local business conditions in Bootheel towns durand April, May and June of 1967 showed:

Charleston--total bank deposits up 17.4 per cent, electric current use up 5.9 per cent, telephones in service up 3.1 per cent, water meters in service unchanged and gas meters in service up .7 per cent.

Dexter--real estate sales down 13 per cent, total bank deposits up 10.8 per cent, postal receipts up 3.7 per cent, electric current use up 10.6 per cent, telephones in service up 7.7 per cent, water meters in service up 1.3 per cent and gas meters in service up 4.5 per cent.

New Madrid--real estate sales down 33.3 per cent, value of property sold down 33.7 per cent, total bank deposits down 8.3 per cent, postal receipts up 10.3 per cent, electric current use up 12.3 per cent, telephones in service up 7.9 per cent, water meters in service unchanged and gas meters in service up 12.9 per cent.

Condition of Engineer Is Satisfactory

CHAFFEE--Louis Gilmore, 51, Frisco railroad engineer, is reported to be in a satisfactory condition at the railroad hospital in St. Louis from a gunshot wound in the neck.

He was struck by a bullet from a gun fired at a freight train in St. Louis county at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

The bullet entered his neck on the right side about two inches above the collarbone and came out beneath the left shoulder blade. Had the bullet's path been one fourth of an inch away on either side the wound would have been fatal.

St. Louis police took three youths into custody who said they had been shooting at boxcars. One had in his possession a rifle with a telescopic sight.

State Park Resort Plan Gets Boost

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- An engineering study released shows that Lake of the Ozarks State Park should be considered for immediate development of a major resort-lodge complex capable of handling large conventions.

Joseph Jaeger, state director of parks made the study public today. He said its recommendations will be considered by the State Park Board Oct. 2.

The study was conducted by Economics Research Associates of Los Angeles and Washington at a cost of $22,500.

It recommended a plush layout that would include 254 lodge rooms, extensive convention and conference facilities, a golf course, several restaurants and bars, a marina, health club, baths, three swimming pools, beaches, tennis courts, bowling alley, gift shop and other recreation attractions.

The first site suggested at Lake of the Ozarks State Park would be about six road miles from the Lee C. Fine airport and would be even close by helicopter, Jaeger said.

The plan would be to have the complex built and operated by private enterprise. The syndicate would have to bid successfully for a 25-year lease of the area from the State Park Board with option for an additional 25-year lease.

"The resort is designed to have a rustic and informal atmosphere," the study said, "and to take maximum advantage of the view. The resort's rates and quality are high, but somewhat below the level set by Tan-Tar-A and the Lodge of the Four Seasons"-- the two fanciest resort at Lake of the Ozarks now.

It was at Tan-Tar-A that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes arranged for last August's meeting of the Midwest Governor's Conference.

The study suggested the complex would cost $5,586,000 to build over a five-year period, with the convention and conference facilities to be made available in the third year of construction. The initial facilities would be those basic for summer vactioners.

The study also recommended that similar complexes be considered in this order for these other state parks-- either existent or planned for future reservoirs:

Pomme de Terre, Table Rock, Lake Wappapello, Meramec, Stockton, Kaysinger and Mark Twain.

Table Rock, in southwestern Missouri, was chosen earlier for construction of such a resort-conventionfacility but the plans fell through because no bidder was able to make adequate financial arrangement. The park board tried for five years to get that plan into operation.

"In view of the Lake of the Ozarks State Park's location, size and natural amenities, its surface and potential air access, and the economic benefits to be gained by the area," the study concluded, "this park was selected as the most logical site for immediate resort development."

Newspaper Ad Urges Johnson Not to Run Again

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) -- Clothing manufacturer Harry Roth, who spent $7,800 on a full-page newspaper advertisement urging President Johnson not to seek renomination, says he believes anyone running on a peace platform could win the 1968 presidential election.

In his "opening letter to the President" in New York Times, Roth said Johnson should decline to run again because the President cannot end the war in Vietnam.

Roth offered $100,000 to help select a successor to Johnson and suggested that Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., head the ticket.

Roth, reached at his Beverly Hills home, said he will "pledge $50,000 this year and $50,000 next year" for the campaign of any peace candidate Johnson would choose.

Asked if he had any personal ideas on how to end the war, Roth said, "This kind of thing is not for a clothing manufacturer. I don't know how it should be done. It should be done honorably."

"The whole problem seems to be one of foreign relations," Roth said. "And let's face it, Fulbright is the head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

Roth said he thought Johnson was "wonderful on domestic matters. But a new face or a new name, I think, will have a better chance of bringing peace."

Asked if he felt anything would be gained by the advertisement, Roth said: "To me personally, definitely. I feel that I've had a chance to do something. I'm usually a follower, not a leader. And I believe there are millions who feel as I do--that the war has got to end."

Roth is president of Louis Roth & Co. of Los Angeles and B. Kuppenheimer & Co. of Chicago.

Poison Search Narrows

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The death toll of Tijuana's mass poisoning mounted today as scientists said a pesticide found in bread may be the killer.

The pesticide, parathion, was blamed tentatively by seven U.S. chemists working at Sacramento, Calif. A spokesman said enough poison was found to kill children but not adults.

The dead— whose numbers as given by officials varied from 14 to 34— were almost all children.

The report of 34 dead came late Tuesday from Pedro Mireles Malpica, district federal attorney general. In Mexico City, the attorney general's office said it had learned officially of 18 dead.

In addition, about 250 others were being treated at hospitals and clinics.

In the grieving border city, stricken since Sunday, crying parents carried their young dead to clinics in their arms.

"The people, they keep coming. We do all we can, but there are too many," said Dr. Jorge Salas of the Red Cross clinic.

The disclosure that parathion had been discovered in bread brought release of 19 dairy officials and street milk vendors held for questioning since Monday. A ban on milk was lifted, and residents of Tijuana stopped boiling their drinking water.

Fred Roth, chief of the residual pesticide laboratory of California's Department of Agriculture, said he and six other chemists found parathion in the stomachs of two of the stricken children.

An amount of parathion smaller than an aspirin tablet would kill an average sized man, Roth said. It is widely used in agriculture, particularly on vegetable crops.

It was theorized that the liquid pesticide spilled into flour that was later made into bread in Tijuana.

Police Stop Two Incidents At Carnival

A heated exchange of name calling occurred between a group of about 15 youths Tuesday night at the Cotton Carnival.

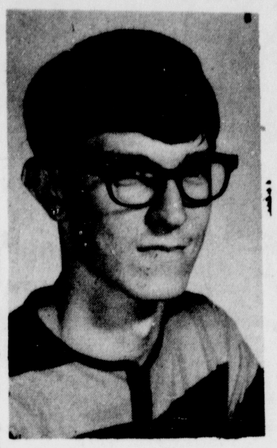
What caused the name calling incident is unknown, but the disturbance was broken up rapidly by the four policeman patroling the carnival grounds, Police Chief Arthur Bruce said. No arrests were made.

Chief Bruce and Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick received complaints Tuesday that a concession arcade at the carnival was showing a lewd movie in a coin operated machine. After investigation, the operator was forbidden to show the movie.

In other activity, six motorists were charged Tuesday with exceeding the speed limit. They are. John F. Ferrell, Sikeston; W. L. Scarbrough, 320 Wallace; Richard M. Schiferl, 702 Montgomery; William D. Williams, 909 Sikes; Shirley McCormick, 209 Crowe, and Roy D. Weichard, 223 Marian.

James R. Elliott, Bertrand, was charged at 9:40 p.m. Tuesday with running a red light on East Malone, police reported.

Rochester Baker, 224 Dixie, reported to police at 11:18 p.m. Tuesday that a fishing tackle box was taken from his car.



Gary A. Wiss

Wiss Advances To Semifinals in As U.S. Scholar

Gary A. Wiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wiss, 612 Dorothy, has been named a semi-finalist in the 1967-68 national merit scholarship program.

Wiss ranked first in his class of 246 students at the end of his junior year. At that time he had a grade point average of 3.717 out of a possible 4.

Wiss is president of the student body. He is a member of National Honor Society and a forward on the basketball team, who won all state honorable mention last year.

Wiss will attend Valparaiso University in Indiana or the University of Missouri at Rolla. He plans a career in engineering. The 14,000 semifinalists appointed throughout the nation have advanced to the second step in the competition for about 2,900 merit scholarships, valued at more than $8 million, to be awarded in 1968.

Semifinalists scored the highest in each state on the national merit scholarship qualifying test given in February. They constitute less than one per cent of the graduating secondary school seniors.

Donald E. Rice of Cape Girardeau, a student at Central high school, and Mark H. Nenninger, Cape Girardeau, a student at Notre Dame high school, also were named semi-finalists.

Rice reported that he planned to major in chemistry in college and career in that field. Nenninger reported plans to major in engineering in college and for a career in the field.

Escaped Mental Patient Caught

FULTON, Mo. (AP) -- Two Fulton police officers and two Highway Patrol troopers caught an escapee from the Fulton State Hospital today on Route C south of Fulton.

The patrol said he was armed but offered no resistance.

The escapee, William Elmer Herron, 23, was caught as he was walking down a country road after he had left a pistol and a rifle on a porch at the farm home of Ernest Schmid.

As a highway patrol car came toward him from one direction and a Fulton police car from the other, Herron held a pistol above his head.

Officers said Herron complained of being cold.

Herron took the weapons from the Leo Chapman home southeast of Fulton Tuesday. He fled in Chapman's pickup truck, which was found later at a railroad crossing on U.S. 54. He reportedly threatened another family and then ran into some nearby woods.

Herron, a native of Caruthersville, Mo., was a patient at the state school and hospital at Marshall, Mo., before coming to Fulton.

He apparently walked away from an outside paint crew Monday. The sheriff's office said he complained that he was ill and said he was going back into the hospital for medical attention.

Outdoor Activity Takes Injury Toll

Nine were given emergency treatment Tuesday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital for injuries, including one hurt in a corn picker accident.

Lloyd Miller, Lilbourn, caught hand in a corn picker; John Servatius, East Prairie, received cuts on his forehead when he struck his head on a grain elevator; Jerry Ray Newman, fell and struck chin on a chain; Charles W. Harper, Charleston, received head injury playing football; George Sutton, Matthews, stuck bean stubble in arm; Ken Lape, cut head on a bus; James S. Kidd, ran steel staple through thumb; Charles Mulcahy, burned arm when he fell on burning tree stump; Amos Gimlin, cut hand on wire while putting up a fence.

Route 77 to Chaffee Will Open Thursday

Route 77 from Route 25 at Blomeyer to Chaffee will be opened to traffic at 2 p.m. Thursday, W. D. Carney, district engineer said today.

The route has been closed to traffic to reconstruct a bypass bridge over the Cotton Belt railroad north of Chaffee, which was damaged in July of 1964.

"We wish to emphasize that motorists who drive this section of highway should exercise extreme caution, since some work will be in progress by the contractor, R. P. Stephens, and his subcontractors," Carney said.

Work remaining consists of final clean up of the project, painting of structural steel on the bridge and other miscellaneous items.

Heavy rains have slowed work on building the stretch of Interstate 55 between New Madrid and Portageville this summer and it is doubtful that it will open until in 1968, James Toft, assistant to the district construction engineer, said. Earlier completion had been planned for late fall.

Anchor Toy to Buy Building

The intention of Transogram Co. Inc. to purchase the building Anchor Toy Corp., 1620 East Malone, has been renting from the city since 1955, for $42,000 was announced by Mayor Kendall Sikes at a city council meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday at the city administrative building.

Anchor Toy Corp. is managed by Robert Henzi. It is a subsidiary of Transogram, headquartered in New York City.

After discussion among council members, City Manager W. Raymert Miller and City Attorney Manuel Drumm as to how the city could legally administer the money, a general agreement was reached. Council members indicated that the $42,000 would be used for industrial development.

Creation of a special committee to disburse the funds was discussed. Although no formal organization was set up, council members favored appointing a six-man committee to explore avenues of using the money for industrial development. Proposal of the committee should be subject to the council's approval, providing an added safeguard, Drumm said.

The committee to administer the funds would be appointed by the council and could include a representative of each band, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, a representative of the Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, and a member of the city council, Sikes suggested.

Representatives of SIDC were planning to come before the council to ask for a mill tax to raise funds for drawing industry, but this should prevent the tax proposal problems, Sikes said.

The council passed a resolution authorizing a grant agreement to accept $892,000 to assist in water and sewer improvement. The grant from the housing and urban development department was announced Sept. 11.

Forms for the grant are being prepared in the office of city consulting engineer Wm. Riddle, Dick Inman, director of Sikeston Light & Water, said.

HUD has certain provisions in the grant agreement, which allows it to reduce the grant under certain conditions. It is unlikely that the city will receive the full amount of the grant announced, Inman told the council.

An ordinance calling for bids for the paving of East Kathleen Street from Selma to Dona with 1 1/2 inches of asphalt on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutters was passed. The work will be paid by he issuance of special tax bills to property owners.

Poison Search Narrows

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The death toll of Tijuana's mass poisoning mounted today as scientists said a pesticide found in bread may be the killer.

The pesticide, parathion, was blamed tentatively by seven U.S. chemists working at Sacramento, Calif. A spokesman said enough poison was found to kill children but not adults.

The dead— whose numbers as given by officials varied from 14 to 34— were almost all children.

The report of 34 dead came late Tuesday from Pedro Mireles Malpica, district federal attorney general. In Mexico City, the attorney general's office said it had learned officially of 18 dead.

In addition, about 250 others were being treated at hospitals and clinics.

In the grieving border city, stricken since Sunday, crying parents carried their young dead to clinics in their arms.

"The people, they keep coming. We do all we can, but there are too many," said Dr. Jorge Salas of the Red Cross clinic.

The disclosure that parathion had been discovered in bread brought release of 19 dairy officials and street milk vendors held for questioning since Monday. A ban on milk was lifted, and residents of Tijuana stopped boiling their drinking water.

Fred Roth, chief of the residual pesticide laboratory of California's Department of Agriculture, said he and six other chemists found parathion in the stomachs of two of the stricken children.

An amount of parathion smaller than an aspirin tablet would kill an average sized man, Roth said. It is widely used in agriculture, particularly on vegetable crops.

It was theorized that the liquid pesticide spilled into flour that was later made into bread in Tijuana.

Police Stop Two Incidents At Carnival

A heated exchange of name calling occurred between a group of about 15 youths Tuesday night at the Cotton Carnival.

What caused the name calling incident is unknown, but the disturbance was broken up rapidly by the four policeman patroling the carnival grounds, Police Chief Arthur Bruce said. No arrests were made.

Chief Bruce and Scott county prosecuting attorney Fielding Potashnick received complaints Tuesday that a concession arcade at the carnival was showing a lewd movie in a coin operated machine. After investigation, the operator was forbidden to show the movie.

In other activity, six motorists were charged Tuesday with exceeding the speed limit. They are. John F. Ferrell, Sikeston; W. L. Scarbrough, 320 Wallace; Richard M. Schiferl, 702 Montgomery; William D. Williams, 909 Sikes; Shirley McCormick, 209 Crowe, and Roy D. Weichard, 223 Marian.

James R. Elliott, Bertrand, was charged at 9:40 p.m. Tuesday with running a red light on East Malone, police reported.

Rochester Baker, 224 Dixie, reported to police at 11:18 p.m. Tuesday that a fishing tackle box was taken from his car.

Escaped Mental Patient Caught

FULTON, Mo. (AP) -- Two Fulton police officers and two Highway Patrol troopers caught an escapee from the Fulton State Hospital today on Route C south of Fulton.

The patrol said he was armed but offered no resistance.

The escapee, William Elmer Herron, 23, was caught as he was walking down a country road after he had left a pistol and a rifle on a porch at the farm home of Ernest Schmid.

As a highway patrol car came toward him from one direction and a Fulton police car from the other, Herron held a pistol above his head.

Officers said Herron complained of being cold.

Herron took the weapons from the Leo Chapman home southeast of Fulton Tuesday. He fled in Chapman's pickup truck, which was found later at a railroad crossing on U.S. 54. He reportedly threatened another family and then ran into some nearby woods.

Herron, a native of Caruthersville, Mo., was a patient at the state school and hospital at Marshall, Mo., before coming to Fulton.

Colder Weather Slated Tonight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The coldest weather of the fall season will hit Missouri tonight.

A frost warning was issued for the northwest where the low tonight is expected to hit c near 30. Farther south, around Kansas City, scattered light frost is considered possible. In the rest of the state the temperatures are expected to be in the upper 30s and the low 40s.

The shift to colder weather came after showers hit every section of the state. Rains up to an inch and a half were common in the northern, central and west central sections.

Kansas City rainfall was 1.25, bringing the total for the month to nearly eight inches.

Couple Arrested For Growing Marijuana

AVA, Mo. (AP)— A farm in a remote area of the Missouri Ozarks in northern Douglas County was raided today and two persons were arrested for possession of marijuana, which was grown on the farm.

The raid was carried out by officers of the State Highway Patrol, the Douglas County sheriff's office and agents of U.S. Bureau of Narcotics.

Arrested were Marshall Bedford Bradley, 24, and his wife, Aurelia Jane Bradley, 45.

Sheriff Chancey Sherman said about 70 pounds of marijuana, processed and packaged for shipment, were confiscated. The value of the marijuana was estimated at about $4,650.

Federal narcotics agents said the couple would be taken to Springfield later today to appear in U.S. District Court.

Route 77 to Chaffee Will Open Thursday

Route 77 from Route 25 at Blomeyer to Chaffee will be opened to traffic at 2 p.m. Thursday, W. D. Carney, district engineer said today.

The route has been closed to traffic to reconstruct a bypass bridge over the Cotton Belt railroad north of Chaffee, which was damaged in July of 1964.

"We wish to emphasize that motorists who drive this section of highway should exercise extreme caution, since some work will be in progress by the contractor, R. P. Stephens, and his subcontractors," Carney said.

Work remaining consists of final clean up of the project, painting of structural steel on the bridge and other miscellaneous items.

Heavy rains have slowed work on building the stretch of Interstate 55 between New Madrid and Portageville this summer and it is doubtful that it will open until in 1968, James Toft, assistant to the district construction engineer, said. Earlier completion had been planned for late fall.

Anchor Toy to Buy Building

The intention of Transogram Co. Inc. to purchase the building Anchor Toy Corp., 1620 East Malone, has been renting from the city since 1955, for $42,000 was announced by Mayor Kendall Sikes at a city council meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday at the city administrative building.

Anchor Toy Corp. is managed by Robert Henzi. It is a subsidiary of Transogram, headquartered in New York City.

After discussion among council members, City Manager W. Raymert Miller and City Attorney Manuel Drumm as to how the city could legally administer the money, a general agreement was reached. Council members indicated that the $42,000 would be used for industrial development.

Creation of a special committee to disburse the funds was discussed. Although no formal organization was set up, council members favored appointing a six-man committee to explore avenues of using the money for industrial development. Proposal of the committee should be subject to the council's approval, providing an added safeguard, Drumm said.

The committee to administer the funds would be appointed by the council and could include representative of each band, a representative of the Chamber of Commerce, a representative of the Sikeston Industrial Development Corporation, and a member of the city council, Sikes suggested.

Representatives of SIDC were planning to come before the council to ask for a mill tax to raise funds for drawing industry, but this should prevent the tax proposal problems, Sikes said.

The council passed a resolution authorizing a grant agreement to accept $892,000 to assist in water and sewer improvement. The grant from the housing and urban development department was announced Sept. 11.

Forms for the grant are being prepared in the office of city consulting engineer Wm. Riddle, Dick Inman, director of Sikeston Light & Water, said.

HUD has certain provisions in the grant agreement, which allows it to reduce the grant under certain conditions. It is unlikely that the city will receive the full amount of the grant announced, Inman told the council.

An ordinance calling for bids for the paving of East Kathleen Street from Selma to Dona with 1 1/2 inches of asphalt on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutters was passed. The work will be paid by he issuance of special tax bills to property owners.

Two Women Hurt in Mishap

On highway A, a half mile east of Whitewater in lower Cape Girardeau county, two women were injured in a single car accident Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

Grace Givens, 47, Whitewater, was rounding a curve in her 1962 Ford, when a right front tire blew out, causing the vehicle to leave the road and strike an embankment.

She received cuts on her forehead. A passenger, Lorene Gregory, 22, also of Whitewater, was bruised.

Both were treated at the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
CAN THEY SALVAGE ED LONG?

In recent weeks a strange and frightening phenomenon has been taking place within the ranks of the Democratic party.

After LIFE magazine uncovered Senator "Ethical Ed" V. Long's deep and questionable financial involvement with Jimmy Hoffa's lawyer, Morris Shenker, it became apparent that Long was in political trouble. Accordingly, some of the Senator's cronies in St. Louis and Kansas City decided they must band together to salvage their sinking comrade.

Who are the friends who are trying to pull off "Operation Salvage"?

FROM ST. LOUIS

MORRIS SHENKER. Well-known criminal lawyer who through the years has represented just about every big time St. Louis police character, including hoodlum Buster Wortman. Shenker is now Jimmy Hoffa's lawyer and is Senator Long's occasional partner in the practice of law to the tune of some $140,000.

LAWRENCE CALLANAN. Two-time convict and undisputed boss of the smelly Steamfitters Union of St. Louis. Callanan is Long's principal labor booster and labor money raiser.

HAROLD GIBBONS. St. Louis Teamster boss who runs the Teamster operations in Eastern Missouri while his boss, Jimmy Hoffa, is serving time in a federal penitentiary for jury-tampering.

WILLIAM CLAY. Negro committeeman of the 26th Ward in St. Louis. Clay, formerly a militant civil rights demonstrator (as witness his jail time for contempt of court arising out of "sit-ins" at a St. Louis bank), lost some of his militancy upon becoming a paid "consultant" to the all-white Steamfitters Union.

FROM KANSAS CITY

ALEX PRESTA. Convicted of bootlegging during the Prohibition Era, Presta heads the remnants of the old Binaggio faction in Kansas City's North End. (Binaggio was slain, gangland style, in 1950.)

State Senator JASPER BRANCATO. Presta's political ally, Brancato is Senator Long's official greeter when the Senator comes to Kansas City. While the Missouri Senate is in session, Brancato functions to defeat any measure which would improve law enforcement in Kansas City or otherwise modernize Kansas City Government.

State Representative WILLIAM ROYSTER. A behind-the-scenes operator in the Missouri House of Representatives, Rep. Royster sponsors such "high-minded" measures as those which would loosen up enforcement of Missouri's liquor laws, the "branding-iron" bill which would have given the Kansas City political machines greater control over Kansas City elections, etc.

LOUIS WAGNER. Wagner is a Kansas City lawyer who for years specialized in representing tavern operators charged with violating the State's liquor laws. He attempts to control one of Kansas City's bigger Negro wards.

This is the crew which has banded together in an effort to pull off "Operation Salvage." We can only speculate as to the motive behind their efforts as these men are not often seen doing something for nothing.

If this group succeeds in getting "Ethical Ed" Long renominated for U. S. Senator, then it will be the Democratic Party itself which has to be salvaged from its own apathy in letting people of this type take over.

We hope that good Democrats throughout the State of Missouri wake up in time to vote for Tom Eagleton and to head off such a political travesty.

GOVERNOR HEARNES' WARNING

Missouri Governor Hearns is not whistling in Dixie when he predicts that full implementation of the federal government's welfare programs will add an extra $70 million to this state's budget. Indeed, the partial implementation of Medicare's Title 19 program by the last General Assembly has already added several millions, with next year's estimates to run above $10 million for this one phase.

No one with even the wildest imagination could have predicted all of the requirements of the Medicare act, with its provisions that a small amount of federal funds be used to supplement larger appropriations by the state to delve into all kinds of welfare projects. Not only are the states required to divvy up the money, without anyone suggesting how this is to be done, but the act provides such stringent penalty provisions that in the event the states don't comply with Uncle Sam's wishes, they will lose other federal welfare grants. This is the part of the Medicare act that has irritated statehouses across the nation.

Missouri, like every other state, is operating on a tight budget, faced with rising education, mental health and highway costs. These needs deserve high priority, just the same as do welfare programs. When one is expanded beyond the state's ability to pay, then other programs must suffer.

The irritating point of it all is that the federal government, by dictum, is setting the state's priorities for them, without so much as a formal request. This process not only riles Governor Hearnes and the legislature but it serves to disrupt an orderly program of progress of all essential state services.

Governor Hearnes has performed a real service when he complains of these federal regulations aimed at controlling and expanding state budgets for a single program. We hope he continues his protests and perhaps others will eventually join him.

Missourians, as well as Americans, need to know the details of these latest federal restrictions on state budgets, state taxing powers and the right of the citizens to decide for themselves which programs shall be expanded.

We have gone a long way down the road of federal control, and there are many who believe we may have reached the last mile of the federal government's mission to control the activities of the states.

A PARODY

One of the most graphic demonstrations of what the ABA proposals might do to crime reporting was written by Richard D. Smyser, managing editor of the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) Oak Ridger. As chairman of the freedom of information committee of the Associated Press Managing Editors he presented it to the annual meeting of APME in Buffalo in 1965.

Taking a well-known verse about the Lizzie Borden murder he adapted it to present-day newspaper treatment and then to what it might be under the new ABA rules, as follows:

ORIGINAL

Lizzie Borden took an axe
And gave her mother 40 whacks,
And when she saw what she had done,
She gave her father 41.

AS IT MIGHT BE TODAY
(using standard newspaper policy)

The Bordens, Emily and Max,
Were found dead Tuesday, slain by axe.
Police said 80 blows were sledged.
Their daughter did it, it's alleged.

AS IT MIGHT BE TOMORROW
(under some proposed guidelines)

A terrible thing has come to pass
At the Borden home in Fall River, Mass.
Involved are father, mother, chile --
For further details, hear the trial.

VIOLENCE AND POVERTY

When a congressman says something like this which can't be politically popular these days, it is worth quoting. . . .

Rep. Henry Schadeberg (R-Wis.) said: "If violence is born out of poverty, then it must be understood that organized violence is born out of organized poverty. If there is organized poverty, then the blame must be placed squarely on the shoulders of those who use such organized poverty for their own political ends; who talk about waging war on poverty but who do little to win it because the major share of that budget is being used to support an ever elite corps of poverty generals whose interest is not in winning the war but in waging the battle merely to keep their jobs. Perhaps the same curse is laid on the waging of the war in Vietnam. . . a refusal to allow our troops to win a decisive victory."

Enough said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you think you have dental woes, consider the plight of George Washington. The "father of his country" had lost all his teeth by the time he was 40, and in later years wore at least three sets of false teeth.

Although Dr. Sigmund Freud's psychoanalytic theories are under considerable scientific attack, some 250,000 Americans pay a million dollars daily to lie on a couch and talk about their emotional problems.

Much fun is poked at the vanity of bearded hippies and beatniks. But men who wear beards have always been vain of them. During the 17th and 18th centuries gentlemen of class even wore cumbersome cardboard boxes in bed to protect their chin whiskers while they slept.

The tireder people become individually, the more energy their civilization seems to need. It is estimated that between now and the year 2000, the United States will consume twice as much energy as it did in the last 150 years. And in the next 33 years the whole world will use up as much energy as it did in the last 2,000 years.

The chances are one in six that you have some kind of allergy— or will develop one during your lifetime.

Quotable notables: "The average Hollywood film star's ambition is to be admired by an American, courted by an Italian, married to an Englishman and have a french boy friend."— Katharine Hepburn.

Tip to the thrifty: Don't leave your money dormant in a bank too long. In some states small bank accounts that are inactive for 10 years or more may be closed out by the bank with the balance, minus service charges, being sent to the state.

Artful weavers: Spider webs are almost as distinctive as human fingerprints. Each of the 30,000 known varieties of spiders has its own style of weaving and turns out a new web daily made of self-spun filaments stronger than a strand of steel the same thickness. Some spiders even weave nets and use them to "lasso" their prey.

Famous firsts: The first rear view mirror on a motor vehicle is believed to have been used by Ray Harroun, a famed racing driver. Installed over the dashboard of his Marmon "Wasp" racer, the mirror helped him win the Indianapolis 500-mile race in 1911.

History lesson: What U.S. presidents bore these nicknames: "Father of the American Navy," "Petticoat Pet," "His Fraudulency," "Grandpa's Grandson," and "That Man in the White House"? They were John Adams, Martin Van Buren, Rutherford B. Hays, Benjamin Harrison, and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Frontier: Man's next frontier will be an old one— the undeveloped tropics. The tropical zone includes more than a quarter of the earth's land. Although as yet uncrowded with people, about four-fifths or all existing plant and animal species dwell in the tropics.

It was Charles M. Schwab who observed, "The man who does not work for the love of work but only for money is not likely to make money nor to find much fun in life."

One of the new State laws which goes into effect October 13 requires he covering of loose loads on motor vehicles. The law, designed to protect the traveling public, primarily affects trucks, both commercial and private.

Section One of the new statute reads: "All motor vehicles, and every trailer and semi-trailer operating upon the public highways of this state and carrying goods or material or farm products which may reasonably be expected to become dislodged and fall from the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer as a result of wind pressure or air pressure and-or by the movement of the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer shall have a protective cover or be sufficiently secured so that no portion of such goods or material can become dislodged and fall from the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer while being transported or carried."

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, said "This law will help alleviate the hazard of objects falling from one vehicle onto another. There have been instances, for example, where flying objects have caused drivers to lose control of their vehicles. There are also cases where falling loads have induced extensive damage to vehicles in the immediate area."

The Patrol Superintendent also noted that the new legislation states that anyone found in violation of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished as provided by law.

After hasty consultations, the bull's Texas breeder was flown over to Saigon. He walked up to the bull and held what appeared to be a whispered conversation with him. The beast promptly began making vigorous approaches to the cows. Afterward, U.S. and Vietnamese officials asked what had happened. "Well," drawled the Texan, "I was able to clear up a misunderstanding. He thought he was over here purely as an advisor."

WOMAN -- THE WORK HORSE

Man works from sun to sun, but woman's work . . .

Well, woman's work is done more often than the old saw maintains. Recent statistics, however, indicate that it is less often done than man's.

According to the Women's Medical News Service, a 14-nation study made by the United Nations shows that mothers, both working and nonworking, in Communist and capitalist countries alike, have less free time than their husbands.

By free time is meant time to do what one wants to do as opposed to what one has to do.

For the United States, the study found that the working mother has an average of 2.8 hours of free time on weekdays and 7.1 hours on Sundays. The nonworking mother has about 3.5 hours free on weekdays and about 7.5 hours on Sundays.

The working father, in contrast, has about 4.1 hours of leisure time on weekdays and 8.5 hours on Sundays.

Not a great deal of difference, to be sure, but enough to start a good argument.

If interest rates are easing, insofar as the naton's independent and smaller businesses are concerned, there is no evidence they are paying any less for money. In fact, indications are that they are paying slightly more.

This is indicated in a special quarterly study of the continuous year long survey conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business. With returns from approximately 35,000 independent proprietor respondents now tallied, it appears that the average rate is now 6.8 per cent.

This contrasts to an average rate of 6.2 per cent charged at the same time last year, and with 6.6 per cent reported in January of this year.

In only two states, Vermont and West Virginia is the rate shown as less than 6 per cent. In both states the average interest rate is reported at 5.9 per cent. An even 6 per cent average is reported in Maryland, North Carolina and Tennessee.

The highest average rate of 7.4 per cent is reported in Idaho with the next highest California and Oregon where the average rate is shown as 7.2 per cent.

THE ANSWER IS -- TASTE

In this day and age of high-powered publicity-seeking among the world's fashion designers looking for a place in the sun, it's not easy for Mr. Consumer to sort out serious offerings from frivolous. The current "pitch" to get men to wear mini-skirts is an example of the latter -- with the straight-faced proponents claiming that skirts are more manly, more comfortable and more flattering. (Since when did gents' knees become a thing of beauty?) Let Mr. Consumer beware of the garish and the gimmicks -- let him judge all the offerings as to their taste -- bad or good.

GOVERNMENT T.V.

The proposed fourth television network, to be operated by a federal corporation with "co-operation" of the three national commercial networks, has been loosely termed "public TV." The public will not operate this network if it is formed; the public will only be required to pay for it. The Government, through the proposed Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will operate the network. Therefore, it will be "Government TV," not "public TV." This mis-labelling does not square with the Government's own "truth - in - packaging" proposals.

The basic objection to this scheme is constitutional. Nowhere in its enumeration of powers of the Federal Government does the Constitution permit such activity; indeed, the Bill of Rights prohibits it. The First Amendment specifically forbids "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press"; how then can the Government control a major segment of the press (which now includes radio and TV) and a major forum for verbal expression without curtailing or abridging the freedom and rights of the people?

The presidentially-controlled Corporation for Public Broadcasting, whose 15-member board would be picked by the President, would be able to control the contents of so-called educational programming by making grants to producers of educational shows. This function is presently being done by tax-exempt, psuedo-liberal foundations which have supported a steady flow of anti-capitalist, pro-socialist propaganda through the present National Education Television Network (NET), which has over a hundred affiliated stations. The fourth network scheme would take the burden of financing leftist TV propaganda off these huge foundations and allow them to expand their propagandizing in other media. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Joe Resnick, D-N.Y., elected from a suburban area north of New York City, has probably done more for small farmers and antagonized more wealthy farmers than any other congressman on the house agriculture committee, of which Resnick is a member.

When Resnick started investivating the American Farm Bureau Federation, all but three members of his 36-man committee colleagues were members of the farm bureau, others feared this powerful lobby.

However, Resnick has kept up his probe. While other congressmen have spent thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money on summer junkets abroad, Resnick has dipped into his own pocket to pay staff and travel expenses for a one-man investigation.

He has discovered that the farm bureau recently invested $3 million in the Pizitz shopping center in Birmingham, Ala., on top of an earlier investment of $5,500,000 in the same shopping center. It also owns a $10 million shopping center in Birmingham.

Resnick points to the fact that farmers can survive only if they get a reasonably high price for their products. Yet a shopping center can survive only if it sells at a low price to the consumer. No farm co-op, says Resnick, should be in this conflict-of-interest position.

Another possible conflict Resnick has unearthed is the manner in which the farm bureau sells pigs and poultry to farmers; then sells them feed; finally buys fattened hogs and poultry back from the farmers. All this is in competition with private firms which pay taxes. The farm bureau doesn't.

But what Resnick is probing is the allegation that the farmer could purchase feed at a price under what the farm bureau sells to him if he was not tied by a contract. Also the age and weight of the poultry and hogs are controlled by the farm bureau so that the farmer becomes an underpaid farm bureau minion.

Resnick has also shown that around 50 per cent of the farm bureau's members are not farmers, that the apparent main purpose of the farm bureau is to operate a hugh insurance business, that it uses tax exemption to operate filling stations, to sell heating oil, fertilizer, real estate and even sells mutual funds on the stock market; that It plugs the 27-1/2 per cent oil depletion allowance, which increases farm taxes; and has favored the big farmer to the detriment of the medium-size and family farmer.

POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

Resnick has stirred up tremendous support for his investigation from small farmers, plus a lot of businessmen who have objected to the tax-exempt status of the farm bureau.

Resnick has also unearthed some revealing facts regarding the extreme right wing politics of the farm bureau and has linked it up with the liberty lobby, whose founder, Willis Carto, has said the United States made a mistake by getting into the war against Nazi Germany.

Resnick's chief witness regarding right-wing activities has been Mrs. Brice Ohmstede, former public relations director for the farm bureau in Nebraska, who testified:

"It has become pretty evident that they are a part of an interlocking of right-wing organization whose goal appears to be the overthrow of the American government."

"That is a very serious charge," commented Resnick.

Mrs. Ohmstede agreed, but gave evidence showing that the farm bureau had tried to stifle free expression, purge schools and libraries of books not to their liking, and attacked as communist anything with which they disagreed.

"My first experience with the farm bureau's anti-communist drive frightened me," testified the former public relations official for the farm bureau in Nebraska. "At the farm bureau convention in Lincoln in November, 1962, speaker after speaker told the Ladies' groups that the Communists were taking over the schools and the churches."

LBJ TALKS

President Johnson is a vigorous and compulsive talker. When he talks he uses his hands.

At a White House luncheon the other day he sat beside Dick Berlin, top executive of the Hearst newspapers, talking chiefly about the war in Vietnam.

Near the start of the luncheon the President knocked over a glass of water. He apologized, and got a White House waiter to keep it from going into Berlin's lap. Later in the luncheon he knocked over a glass of red wine, also in Berlin's direction. This time he was too intent on what he was saying to call for a waiter.

Berlin remarked: "Now I've had two baths."

FOOTNOTES AND HEADLINES

Public health service doctors privately suggest that national leaders set an example against cigarette smoking. President Johnson will have no trouble with this. He gave up cigarette smoking long ago. Neither will vice President Humphrey, Gov. Romney of Michigan nor Gov. Rockefeller of New York. None smoke. Ronnie Reagan of California might have more trouble. . . Reagan wasn't in a smoke dream when he put across the biggest tax increase in California history -- in fact, the biggest in the history of any state-- $1 billion.. Reagan was elected in a campaign in which he claimed Gov. Pat Brown was overtaxing. Reagan's new record budget will be $5,080,000,000. His cigarette tax goes up from 3 cents to 7 cents a pack, and on October 1, to 10 cents.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

ALL LABOR WATCHING

Bitter Showdown Battle Looms Over Punishing 50,000 Teachers For Breaking No Strike Law.

New York: -- The precedent-smashing teachers' strike may not do for Nelson A. Rockefeller what a police strike did for a vintage Republican known as Calvin Coolidge. But the school stoppage was a story with a built-in sleeper crisis which will project the Governor into the national spotlight in a new tougher role.

The walkout broke the brand new no-strike law entitled the Public Employes' Fair Employment Act. And Governor Rockefeller -- through a state board-- will say that 50,000 teachers can be wrong. They violated a state statute forbidding public strikes.

And there will be no amnesty.

The United Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) will not be forgiven as the Transport Workers Union was when it paralyzed this city's gargantuan transit system early last year.

But can a union really be punished for striking?

Most union chiefs just don't believe this could happen here. A few days in jail means little. The martyrdom is worth it. During the big subway strike of '66, this column was the first to reveal that the transit workers leaders actually insisted on staying in the county hoosegow, when City Hall passed on word they could be released -- and at the very least, autos would be dispatched to bring them down to the Mayor's chambers for intimate talks.

But that was pre-PERB -- the new Public Employment Relations Board, which virtually all major labor leaders are now watching closely. The board was skillfully created by an erudite trio of labor specialists -- the gentle Dave Cole, the ivory-towered George Taylor, and Harvard's peppery strategist, John Dunlop.

Built into it is the power to hit a guilty union right in the solar plexus, which in the world of labor is the pocketbook, the treasury. And not by fining it alone. But by the hardest of blows, the denial of the right to an automatic dues checkoff.

Under the checkoff system, in the case of the New York teachers union, the city, through the Board of Education, simply withholds the $5-a-month dues from each of the 50,000 instructors and passes it on to the union. In effect, the city, or any employer, thus services the labor organizations' headquarters.

The law, as written by Cole and his colleagues, gives PERB the absolute mandate to move against the union if it breaks state rules. Thus PERB now is seeking to determine first if there really was a strike, secondly, if it was forced by undue provocation by the Board of Education, and thirdly, if the union is guilty, how it shall be punished.

Gov. Rockefeller nursed this act. He will insist on action. Obviously there was a strike. Obviously the Board did not provoke it. Obviously PERB now will have to determine how to make the punishment fit the "crime."

It is a safe prediction that PERB will decide to suspend the automatic dues checkoff. This suspension could force the union to collect its own dues from 50,000 members in the most sprawling of educational systems -- for as long as 18 months.

This could cost the union hundreds of thousands of dollars. But there's more. At the end of the dues checkoff suspension period, the union through its officers must take an oath that it will not again sponsor, support, encourage or lead a strike.

What self-respecting labor leader could do that? Without the strike threat in his hand, he's like gin and tonic without the gin. But the law is the law and the Governor and his board are determined to avoid killing it before the ink on it dries. It took effect Sept. 1. The union deliberately flouted it.

But there is more here than a duel between labor's avant-garde and a State Board.

The dues checkoff is American labor's most sacred possession. To some national unions this means corporations annually pass on as much as $55 million in union dues -- taken right from employes' payrolls. It is the difference between being a major force and being the weak central "head offices" of European labor. It is this difference which enables them to put platoons of organizers in the field; computers for membership pensions and services into the major offices; political action committees into the precincts; lobbyists into the halls of Congress. It is what makes it possible to maintain as many as 700 national office field men and keep them on the move across the land.

So, inside labor, the leaders and their technicians are keeping a death watch on this development. Denial of the checkoff could set a precedent some day in the private as well as the public sector.

But the teachers' federation chose to make the issue. They have left the Governor no leeway. And the issue now is: can a union deliberately defy the law and not expect the authorities to attempt to take action? If this is true then what will the state, county or municipality do when the transit strike looms again in a few weeks?

No one denies that Nelson Rockefelier is a friend of the labor movement. But he is also the governor of all the people.

So the issue is joined -- not alone for New Yorkers but for the public everywhere.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

CAN THEY SALVAGE ED LONG?

In recent weeks a strange and frightening phenomenon has been taking place within the ranks of the Democratic party.

After LIFE magazine uncovered Senator "Ethical Ed" V. Long's deep and questionable financial involvement with Jimmy Hoffa's lawyer, Morris Shenker, it became apparent that Long was in political trouble. Accordingly, some of the Senator's cronies in St. Louis and Kansas City decided they must band together to salvage their sinking comrade.

Who are the friends who are trying to pull off "Operation Salvage"?

FROM ST. LOUIS

MORRIS SHENKER. Well-known criminal lawyer who through the years has represented just about every big time St. Louis police character, including hoodlum Buster Wortman. Shenker is now Jimmy Hoffa's lawyer and is Senator Long's occasional partner in the practice of law to the tune of some $140,000.

LAWRENCE CALLANAN. Two-time convict and undisputed boss of the smelly Steamfitters Union of St. Louis. Callanan is Long's principal labor booster and labor money raiser.

HAROLD GIBBONS. St. Louis Teamster boss who runs the Teamster operations in Eastern Missouri while his boss, Jimmy Hoffa, is serving time in a federal penitentiary for jury-tampering.

WILLIAM CLAY. Negro committeeman of the 26th Ward in St. Louis. Clay, formerly a militant civil rights demonstrator (as witness his jail time for contempt of court arising out of "sit-ins" at a St. Louis bank), lost some of his militancy upon becoming a paid "consultant" to the all-white Steamfitters Union.

FROM KANSAS CITY

ALEX PRESTA. Convicted of bootlegging during the Prohibition Era, Presta heads the remnants of the old Binaggio faction in Kansas City's North End. (Binaggio was slain, gangland style, in 1950.)

State Senator JASPER BRANCATO. Presta's political ally, Brancato is Senator Long's official greeter when the Senator comes to Kansas City. While the Missouri Senate is in session, Brancato functions to defeat any measure which would improve law enforcement in Kansas City or otherwise modernize Kansas City Government.

State Representative WILLIAM ROYSTER. A behind-the-scenes operator in the Missouri House of Representatives, Rep. Royster sponsors such "high-minded" measures as those which would loosen up enforcement of Missouri's liquor laws, the "branding-iron" bill which would have given the Kansas City political machines greater control over Kansas City elections, etc.

LOUIS WAGNER. Wagner is a Kansas City lawyer who for years specialized in representing tavern operators charged with violating the State's liquor laws. He attempts to control one of Kansas City's bigger Negro wards.

This is the crew which has banded together in an effort to pull off "Operation Salvage." We can only speculate as to the motive behind their efforts as these men are not often seen doing something for nothing.

If this group succeeds in getting "Ethical Ed" Long renominated for U. S. Senator, then it will be the Democratic Party itself which has to be salvaged from its own apathy in letting people of this type take over.

We hope that good Democrats throughout the State of Missouri wake up in time to vote for Tom Eagleton and to head off such a political travesty.

GOVERNOR HEARNES' WARNING

Missouri Governor Hearns is not whistling in Dixie when he predicts that full implementation of the federal government's welfare programs will add an extra $70 million to this state's budget. Indeed, the partial implementation of Medicare's Title 19 program by the last General Assembly has already added several millions, with next year's estimates to run above $10 million for this one phase.

No one with even the wildest imagination could have predicted all of the requirements of the Medicare act, with its provisions that a small amount of federal funds be used to supplement larger appropriations by the state to delve into all kinds of welfare projects. Not only are the states required to divvy up the money, without anyone suggesting how this is to be done, but the act provides such stringent penalty provisions that in the event the states don't comply with Uncle Sam's wishes, they will lose other federal welfare grants. This is the part of the Medicare act that has irritated statehouses across the nation.

Missouri, like every other state, is operating on a tight budget, faced with rising education, mental health and highway costs. These needs deserve high priority, just the same as do welfare programs. When one is expanded beyond the state's ability to pay, then other programs must suffer.

The irritating point of it all is that the federal government, by dictum, is setting the state's priorities for them, without so much as a formal request. This process not only riles Governor Hearnes and the legislature but it serves to disrupt an orderly program of progress of all essential state services.

Governor Hearnes has performed a real service when he complains of these federal regulations aimed at controlling and expanding state budgets for a single program. We hope he continues his protests and perhaps others will eventually join him.

Missourians, as well as Americans, need to know the details of these latest federal restrictions on state budgets, state taxing powers and the right of the citizens to decide for themselves which programs shall be expanded.

We have gone a long way down the road of federal control, and there are many who believe we may have reached the last mile of the federal government's mission to control the activities of the states.

A PARODY

One of the most graphic demonstrations of what the ABA proposals might do to crime reporting was written by Richard D. Smyser, managing editor of the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) Oak Ridger. As chairman of the freedom of information committee of the Associated Press Managing Editors he presented it to the annual meeting of APME in Buffalo in 1965.

Taking a well-known verse about the Lizzie Borden murder he adapted it to present-day newspaper treatment and then to what it might be under the new ABA rules, as follows:

ORIGINAL

Lizzie Borden took an axe
And gave her mother 40 whacks,
And when she saw what she had done,
She gave her father 41.

AS IT MIGHT BE TODAY

(using standard newspaper policy)
The Bordens, Emily and Max,
Were found dead Tuesday, slain by axe.
Police said 80 blows were sledged.
Their daughter did it, it's alleged.

AS IT MIGHT BE TOMORROW

(under some proposed guidelines)
A terrible thing has come to pass
At the Borden home in Fall River, Mass.
Involved are father, mother, chile --
For further details, hear the trial.

VIOLENCE AND POVERTY

When a congressman says something like this which can't be politically popular these days, it is worth quoting. . . .

Rep. Henry Schadeberg (R-Wis.) said: "If violence is born out of poverty, then it must be understood that organized violence is born out of organized poverty. If there is organized poverty, then the blame must be placed squarely on the shoulders of those who use such organized poverty for their own political ends; who talk about waging war on poverty but who do little to win it because the major share of that budget is being used to support an ever elite corps of poverty generals whose interest is not in winning the war but in waging the battle merely to keep their jobs. Perhaps the same curse is laid on the waging of the war in Vietnam. . . a refusal to allow our troops to win a decisive victory."

Enough said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If you think you have dental woes, consider the plight of George Washington. The "father of his country" had lost all his teeth by the time he was 40, and in later years wore at least three sets of false teeth.

Although Dr. Sigmund Freud's psychoanalytic theories are under considerable scientific attack, some 250,000 Americans pay a million dollars daily to lie on a couch and talk about their emotional problems.

Much fun is poked at the vanity of bearded hippies and beatniks. But men who wear beards have always been vain of them. During the 17th and 18th centuries gentlemen of class even wore cumbersome cardboard boxes in bed to protect their chin whiskers while they slept.

The tireder people become individually, the more energy their civilization seems to need. It is estimated that between now and the year 2000, the United States will consume twice as much energy as it did in the last 150 years. And in the next 33 years the whole world will use up as much energy as it did in the last 2,000 years.

The chances are one in six that you have some kind of allergy—or will develop one during your lifetime.

Quotable notables: "The average Hollywood film star's ambition is to be admired by an American, courted by an Italian, married to an Englishman and have a french boy friend."—Katharine Hepburn.

Tip to the thrifty: Don't leave your money dormant in a bank too long. In some states small bank accounts that are inactive for 10 years or more may be closed out by the bank with the balance, minus service charges, being sent to the state.

Artful weavers: Spider webs are almost as distinctive as human fingerprints. Each of the 30,000 known varieties of spiders has its own style of weaving and turns out a new web daily made of self-spun filaments stronger than a strand of steel the same thickness. Some spiders even weave nets and use them to "lasso" their prey.

Famous firsts: The first rear view mirror on a motor vehicle is believed to have been used by Ray Harroun, a famed racing driver. Installed over the dashboard of his Marmon "Wasp" racer, the mirror helped him win the Indianapolis 500-mile race in 1911.

History lesson: What U.S. presidents bore these nicknames: "Father of the American Navy," "Petticoat Pet," "His Fraudulency," "Grandpa's Grandson," and "That Man in the White House"? They were John Adams, Martin Van Buren, Rutherford B. Hays, Benjamin Harrison, and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Frontier: Man's next frontier will be an old one—the undeveloped tropics. The tropical zone includes more than a quarter of the earth's land. Although as yet uncrowded with people, about four-fifths or all existing plant and animal species dwell in the tropics.

It was Charles M. Schwab who observed, "The man who does not work for the love of work but only for money is not likely to make money nor to find much fun in life."

One of the new State laws which goes into effect October 13 requires he covering of loose loads on motor vehicles. The law, designed to protect the traveling public, primarily affects trucks, both commercial and private.

Section One of the new statute reads: "All motor vehicles, and every trailer and semi-trailer operating upon the public highways of this state and carrying goods or material or farm products which may reasonably be expected to become dislodged and fall from the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer as a result of wind pressure or air pressure and-or by the movement of the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer shall have a protective cover or be sufficiently secured so that no portion of such goods or material can become dislodged and fall from the vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer while being transported or carried."

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, said "This law will help alleviate the hazard of objects falling from one vehicle onto another. There have been instances, for example, where flying objects have caused drivers to lose control of their vehicles. There are also cases where falling loads have induced extensive damage to vehicles in the immediate area."

The Patrol Superintendent also noted that the new legislation states that anyone found in violation of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished as provided by law.

WOMAN -- THE WORK HORSE

Man works from sun to sun, but woman's work . . .

Well, woman's work is done more often than the old saw maintains. Recent statistics, however, indicate that it is less often done than man's.

According to the Women's Medical News Service, a 14-nation study made by the United Nations shows that mothers, both working and nonworking, in Communist and capitalist countries alike, have less free time than their husbands.

By free time is meant time to do what one wants to do as opposed to what one has to do.

For the United States, the study found that the working mother has an average of 2.8 hours of free time on weekdays and 7.1 hours on Sundays. The nonworking mother has about 3.5 hours free on weekdays and about 7.5 hours on Sundays.

The working father, in contrast, has about 4.1 hours of leisure time on weekdays and 8.5 hours on Sundays.

Not a great deal of difference, to be sure, but enough to start a good argument.

If interest rates are easing, insofar as the naton's independent and smaller businesses are concerned, there is no evidence they are paying any less for money. In fact, indications are that they are paying slightly more.

This is indicated in a special quarterly study of the continuous year long survey conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business. With returns from approximately 35,000 independent proprietor respondents now tallied, it appears that the average rate is now 6.8 per cent.

This contrasts to an average rate of 6.2 per cent charged at the same time last year, and with 6.6 per cent reported in January of this year.

In only two states, Vermont and West Virginia is the rate shown as less than 6 per cent. In both states the average interest rate is reported at 5.9 per cent. An even 6 per cent average is reported in Maryland, North Carolina and Tennessee.

The highest average rate of 7.4 per cent is reported in Idaho with the next highest California and Oregon where the average rate is shown as 7.2 per cent.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Joe Resnick, D-N.Y., elected from a suburban area north of New York City, has probably done more for small farmers and antagonized more wealthy farmers than any other congressman on the house agriculture committee, of which Resnick is a member.

When Resnick started investivating the American Farm Bureau Federation, all but three members of his 36-man committee colleagues were members of the farm bureau, others feared this powerful lobby.

However, Resnick has kept up his probe. While other congressmen have spent thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money on summer junkets abroad, Resnick has dipped into his own pocket to pay staff and travel expenses for a one-man investigation.

He has discovered that the farm bureau recently invested $3 million in the Pizitz shopping center in Birmingham, Ala., on top of an earlier investment of $5,500,000 in the same shopping center. It also owns a $10 million shopping center in Birmingham.

Resnick points to the fact that farmers can survive only if they get a reasonably high price for their products. Yet a shopping center can survive only if it sells at a low price to the consumer. No farm co-op, says Resnick, should be in this conflict-of-interest position.

Another possible conflict Resnick has unearthed is the manner in which the farm bureau sells pigs and poultry to farmers; then sells them feed; finally buys fattened hogs and poultry back from the farmers. All this is in competition with private firms which pay taxes. The farm bureau doesn't.

But what Resnick is probing is the allegation that the farmer could purchase feed at a price under what the farm bureau sells to him if he was not tied by a contract. Also the age and weight of the poultry and hogs are controlled by the farm bureau so that the farmer becomes an underpaid farm bureau minion.

Resnick has also shown that around 50 per cent of the farm bureau's members are not farmers, that the apparent main purpose of the farm bureau is to operate a hugh insurance business, that it uses tax exemption to operate filling stations, to sell heating oil, fertilizer, real estate and even sells mutual funds on the stock market; that It plugs the 27-1/2 per cent oil depletion allowance, which increases farm taxes; and has favored the big farmer to the detriment of the medium - size and family farmer.

POLITICAL PROPAGANDA

Resnick has stirred up tremendous support for his investigation tion from small farmers, plus a lot of businessmen who have objected to the tax-exempt status of the farm bureau.

Resnick has also unearthed some revealing facts regarding the extreme right wing politics of the farm bureau and has linked it up with the liberty lobby, whose founder, Willis Carto, has said the United States made a mistake by getting into the war against Nazi Germany.

Resnick's chief witness regarding right-wing activities has been Mrs. Brice Ohmstede, former public relations director for the farm bureau in Nebraska, who testified:

"It has become pretty evident that they are a part of an interlocking of right-wing organization whose goal appears to be the overthrow of the American government."

"That is a very serious charge," commented Resnick.

Mrs. Ohmstede agreed, but gave evidence showing that the farm bureau had tried to stifle free expression, purge schools and libraries of books not to their liking, and attacked as communist anything with which they disagreed.

"My first experience with the farm bureau's anti-communist drive frightened me," testified the former public relations official for the farm bureau in Nebraska. "At the farm bureau convention in Lincoln in November, 1962, speaker after speaker told the Ladies' groups that the Communists were taking over the schools and the churches."

LBJ TALKS

President Johnson is a vigorous and compulsive talker. When he talks he uses his hands.

At a White House luncheon the other day he sat beside Dick Berlin, top executive of the Hearst newspapers, talking chiefly about the war in Vietnam.

Near the start of the luncheon the President knocked over a glass of water. He apologized, and got a White House waiter to keep it from going into Berlin's lap. Later in the luncheon he knocked over a glass of red wine, also in Berlin's direction. This time he was too intent on what he was saying to call for a waiter.

Berlin remarked: "Now I've had two baths."

FOOTNOTES AND HEADLINES

Public health service doctors privately suggest that national leaders set an example against cigarette smoking. President Johnson will have no trouble with this. He gave up cigarette smoking long ago. Neither will vice President Humphrey, Gov. Romney of Michigan nor Gov. Rockefeller of New York. None smoke. Ronnie Reagan of California might have more trouble. . . Reagan wasn't in a smoke dream when he put across the biggest tax increase in California history -- in fact, the biggest in the history of any state-- $1 billion.. Reagan was elected in a campaign in which he claimed Gov. Pat Brown was overtaxing. Reagan's new record budget will be $5,080,000,000. His cigarette tax goes up from 3 cents to 7 cents a pack, and on October 1, to 10 cents.

When the doorman of an expensive club tripped over the doorway and went rolling down the steps, the manager angrily cried out: "Careful, you fool! They'll think you're a member."

THE ANSWER IS -- TASTE

In this day and age of high-powered publicity-seeking among the world's fashion designers looking for a place in the sun, it's not easy for Mr. Consumer to sort out serious offerings from frivolous. The current "pitch" to get men to wear mini-skirts is an example of the latter -- with the straight-faced proponents claiming that skirts are more manly, more comfortable and more flattering. (Since when did gents' knees become a thing of beauty?) Let Mr. Consumer beware of the garish and the gimmicks -- let him judge all the offerings as to their taste -- bad or good.

GOVERNMENT T.V.

The proposed fourth television network, to be operated by a federal corporation with "co-operation" of the three national commercial networks, has been loosely termed "public TV." The public will not operate this network if it is formed; the public will only be required to pay for it. The Government, through the proposed Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will operate the network. Therefore, it will be "Government TV," not "public TV." This mis-labelling does not square with the Government's own "truth - in - packaging" proposals.

The basic objection to this scheme is constitutional. Nowhere in its enumeration of powers of the Federal Government does the Constitution permit such activity; indeed, the Bill of Rights prohibits it. The First Amendment specifically forbids "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press"; how then can the Government control a major segment of the press (which now includes radio and TV) and a major forum for verbal expression without curtailing or abridging the freedom and rights of the people?

The presidentially - controlled Corporation for Public Broadcasting, whose 15 - member board would be picked by the President, would be able to control the contents of so-called educational programming by making grants to producers of educational shows. This function is presently being done by tax - exempt, psuedo - liberal foundations which have supported a steady flow of anti - capitalist, pro - socialist propaganda through the present National Education Television Network (NET), which has over a hundred affiliated stations. The fourth network scheme would take the burden of financing leftist TV propaganda off these huge foundations and allow them to expand their propagandizing in other media. HLH.

ALL LABOR WATCHING

Bitter Showdown Battle Looms Over Punishing 50,000 Teachers For Breaking No Strike Law.

New York: -- The precedent-smashing teachers' strike may not do for Nelson A. Rockefeller what a police strike did for a vintage Republican known as Calvin Coolidge. But the school stoppage was a story with a built-in sleeper crisis which will project the Governor into the national spotlight in a new tougher role.

The walkout broke the brand new no-strike law entitled the Public Employes' Fair Employment Act. And Governor Rockefeller -- through a state board -- will say that 50,000 teachers can be wrong. They violated a state statute forbidding public strikes.

And there will be no amnesty.

The United Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) will not be forgiven as the Transport Workers Union was when it paralyzed this city's gargantuan transit system early last year.

But can a union really be punished for striking?

Most union chiefs just don't believe this could happen here. A few days in jail means little. The martyrdom is worth it. During the big subway strike of '66, this column was the first to reveal that the transit workers leaders actually insisted on staying in the county hoosegow, when City Hall passed on word they could be released -- and at the very least, autos would be dispatched to bring them down to the Mayor's chambers for intimate talks.

But that was pre-PERB -- the new Public Employment Relations Board, which virtually all major labor leaders are now watching closely. The board was skillfully created by an erudite trio of labor specialists -- the gentle Dave Cole, the ivory-towered George Taylor, and Harvard's peppery strategist, John Dunlop.

Built into it is the power to hit a guilty union right in the solar plexus, which in the world of labor is the pocketbook, the treasury. And not by fining it alone. But by the hardest of blows, the denial of the right to an automatic dues checkoff.

Under the checkoff system, in the case of the New York teachers union, the city, through the Board of Education, simply withholds the $5-a-month dues from each of the 50,000 instructors and passes it on to the union. In effect, the city, or any employer, thus services the labor organizations' headquarters.

The law, as written by Cole and his colleagues, gives PERB the absolute mandate to move against the union if it breaks state rules. Thus PERB now is seeking to determine first if there really was a strike, secondly, if it was forced by undue provocation by the Board of Education, and thirdly, if the union is guilty, how it shall be punished.

Gov. Rockefeller nursed this act. He will insist on action. Obviously there was a strike. Obviously the Board did not provoke it. Obviously PERB now will have to determine how to make the punishment fit the "crime."

It is a safe prediction that PERB will decide to suspend the automatic dues checkoff. This suspension could force the union to collect its own dues from 50,000 members in the most sprawling of educational systems -- for as long as 18 months.

This could cost the union hundreds of thousands of dollars. But there's more. At the end of the dues checkoff suspension period, the union through its officers must take an oath that it will not again sponsor, support, encourage or lead a strike.

What self - respecting labor leader could do that? Without the strike threat in his hand, he's like gin and tonic without the gin. But the law is the law and the Governor and his board are determined to avoid killing it before the ink on it dries. It took effect Sept. 1. The union deliberately flouted it.

But there is more here than a duel between labor's avant-garde and a State Board.

The dues checkoff is American labor's most sacred possession. To some national unions this means corporations annually pass on as much as $55 million in union dues -- taken right from employes' payrolls. It is the difference between being a major force and being the weak central "head offices" of European labor. It is this difference which enables them to put platoons of organizers in the field; computers for membership pensions and services into the major offices; political action committees into the precincts; lobbyists into the halls of Congress. It is what makes it possible to maintain as many as 700 national office field men and keep them on the move across the land.

So, inside labor, the leaders and their technicians are keeping a death watch on this development. Denial of the checkoff could set a precedent some day in the private as well as the public sector.

But the teachers' federation chose to make the issue. They have left the Governor no leeway. And the issue now is: can a union deliberately defy the law and not expect the authorities to attempt to take action? If this is true then what will the state, county or municipality do when the transit strike looms again in a few weeks?

No one denies that Nelson Rockefeller is a friend of the labor movement. But he is also the governor of all the people.

So the issue is joined -- not alone for New Yorkers but for the public everywhere.

Hogs Meet Golden Hurricans Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK. -- Arkansas opens its Razorback Stadium season for 1967 against the aerial giants of college football, Tulsa's Golden Hurricane in a 2 PM kickoff this Saturday. Tulsa, after a 30-day practice period, will begin defense of its national collegiate passing championship -- a title it has held for five consecutive years. Coach Glenn Dobbs is preparing no less than four talented quarterbacks to keep Tulsa in the running; two of them his own talented sons -- Glenn III and Johnny.

No team has successfully stopped Tulsa's heralded passing attack -- but the Razorbacks have fared perhaps a little better than most. Over these five championship years, Tulsa quarterbacks have completed an average of 17.8 passes out of 34.6 attempts for an average 200.4 yards a game against Arkansas. That's still better than the total per-game averages for all five seasons: 21.9 complete out of 38.4 attempts for an average of 276.3 yards per game.

The five games (1962-66) have all gone to Arkansas: 42-14, 56-7, 31-22, 20-12 and 27-8. Tulsa's nine TD's have included five passes, three runs from scrimmage and an interception return.

The Arkansas-Tulsa gridiron series is steeped in tradition going back to 1899, making it the oldest non-conference rivalry on the U of A books. They met in Muskogee, Okla. that year in the mud, with Arkansas Industrial University playing Henry Kendal College to a scoreless tie.

The series moved to Tulsa in 1925, and by 1933 it had become an annual Thanksgiving Day game in the Oil Capital. Skelly Stadium gave the Hurricane an 8-7-4 advantage during those years -- including tremendous war-time teams (when Glenn Dobbs passed his way to All-American honors).

Since moving to Fayetteville as a regular early-season contest in 1954 -- Arkansas has charged into a commanding lead, 27-12-4. The Porkers have won eight straight and 11 of the last 12. As a matter of fact, it has become Arkansas' best offensive outing of the year. The Hogs have averaged 31.2 points a game in the last 12 contests.

Everybody likes a band at the football game -- but here's a case where the crowds have literally driven the bands away. The Arkansas-Tulsa game used to be "Band Day" at Razorback Stadium. That's when the UofA had 8,000 empty seats to spare. But -- no more. A full house (40,000) is expected for this 44th renewal and except for the two bands from competing schools -- there just isn't any more room. Both the UofA Marching Razorback Band and the Tulsa band will perform at halftime.

Last Saturday's 7-6 loss to Oklahoma State was the fourth one-point defeat for Arkansas under Coach Frank Broyles -- against two wins. In terms of all "close games," however (where three points or less separated the two teams), Arkansas is still ahead, eight to six. The last time OSU had beaten Arkansas was in 1953, Bowden Wyatt's first year, by the same score, 7-6.

Razorback fans would have been lost without a program last Saturday night. Nearly half of the 33 Porkers who saw action in the Oklahoma State contest were making their varsity debut. Eight newcomers were in the two-platoon starting lineup and Coach Frank Broyles used a total of 15 sophomores in the game--by far the greatest number in his 10 years at Arkansas.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the phrase that every follower of baseball knows and uses today got its start way back around 1889 when a player by the name of Art Sunday came up from Houston, in the Texas League to join the Toledo Mud Hens in the Old American Association? Finishing out the end of the year with the Hens, Sunday compiled a batting average of 3.98 in 31 games. But as most of his hits were short, choppy low fly balls just over the infield and out of the reach of the outfielders, one of the Toledo Sports Writers described his hits as something he'd brought up from the Texas League. Hence the term Texas Leaguer got its birth and it's been a part of baseball ever since.

DID YOU KNOW -- that one of baseball comedian Al Schacht's favorite stories concerns the minor league clubowners who loved to brag about his success? The clubowner told the same story to everyone he met. He said he was a self-made man who was a star player in the majors -- a successful manager and a good clubowner and had a quarter of a million dollars in the bank. One day, this particular clubowner met the late Jake Ruppert, who owned the New York Yankees. He told Ruppert about his success and finished with the story of the money in the bank. Ruppert was not impressed. He took a coin out of his pocket and said: "All right, my good man, I'll match you for the quarter of a million."

DID YOU KNOW--that Bill Tilden was the greatest amateur OR professional tennis player that ever lived? He's placed at the top of the pile in any listing. Then I think I'd name Rene Cochet, the French player of the late 1920's. He came next to Tilden in many an international match. And while he didn't remain at the top too long, because of the war, I think the redhead, Don Budge would come next on my list.

DID YOU KNOW -- that when John L. Sullivan met Jim Corbett for the world's heavyweight title, the Boston Strong Boy was a 50-1 favorite, yet lost the title on a knockout to the dancing master?

Twins Shift Into AL Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota reclaimed undisputed possession first place in the pulsating American League pennant race Tuesday, riding a pair of Harmon Killebrew's mighty home runs and a homer and triple by Bob Allston to a 7-3 comeback victory over California.

The triumph lifted the Twins out of a first-place tie with Boston, which lost to Cleveland, and into a one-game lead. The idled White Sox are in second place, one point ahead of Boston.

Killebrew's 435-foot two-run homer after Cesar Tovar singled ignited a four-run rally in the sixth inning that wiped out a 3-2 California lead.

TIE FOR LEAD

Killebrew then added a solo shot 430 feet to left-center in the seventh, tying him with Boston's Carl Yastrzemski for the American League homer at 43.

Allston hit his twenty-fourth homer with the bases empty in the fourth inning, after tripling and scoring on Rod Carew's single in the second. Allison also singled in the seventh. Carew added three singles for the Twins.

After Killebrew's homer off loser Jim McGlothlin, 11-8, in the sixth, the Twins added two more runs with the help of three Angel errors.

Allison walked, moved to second on Carew's single and scored when Jim Fregosi threw the ball into the dugout trying for a double play on Ted Uhlaender's grounder.

Uhlaender then raced home when Bobby Knoop bobbled pitcher Jim Katt's grounder. Uhlaender appeared to be an easy out at the plate, but he knocked the ball out of Bob Rodger's glove for the third error of the inning.

Kaat weathered a three-run third inning to post his sixteenth victory against 13 defeats. The Angels batted nine men that inning, scoring on three singles, Tovar's error, a walk, a hit batsman and two fielder's choices. Aurelio Rodriguez' single drove in two runs and Bubba Morton's hit accounted for the third.

Kaat allowed only five hits and struck out 13 in pitching his thirteenth complete game.

Kaat now has 207 strikeouts for the season, the third Twins pitcher to pass the 200-mark this year.

The Twins set a home attendance record, with a crowd of 8012 pushing the season total to 1,467,024 with one home game to pay.

At Boston, the light-hitting Chico Salmon drove in three runs with a homer and a double to offset Carl Yastrzemski's forty-third homer as the Cleveland Indians jolted Boston's pennant hopes with a 6-3 victory Tuesday.

Salmon, who carried a .222 batting average into the game, hurt the Red Sox by doubling home the first run and then scoring himself in the second. He capped his spree by hoisting a two-run shot into the left field screen in the sixth for his second homer of the season.

Cleveland scored its third run on a throwing error as the Boston defense collapsed behind starter Gary Bell in the third. Chuck Hinton's tenth homer leading off the sixth against Jose Santiago accounted for the Indians' other run.

The Red Sox were unable to break through Cleveland right-hander Luis Tiant until the seventh.

Jose Tartabull launched the three-run uprising with a one-out pop single to shallow right. Jerry Adair followed with a line single to the same sector. Tartabull stopping at second.

Yastrzemski, who lined his thirty-first double to right center in the fifth, looked at a ball and then lifted a tremendous drive into the centerfield bleachers.

In addition, his 43 homers tied him with Ted Williams for the most home runs hit by a left-handed hitter in Red Sox history.

Bell, who had defeated his former teammates three straight times since being acquired from Cleveland in June, ran into trouble in the second inning.

Tony Horton, sent to Cleveland in the Bell deal, singled and scored as Salmon lined his double into the left field corner. Salmon came around on two infield outs.

Tiant was credited with a hit when his soft liner popped out of Jerry Adair's glove to start the third. Bell retired the next two batters, but Max Alvis lifted a high fly to short center.

Baseball Round-Up

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just about everybody has a finger in the American League pennant pie, including Mother Nature, but Harmon Killebrew shoved his whole fist into it.

Killebrew walloped a pair of tape measure home runs Tuesday helping Minnesota whip California 7-3. The victory moved the Twins one full game ahead of both Boston and Chicago. The Red Sox lost 6-3 to Cleveland and the White Sox bowed to the elements when their game at Kansas City was postponed by rain.

The rainout left the Sox in second place, one percentage point ahead of Boston but Chicago must play a doubleheader tonight. Fourth-place Detroit, still alive, stayed 1½ games off the pace by whipping New York 1-0. Washington trimmed Baltimore 4-1 in Tuesday's other AL game.

In the National League, Chicago edged St. Louis 8-7, Atlanta nipped Cincinnati 4-3, Houston topped Philadelphia 3-2, Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 3-1 and San Francisco slugged New York 8-3.

Killebrew hammered a 435-foot shot following Cesar Tovar's sixth inning single as the Twins busted loose for four runs, wiping out a 3-2 California lead.

An inning later, Killebrew's 43rd of the season went into orbit. Bob Allison also homered for Minnesota.

Jim Kaat pitched a five-hitter and struck out 13 for his seventh victory this month. It ran his season's record to 16-13.

Boston, meanwhile, was victimized by light-hitting Chico Salmon, who drove in three runs with a homer and a double. Salmon started the Indians off by doubling home a run and then scoring another in the second inning. Four innings later, he lofted his second homer of the year with a man on base.

Chuck Hinton also homered and Luis Tiant went the distance for Cleveland despite Carl Yastrzemski's 43rd homer, which accounted for all three Red Sox runs.

The Red Sox trail both Minnesota and Chicago by one game in the loss column. They play the Twins the last two games of the season but can not make up the ground against the White Sox unless either Kansas City or Washington beats Chicago at least once.

Detroit stayed alive on Mickey Lolich's four-hitter, against the Yankees. Ed Mathews' sixth inning sacrifice fly drove in the game's only run against loser Mel Stottlemyre, 14-15, who allowed only three hits.

Lennie Green sliced a double to left, the first hit off Stottlemyre, opening the sixth. He raced to third on Dick McAuliffe's single to center and McAuliffe reached second on the throw to the plate. After Al Kaline was intentionally walked, Mathews' fly ball drove in the run.

The pennant race resumes today with Cleveland at Boston and California at Minnesota for day games and Chicago in Kansas City for a twi-night doubleheader. The Tigers have the day off.

The two selected groups of schools differed widely. The schools with the higher ratings had a mean enrollment of 638 (ranging from 330 to 1468), they had 20 to 85 teachers, and were located in cities with populations from 2,000 to more than 100,000. The assessed valuation of the school districts ranged from $6,004,400 to $99,200,000, with the mean assessed valuation of the groups being $23,563,465.

The schools with lower ratings were all in small communities with populations from 127 to 526. They had four to nine teachers. The mean enrollment was 84 (25 to 142). The school district's assessed valuation ranged from $647,456 to $2,609,064, with a mean assessed valuation of $1,170,483.

On the basis of Dr. Cain's study, the larger schools appeared to have many advantages. They had a wider variety of sports participation, with more administrators spending more time on the programs. They made up their schedule of contests earlier, had more experienced and better educated administrators at higher pay levels, older coaches with longer experience and a higher educational level who were paid better and were retained longer, had better quality of officiating for which they paid more, and had better facilities.

Dr. Cain's dissertation offered several recommendations. These include: Schools which are unable to provide acceptable and adequate personnel and facilities which will permit a quality program of interscholastic athletics should be reorganized into units with a potential for meeting these standards.

Specific requirements for certification of interscholastic coaches should be established by the Missouri State Department of Education.

All schools that participate in interscholastic athletics should formulate a philosophy for their athletic program that is properly designed to achieve desirable educational goals.

The sportsmanship rating system for interscholastic basketball contests used by the Missouri State School Activities Association should be carefully reevaluated in all areas.

The requirements for initially becoming a licensed basketball official with the Missouri State High School Activities Association should be raised, and the association should initiate a statewide program aimed at the improvement of the quality of basketball officiating.

All schools with interscholastic programs should provide for sending cheerleaders to district and state leadership clinics.

Dr. Cain, a native of Dixon, Mo., was chairman of the department of physical education and director of athletics at Central Methodist College, Fayette, in 1964-66.

MU Leads Big Eight Rushers

KANSAS CITY -- The "mod" group so far in Big Eight Conference football has made the scene with a strong rushing defense as figures in this department mark a parallel between the ground-game crushers and the win-loss column.

Missouri, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, Oklahoma State and Kansas State are all still undefeated, and have been rather uncompromising when it comes to allowing ground passage permits. The Tigers have surrendered only 50 yards in 40 plays, a per-play mark of only 1.25 yards a try.

Almost as stingy is Oklahoma with its 1.8 allowance (53 yards in 29 attempts by Washington State). At 1.9 is Colorado's vaunted front five, giving up just 153 yards in 83 tries against Baylor and Oregon. Nebraska has allowed 120 yards so far, Oklahoma State an average of 137, and Kansas State only 155.

The marks of Missouri (50.0), Oklahoma (53.0), and Colorado (76.5) are all under the Conference's best ground defense finish in the last 18 years. And, only Oklahoma's 43.3 limitation back in 1938 stands better than either the Tigers' or Sooners' average to date.

Offensively, the honors are split three ways, with Missouri and Oklahoma stepping back to the front again. Kansas leads in passing.

Missouri, with its 285 rushing lengths, holds a wide lead over Oklahoma (211) and Nebraska (209), the only other two with averages over 200, as balanced offense appears to be "in" this year.

The Jayhawks, following preseason indications that swirled through the air in Kansas, made their aerial charge with 171 from Bob Douglass. Kansas State, figured early to be one of the team passing leaders, too, has staked a claim for second with a 161 average, while Oklahoma is third with 152.

This pass total for the Sooners lets them balance out their offense and take the total lead with an impressive 363 figure.

All Over In National But Rhubarbs

By the Associated Press

Basketballs and baseball managers take some funny bounces. . .and now Rod Reed has seen a little of both.

Reed, a former pro cager making his pitch for a baseball job with the Atlanta Braves, inadvertently touched off one of the season's zaniest rhubarbs Tuesday night at Cincinnati.

The Braves edged the Reds 4-3 for Reed's second victory in the majors. But both managers played the game under protest and neither one was around for the finish. . .because an umpire dared to change his mind.

Rookie Umpire Frank Dezelan signalled a foul tip on a pitch to Reed in the Braves' eighth, then reversed himself and called it a ball. After a hassle at home plate, Reds' skipper Dave Bristol and Atlanta pilot Billy Hitchcock were ejected, along with Cincinnati second baseman Tommy Helms.

Both managers then announced they were completing the game under protest. . .a happening perhaps unprecedented in baseball history.

In other National League action, San Francisco drubbed the New York Mets 8-3, Los Angeles trimmed Pittsburgh 3-1, Houston shaded Philadelphia 3-2 and the Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis 8-7.

The fireworks at Cincinnati started after Hank Aaron's three-run homer shot the Braves into a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning. Reed, who had blanked the Reds except for a fifth inning homer by pitcher Milt Pappas, took a pitch from reliever Don Nottebart.

Dezelan gave the foul tip sign, then changed his call . . . bringing Hitchcock and Bristol to the plate on the run.

"I did not question the call," Hitchcock said. "I just asked what it was and I walked away. Then Bristol came back to the plate and I went back and asked what he wanted to know."

"I wasn't questioning whether it was a ball or a foul tip," said Bristol. I wanted to know why [illegible] gave the foul tip sign, then decided it was a ball."

"I did give it, but I changed my mind," said Dezelan, explaining he first thought the pitch ticked Reed's bat, but decided the ball had hit the glove of catcher John Bench instead.

"A manager cannot protest balls and strikes," the umpire added.

The victory was the first of the season for Reed, who played for the Detroit Pistons in the National Basketball Association before giving up the court game. He pitched for the Braves' Richmond farm club until his recall early this month.

Willie Mays slammed a pair of homers, driving in three runs, Willie McCovey unloaded a 450-foot, three-run blast and Jim Hart hit a solo homer as the Giants pounded the Mets.

The Dodgers' Don Drysdale registered his 190th career victory with relief help from Ron Perranoski, matching the club record set by Dazzy Vance. Al Ferrara's two-run homer in the first inning was the big blow for Los Angeles.

Chuck Harrison's leadoff homer in the ninth lifted the Astros past the Phillies for their third straight victory.

The Cubs caught St. Louis in the ninth. Ron Santo homered to tie the score, Al Spangler doubled and Randy Hundley knocked in the winner with a two-out single. Lou Brock, who socked two homers for the NL champions, sent them ahead 7-6 with a two-run shot in the top of the ninth.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Elmer Flick of Cleveland won the American League batting title in 1905 with an average of .306? In the National League, .320 is the lowest figure to win a batting crown and that honor goes to Mickey Doyle of the 1915 Giants.

Hogs Meet Golden Hurricans Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK. -- Arkansas opens its Razorback Stadium season for 1967 against the aerial giants of college football, Tulsa's Golden Hurricane in a 2 PM kickoff this Saturday. Tulsa, after a 30-day practice period, will begin defense of its national collegiate passing championship -- a title it has held for five consecutive years. Coach Glenn Dobbs is preparing no less than four talented quarterbacks to keep Tulsa in the running; two of them his own talented sons -- Glenn III and Johnny.

No team has successfully stopped Tulsa's heralded passing attack -- but the Razorbacks have fared perhaps a little better than most. Over these five championship years, Tulsa quarterbacks have completed an average of 17.8 passes out of 34.6 attempts for an average 200.4 yards a game against Arkansas. That's still better than the total per-game averages for all five seasons: 21.9 complete out of 38.4 attempts for an average of 276.3 yards per game.

The five games (1962-66) have all gone to Arkansas: 42-14, 56-7, 31-22, 20-12 and 27-8. Tulsa's nine TD's have included five passes, three runs from scrimmage and an interception return.

The Arkansas-Tulsa gridiron series is steeped in tradition going back to 1899, making it the oldest non-conference rivalry on the U of A books. They met in Muskogee, Okla. that year in the mud, with Arkansas Industrial University playing Henry Kendal College to a scoreless tie.

The series moved to Tulsa in 1925, and by 1933 it had become an annual Thanksgiving Day game in the Oil Capital. Skelly Stadium gave the Hurricane an 8-7-4 advantage during those years -- including tremendous war-time teams (when Glenn Dobbs passed his way to All-American honors).

Since moving to Fayetteville as a regular early-season contest in 1954 -- Arkansas has charged into a commanding lead, 27-12-4. The Porkers have won eight straight and 11 of the last 12. As a matter of fact, it has become Arkansas' best offensive outing of the year. The Hogs have averaged 31.2 points a game in the last 12 contests.

Everybody likes a band at the football game -- but here's a case where the crowds have literally driven the bands away. The Arkansas-Tulsa game used to be "Band Day" at Razorback Stadium. That's when the UofA had 8,000 empty seats to spare. But-- no more. A full house (40,000) is expected for this 44th renewal and except for the two bands from competing schools -- there just isn't any more room. Both the UofA Marching Razorback Band and the Tulsa band will perform at halftime.

Last Saturday's 7-6 loss to Oklahoma State was the fourth one-point defeat for Arkansas under Coach Frank Broyles -- against two wins. In terms of all "close games," however (where three points or less separated the two teams), Arkansas is still ahead, eight to six. The last time OSU had beaten Arkansas was in 1953, Bowden Wyatt's first year, by the same score, 7-6.

Razorback fans would have been lost without a program last Saturday night. Nearly half of the 33 Porkers who saw action in the Oklahoma State contest were making their varsity debut. Eight newcomers were in the two-platoon starting lineup and Coach Frank Broyles used a total of 15 sophomores in the game--by far the greatest number in his 10 years at Arkansas.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the phrase that every follower of baseball knows and uses today got its start way back around 1889 when a player by the name of Art Sunday came up from Houston, in the Texas League to join the Toledo Mud Hens in the Old American Association? Finishing out the end of the year with the Hens, Sunday compiled a batting average of 3.98 in 31 games. But as most of his hits were short, choppy low fly balls just over the infield and out of the reach of the outfielders, one of the Toledo Sports Writers described his hits as something he'd brought up from the Texas League. Hence the term Texas Leaguer got its birth and it's been a part of baseball ever since.

DID YOU KNOW -- that one of baseball comedian Al Schacht's favorite stories concerns the minor league clubowners who loved to brag about his success? The clubowner told the same story to everyone he met. He said he was a self-made man who was a star player in the majors -- a successful manager and a good clubowner and had a quarter of a million dollars in the bank. One day, this particular clubowner met the late Jake Ruppert, who owned the New York Yankees. He told Ruppert about his success and finished with the story of the money in the bank. Ruppert was not impressed. He took a coin out of his pocket and said: "All right, my good man. I'll match you for the quarter of a million."

DID YOU KNOW--that Bill Tilden was the greatest amateur OR professional tennis player that ever lived? He's placed at the top of the pile in any listing. Then I think I'd name Rene Cochet, the French player of the late 1920's. He came next to Tilden in many an international match. And while he didn't remain at the top too long, because of the war, I think the redhead, Don Budge would come next on my list.

DID YOU KNOW -- that when John L. Sullivan met Jim Corbett for the world's heavyweight title, the Boston Strong Boy was a 50-1 favorite, yet lost the title on a knockout to the dancing master?

Twins Shift Into AL Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota reclaimed undisputed possession first place in the pulsating American League pennant race Tuesday, riding a pair of Harmon Killebrew's mighty home runs and a homer and triple by Bob Allison to a 7-3 comeback victory over California.

The triumph lifted the Twins out of a first-place tie with Boston, which lost to Cleveland, and into a one-game lead. The idled White Sox are in second place, one point ahead of Boston.

Killebrew's 435-foot two-run homer after Cesar Tovar singled ignited a four-run rally in the sixth inning that wiped out a 3-2 California lead.

TIE FOR LEAD

Killebrew then added a solo shot 430 feet to left-center in the seventh, tying him with Boston's Carl Yastrzemski for the American League homer at 43.

Allison hit his twenty-fourth homer with the bases empty in the fourth inning, after tripling and scoring on Rod Carew's single in the second. Allison also singled in the seventh. Carew added three singles for the Twins.

After Killebrew's homer off loser Jim McGlothin, 11-8, in the sixth, the Twins added two more runs with the help of three Angel errors.

Allison walked, moved to second on Carew's single and scored when Jim Fregosi threw the ball into the dugout trying for a double play on Ted Uhlaender's grounder.

Uhlaender then raced home when Bobby Knoop bobbled pitcher Jim Katt's grounder. Uhlaender appeared to be an easy out at the plate, but he knocked the ball out of Bob Rodger's glove for the third error of the inning.

Kaat weathered a three-run third inning to post his sixteenth victory against 13 defeats. The Angels batted nine men that inning, scoring on three singles, Tovar's error, a walk, a hit batsman and two fielder's choices. Aurelio Rodriguez' single drove in two runs and Bubba Morton's hit accounted for the third.

Kaat allowed only five hits and struck out 13 in pitching his thirteenth complete game.

Kaat now has 207 strikeouts for the season, the third Twins pitcher to pass the 200-mark this year.

The Twins set a home attendance record, with a crowd of 8012 pushing the season total to 1,467,-024 with one home game to pay.

At Boston, the light-hitting Chico Salmon drove in three runs with a homer and a double to offset Carl Yastrzemski's forty-third homer as the Cleveland Indians jolted Boston's pennant hopes with a 6-3 victory Tuesday.

Salmon, who carried a .222 batting average into the game, hurt the Red Sox by doubling home the first run and then scoring himself in the second. He capped his spree by hoisting a two-run shot into the left field screen in the sixth for his second homer of the season.

Cleveland scored its third run on a throwing error as the Boston defense collapsed behind starter Gary Bell in the third. Chuck Hinton's tenth homer leading off the sixth against Jose Santiago accounted for the Indians' other run.

The Red Sox were unable to break through Cleveland right-hander Luis Tiant until the seventh.

Jose Tartabull launched the three-run uprising with a one-out pop single to shallow right. Jerry Adair followed with a line single to the same sector. Tartabull stopping at second.

Yastrzemski, who lined his thirty-first double to right center in the fifth, looked at a ball and then lifted a tremendous drive into the centerfield bleachers.

In addition, his 43 homers tied him with Ted Williams for the most home runs hit by a left-handed hitter in Red Sox history.

Bell, who had defeated his former teammates three straight times since being acquired from Cleveland in June, ran into trouble in the second inning.

Tony Horton, sent to Cleveland in the Bell deal, singled and scored as Salmon lined his double into the left field corner. Salmon came around on two infield outs.

Tiant was credited with a hit when his soft liner popped out of Jerry Adair's glove to start the third. Bell retired the next two batters, but Max Alvis lifted a high fly to short center.

Baseball Round-Up

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Just about everybody has a finger in the American League pennant pie, including Mother Nature, but Harmon Killebrew shoved his whole fist into it.

Killebrew walloped a pair of tape measure home runs Tuesday helping Minnesota whip California 7-3. The victory moved the Twins one full game ahead of both Boston and Chicago. The Red Sox lost 6-3 to Cleveland and the White Sox bowed to the elements when their game at Kansas City was postponed by rain.

The rainout left the Sox in second place, one percentage point ahead of Boston but Chicago must play a doubleheader tonight. Fourth-place Detroit, still alive, stayed 1½ games off the pace by whipping New York 1-0. Washington trimmed Baltimore 4-1 in Tuesday's other AL game.

In the National League, Chicago edged St. Louis 8-7, Atlanta nipped Cincinnati 4-3, Houston topped Philadelphia 3-2, Los Angeles beat Pittsburgh 3-1 and San Francisco slugged New York 8-3.

Killebrew hammered a 435-foot shot following Cesar Tovar's sixth inning single as the Twins busted loose for four runs, wiping out a 3-2 California lead.

An inning later, Killebrew's 43rd of the season went into orbit. Bob Allison also homered for Minnesota.

Jim Kaat pitched a five-hitter and struck out 13 for his seventh victory this month. It ran his season's record to 16-13.

Boston, meanwhile, was victimized by light-hitting Chico Salmon, who drove in three runs with a homer and a double. Salmon started the Indians off by doubling home a run and then scoring another in the second inning. Four innings later, he lofted his second homer of the year with a man on base.

Chuck Hinton also homered and Luis Tiant went the distance for Cleveland despite Carl Yastrzemski's 43rd homer, which accounted for all three Red Sox runs.

The Red Sox trail both Minnesota and Chicago by one game in the loss column. They play the Twins the last two games of the season but can not make up the ground against the White Sox unless either Kansas City or Washington beats Chicago at least once.

Detroit stayed alive on Mickey Lolich's four-hitter, against the Yankees. Ed Mathews' sixth inning sacrifice fly drove in the game's only run against loser Mel Stottlemyre, 14-15, who allowed only three hits.

Lennie Green sliced a double to left, the first hit off Stottlemyre, opening the sixth. He raced to third on Dick McAuliffe's single to center and McAuliffe reached second on the throw to the plate. After Al Kaline was intentionally walked, Mathews' fly ball drove in the run.

The pennant race resumes today with Cleveland at Boston and California at Minnesota for day games and Chicago in Kansas City for a twi-night doubleheader. The Tigers have the day off.

The two selected groups of schools differed widely. The schools with the higher ratings had a mean enrollment of 638 (ranging from 330 to 1468), they had 20 to 85 teachers, and were located in cities with populations from 2,000 to more than 100,000. The assessed valuation of the school districts ranged from $6,004,400 to $99,200,000, with the mean assessed valuation of the groups being $23,563,465.

The schools with lower ratings were all in small communities with populations from 127 to 526. They had four to nine teachers. The mean enrollment was 84 (25 to 142). The school district's assessed valuation ranged from $647,456 to $2,609,-064, with a mean assessed valuation of $1,170,483.

On the basis of Dr. Cain's study, the larger schools appeared to have many advantages. They had a wider variety of sports participation, with more administrators spending more time on the programs. They made up their schedule of contests earlier, had more experienced and better educated administrators at higher pay levels, older coaches with longer experience and a higher educational level who were paid better and were retained longer, had better quality of officiating for which they paid more, and had better facilities.

Dr. Cain's dissertation offered several recommendations. These include: Schools which are unable to provide acceptable and adequate personnel and facilities which will permit a quality program of interscholastic athletics should be reorganized into units with a potential for meeting these standards.

Specific requirements for certification of interscholastic coaches should be established by the Missouri State Department of Education.

All schools that participate in interscholastic athletics should formulate a philosophy for their athletic program that is properly designed to achieve desirable educational goals.

The sportsmanship rating system for interscholastic basketball contests used by the Missouri State School Activities Association should be carefully reevaluated in all areas.

The requirements for initially becoming a licensed basketball official with the Missouri State High School Activities Association should be raised, and the association should initiate a statewide program aimed at the improvement of the quality of basketball officiating.

All schools with interscholastic programs should provide for sending cheerleaders to district and state leadership clinics.

Dr. Cain, a native of Dixon, Mo., was chairman of the department of physical education and director of athletics at Central Methodist College, Fayette, in 1964-66.

All Over In National But Rhubarbs

By the Associated Press

Basketballs and baseball managers take some funny bounces. . .and now Rod Reed has seen a little of both.

Reed, a former pro cager making his pitch for a baseball job with the Atlanta Braves, inadvertently touched off one of the season's zaniest rhubarbs Tuesday night at Cincinnati.

The Braves edged the Reds 4-3 for Reed's second victory in the majors. But both managers played the game under protest and neither one was around for the finish. . .because an umpire dared to change his mind.

Rookie Umpire Frank Dezelan signalled a foul tip on a pitch to Reed in the Braves' eighth, then reversed himself and called it a ball. After a hassle at home plate, Reds' skipper Dave Bristol and Atlanta pilot Billy Hitchcock were ejected, along with Cincinnati second baseman Tommy Helms.

Both managers then announced they were completing the game under protest. . .a happening perhaps unprecedented in baseball history.

In other National League action, San Francisco drubbed the New York Mets 8-3, Los Angeles trimmed Pittsburgh 3-1, Houston shaded Philadelphia 3-2 and the Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis 8-7.

The fireworks at Cincinnati started after Hank Aaron's three-run homer shot the Braves into a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning. Reed, who had blanked the Reds except for a fifth inning homer by pitcher Milt Pappas, took a pitch from reliever Don Nottebart.

Dezelan gave the foul tip sign, then changed his call . . . bringing Hitchcock and Bristol to the plate on the run.

"I did not question the call," Hitchcock said. "I just asked what it was and I walked away. Then Bristol came back to the plate and I went back and asked what he wanted to know."

"I wasn't questioning whether it was a ball or a foul tip," said Bristol. I wanted to know why [illegible] gave the foul tip sign, then decided it was a ball."

"I did give it, but I changed my mind," said Dezelan, explaining he first thought the pitch ticked Reed's bat, but decided the ball had hit the glove of catcher John Bench instead.

"A manager cannot protest balls and strikes," the umpire added.

The victory was the first of the season for Reed, who played for the Detroit Pistons in the National Basketball Association before giving up the court game. He pitched for the Braves' Richmond farm club until his recall early this month.

Willie Mays slammed a pair of homers, driving in three runs, Willie McCovey unloaded a 450-foot, three-run blast and Jim Hart hit a solo homer as the Giants pounded the Mets.

The Dodgers' Don Drysdale registered his 190th career victory with relief help from Ron Perranoski, matching the club record set by Dazzy Vance. Al Ferrara's two-run homer in the first inning was the big blow for Los Angeles.

Chuck Harrison's leadoff homer in the ninth lifted the Astros past the Phillies for their third straight victory.

The Cubs caught St. Louis in the ninth. Ron Santo homered to tie the score, Al Spangler doubled and Randy Hundley knocked in the winner with a two-out single. Lou Brock, who socked two homers for the NL champions, sent them ahead 7-6 with a two-run shot in the top of the ninth.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Elmer Flick of Cleveland won the American League batting title in 1905 with an average of .306? In the National League, .320 is the lowest figure to win a batting crown and that honor goes to Mickey Doyle of the 1915 Giants.

DID YOU KNOW -- that all eight of the Dusek brothers of Omaha were professional wrestlers?

MU Leads Big Eight Rushers

KANSAS CITY -- The "mod" group so far in Big Eight Conference football has made the scene with a strong rushing defense as figures in this department mark a parallel between the ground-game crushers and the win-loss column.

Missouri, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, Oklahoma State and Kansas State are all still undefeated, and have been rather uncompromising when it comes to allowing ground passage permits. The Tigers have surrendered only 50 yards in 40 plays, a per-play mark of only 1.25 yards a try.

Almost as stingy is Oklahoma with its 1.8 allowance (53 yards in 29 attempts by Washington State). At 1.9 is Colorado's vaunted front five, giving up just 153 yards in 83 tries against Baylor and Oregon. Nebraska has allowed 120 yards so far, Oklahoma State an average of 137, and Kansas State only 155.

The marks of Missouri (50.0), Oklahoma (53.0), and Colorado (76.5) are all under the Conference's best ground defense finish in the last 18 years. And, only Oklahoma's 43.3 limitation back in 1938 stands better than either the Tigers' or Sooners' average to date.

Offensively, the honors are split three ways, with Missouri and Oklahoma stepping back to the front again. Kansas leads in passing.

Missouri, with its 285 rushing lengths, holds a wide lead over Oklahoma (211) and Nebraska (209), the only other two with averages over 200, as balanced offense appears to be "in" this year.

The Jayhawks, following preseason indications that swirled through the air in Kansas, made their aerial charge with 171 from Bob Douglass. Kansas State, figured early to be one of the team passing leaders, too, has staked a claim for second with a 161 average, while Oklahoma is third with 152.

This pass total for the Sooners lets them balance out their offense and take the total lead with an impressive 363 figure.

Arkansas State Meets Tennessee Tech Saturday

JONESBORO -- After an astounding 21-8 upset victory over Western Michigan Saturday night, the Indians of Arkansas State University have a week to get ready for the Golden Eagles of Tennessee Tech.

ASU should be in top physical condition for the contest, but the Indians must avoid a mental letdown. ASU's opening victory over WMU represented a win over one of the most powerful teams to ever appear in Kays Stadium, while T-Tech is not that well known.

However, the Eagles have always been a nemesis for the Tribe, winning 10 ot 15 outings between the two teams. Last year, ASU won 49-13 in a season opener after squeaking by the Eagles 12-7 at Cookeville the previous year.

The Indians exhibited an explosive offense and a rugged, although sometimes erring, defense against WMU. Steve Gankiewicz, the pint-sized fullback at 190 pounds, is again expected to be a big gun in the ASU offense.

Against the Broncos last week, Gankiewicz, who was the Southland Conference's leading scorer last season, carried for 163 yards and three touchdowns in 25 attempts.

The Indians were out-weighed 31 pounds per man in the defensive line, yet ASU's hitter proved so tough that the Broncos went to the air to move the ball. The Indian pass defense made a few mistakes but made up for them with three interceptions.

Along with Gankiewicz, ASU has the passing duo of Tim Keane to Gerald Jumper and the running of halfbacks Frank McGuigan and Benny Winford.

Tennessee Tech builds its offense around quarterback Dale Swain and fullback Larry Schreiber. Swain, a senior, has two outstanding pass receivers in halfback Terry Parks, who is also a fine runner, and big end David Hudson, also a blocking terror.

Schreiber was the Eagles' top ground gainer last year, rushing for 591 yards. Rounding out the backfield is halfback Jo Raleigh.

Last week Tennessee Tech stopped rival Murray State 22-21. Tech jumped out to a 14-0 first quarter lead before Murray fought back.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Shoeless Joe Jackson was not the first big name ball player to play without shoes? As a matter of record, Hans Wagner played several games in his stocking feet when he first came up to the Pittsburgh Pirates. He couldn't find shoes to fit.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Stoney McGlynn, former pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, once pitched a doubleheader for the Red Birds and won both contests, 1 to nothing? While with the Milwaukee team in 1909, McGlynn won 14 straight shutouts.

Night Desk GR1-1137

Our Sports Night desk will be open from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. each Friday night and Saturday morning during the prep gridiron football season.

All coaches are reminded to call in their game during that time in order to keep receiving their complimentary paper.

Birds' Bakken Scoring Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — John Unitas and Willie Richardson of the Baltimore Colts lead the National Football League in pass throwing and receiving respectively, according to statistics released by the league today.

Unitas had 43 completions out of 66 attempts for a 65.2 percentage and 668 yards. Richardson has 13 catches for 203 yards, a 15.6-yard-per-catch average, and two touchdowns.

Jim Bakken of St. Louis leads the scorers with 30 points on nine field goals and three extra points. Dan Reeves of Dallas leads the rushers with 183 yards on 33 attempts, a 5.5 yard average.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the greatest all 'round athlete in the American Sports history has to be Jim Thorpe? When anyone mentions the name of Jim Thorpe, the old Indian athlete, there is hardly ever an argument. Thorpe, who came out of Carlisle College as one of the world's greatest gridiron players, went on to star on the track and field and was named the greatest athlete in the world by the King of Sweden, during the 1912 Olympic games. Then Thorpe turned to professional football and baseball. He was good enough to win a niche in anybody's hall of fame on the professional gridiron and was good enough to spend several years in the major leagues. Thorpe could run, toss the weights, smash a football line, bash a home run, box with the best amaterus, wrestle with the pros and do virtually any other athlete could do and do it better. I don't think there's an argument in the world when one names Jim Thorpe as the greatest all-round athlete the world has ever known, or will know.

DID YOU KNOW -- that in the true sense of the word as we know it today, Bobby Jones was the first and only man to capture the grand slam title of golf? That's the National Open and Amateur and the British Open and Amateur. Bobby captured those four crowns back in 1930 and then retired from active competition except for his own meet in the Masters Open. But back in 1916, when it was not so common for Gold pros or amateurs to run around the world playing gold, Chick Evans of Chicago was rated the Grand Slam champion of his era when he won both the National Open and Amateur titles. Chick also won the Western Amateur four times in a row and was one of the greatest golfers of his day.

Big Red In St. Louis Sunday To Take On Lions

ST. LOUIS -- Jim Bakken, now a permanent member of the NFL record - setting club, will be faced by the man he succeeded, Garo Yepremian of the Detroit Lions, when the Cardinals and Detroit tangle here Sunday.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1:05 p.m. (CDT) at Civic Center Busch Memorial Stadium.

Now 1-1 after their 28-14 triumph over Pittsburgh, and sharing the lead in the Century Division with the Steelers and Giants, the Cardinals will face a Detroit club that is a surprising 1-0-1 after a 17-17 tie with Green Bay and a 31-14 victory over Cleveland.

With rookie Mel Farr and Tom Nowatzke leading the way, the Lions pace the NFL in rushing. Milt Plum, who has regained the starting quarterback berth, hit 16 of 27 passes for 229 yards against Cleveland, and has a two-game total of 23 completions in 44 attempts for 270 yards.

The Big Red defense slammed the door on a Pittsburgh attack that had rolled up almost 400 yards and 41 points against the Chicago Bears, halting the Steelers with 94 yards rushing.

In addition, the Cardinals intercepted three passes (two by Pat Fischer, one by Bobby Williams) and forced the Steelers into five fumbles, recovering three of them.

Bakken, having the greatest day of his career, notched seven field goals in nine tries, both NFL records. Yepremian, the Lions' left-footed soccer-style kicker had the previous record of six field goals, established a year ago. Yepremian and Lou Michaels, then of Pittsburgh, shared the attempts mark of eight.

Bakken's previous highs were five field goals, against Philadelphia in 1964, and seven attempts, against the Atlanta Falcons last year.

In addition, Bakken achieved his records with two different centers and two different holders. Bob DeMarco was the center and Larry Wilson the holder for the first five tries (four good), and, after injuries to them, Irv Goode became the center and Bobby Joe Conrad the holder for the final four attempts (three good).

"I knew what the record was," Bakken said, "and I hoped I'd have a shot at it. But when the time came, I tried to forget about the record and just concentrate on kicking the ball. The centers and the holders did great jobs, and all I had to do was remember to kick it straight."

Bakken totaled 22 points for the day and his 30 for two games gives him the early NFL lead. His 22 points were the most ever in one game for a kicker, and his 19 apperances on the field are another apparent record. The Wisconsin blond had the nine field goal tries, nine kickoffs and a conversion.

The Cardinal kicker is one game away from another NFL record. He has booted field goals in 13 consecutive games, one short of the NFL standard of 14 established by Cleveland's Lou Groza back in the 1950-51 seasons.

Offensive line injuries forced some juggling during the game, but the protection held up well enough so that Jim Hart was not dumped at all during the game and the running attack averaged 3.9 yards a carry. With Ken Gray sidelined by bruised ribs, Goode started at left guard, DeMarco at center and Rick Sortun at right guard. When DeMarco went out, Goode shifted to center and Dave O'Brien moved in at left guard.

Birds' Bakken Scoring Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — John Unitas and Willie Richardson of the Baltimore Colts lead the National Football League in pass throwing and receiving respectively, according to statistics released by the league today.

Unitas had 43 completions out of 66 attempts for a 65.2 percentage and 668 yards. Richardson has 13 catches for 203 yards, a 15.6-yard-per-catch average, and two touchdowns.

Jim Bakken of St. Louis leads the scorers with 30 points on nine field goals and three extra points. Dan Reeves of Dallas leads the rushers with 183 yards on 33 attempts, a 5.5 yard average.

DID YOU KNOW -- that the greatest all 'round athlete in the American Sports history has to be Jim Thorpe? When anyone mentions the name of Jim Thorpe, the old Indian athlete, there is hardly ever an argument. Thorpe, who came out of Carlisle College as one of the world's greatest gridiron players, went on to star on the track and field and was named the greatest athlete in the world by the King of Sweden, during the 1912 Olympic games. Then Thorpe turned to professional football and baseball. He was good enough to win a niche in anybody's hall of fame on the professional gridiron and was good enough to spend several years in the major leagues. Thorpe could run, toss the weights, smash a football line, bash a home run, box with the best amaterus, wrestle with the pros and do virtually any other athlete could do and do it better. I don't think there's an argument in the world when one names Jim Thorpe as the greatest all-round athlete the world has ever known, or will know.

Arkansas State Meets Tennessee Tech Saturday

JONESBORO -- After an astounding 21-8 upset victory over Western Michigan Saturday night, the Indians of Arkansas State University have a week to get ready for the Golden Eagles of Tennessee Tech.

ASU should be in top physical condition for the contest, but the Indians must avoid a mental letdown. ASU's opening victory over WMU represented a win over one of the most powerful teams to ever appear in Kays Stadium, while T-Tech is not that well known.

However, the Eagles have always been a nemesis for the Tribe, winning 10 ot 15 outings between the two teams. Last year, ASU won 49-13 in a season opener after squeaking by the Eagles 12-7 at Cookeville the previous year.

The Indians exhibited an explosive offense and a rugged, although sometimes erring, defense against WMU. Steve Gankiewicz, the pint-sized fullback at 190 pounds, is again expected to be a big gun in the ASU offense.

Against the Broncos last week, Gankiewicz, who was the Southland Conference's leading scorer last season, carried for 163 yards and three touchdowns in 25 attempts.

The Indians were out-weighed 31 pounds per man in the defensive line, yet ASU's hitter proved so tough that the Broncos went to the air to move the ball. The Indian pass defense made a few mistakes but made up for them with three interceptions.

Along with Gankiewicz, ASU has the passing duo of Tim Keane to Gerald Jumper and the running of halfbacks Frank McGuigan and Benny Winford.

Tennessee Tech builds its offense around quarterback Dale Swain and fullback Larry Schreiber. Swain, a senior, has two outstanding pass receivers in halfback Terry Parks, who is also a fine runner, and big end David Hudson, also a blocking terror.

Schreiber was the Eagles' top ground gainer last year, rushing for 591 yards. Rounding out the backfield is halfback Jo Raleigh.

Last week Tennessee Tech stopped rival Murray State 22-21. Tech jumped out to a 14-0 first quarter lead before Murray fought back.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Shoeless Joe Jackson was not the first big name ball player to play without shoes? As a matter of record, Hans Wagner played several games in his stocking feet when he first came up to the Pittsburgh Pirates. He couldn't find shoes to fit.

DID YOU KNOW -- that Stoney McGlynn, former pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, once pitched a doubleheader for the Red Birds and won both contests, 1 to nothing? While with the Milwaukee team in 1909, McGlynn won 14 straight shutouts.

Big-Big-Big

Scramble Set At Malden Course

The tournament will be limited to the first 100 players or 50 teams. Call or write Tudor Willis, 134 W. Main St. in Malden for entry procedure.

The tournament will get underway at 9 a.m. with a shotgun start. Practice rounds may be played Oct. 5-7.

DID YOU KNOW -- that in the true sense of the word as we know it today, Bobby Jones was the first and only man to capture the grand slam title of golf? That's the National Open and Amateur and the British Open and Amateur. Bobby captured those four crowns back in 1930 and then retired from active competition except for his own meet in the Masters Open. But back in 1916, when it was not so common for Gold pros or amateurs to run around the world playing gold, Chick Evans of Chicago was rated the Grand Slam champion of his era when he won both the National Open and Amateur titles. Chick also won the Western Amateur four times in a row and was one of the greatest golfers of his day.

Big Red In St. Louis Sunday To Take On Lions

ST. LOUIS -- Jim Bakken, now a permanent member of the NFL record - setting club, will be faced by the man he succeeded, Garo Yepremian of the Detroit Lions, when the Cardinals and Detroit tangle here Sunday.

Kickoff is scheduled for 1:05 p.m. (CDT) at Civic Center Busch Memorial Stadium.

Now 1-1 after their 28-14 triumph over Pittsburgh, and sharing the lead in the Century Division with the Steelers and Giants, the Cardinals will face a Detroit club that is a surprising 1-0-1 after a 17-17 tie with Green Bay and a 31-14 victory over Cleveland.

With rookie Mel Farr and Tom Nowatzke leading the way, the Lions pace the NFL in rushing. Milt Plum, who has regained the starting quarterback berth, hit 16 of 27 passes for 229 yards against Cleveland, and has a two-game total of 23 completions in 44 attempts for 270 yards.

The Big Red defense slammed the door on a Pittsburgh attack that had rolled up almost 400 yards and 41 points against the Chicago Bears, halting the Steelers with 94 yards rushing.

In addition, the Cardinals intercepted three passes (two by Pat Fischer, one by Bobby Williams) and forced the Steelers into five fumbles, recovering three of them.

Bakken, having the greatest day of his career, notched seven field goals in nine tries, both NFL records. Yepremian, the Lions' left-footed soccer-style kicker had the previous record of six field goals, established a year ago. Yepremian and Lou Michaels, then of Pittsburgh, shared the attempts mark of eight.

Bakken's previous highs were five field goals, against Philadelphia in 1964, and seven attempts, against the Atlanta Falcons last year.

In addition, Bakken achieved his records with two different centers and two different holders. Bob DeMarco was the center and Larry Wilson the holder for the first five tries (four good), and, after injuries to them, Irv Goode became the center and Bobby Joe Conrad the holder for the final four attempts (three good).

"I knew what the record was," Bakken said, "and I hoped I'd have a shot at it. But when the time came, I tried to forget about the record and just concentrate on kicking the ball. The centers and the holders did great jobs, and all I had to do was remember to kick it straight."

Bakken totaled 22 points for the day and his 30 for two games gives him the early NFL lead. His 22 points were the most ever in one game for a kicker, and his 19 apperances on the field are another apparent record. The Wisconsin blond had the nine field goal tries, nine kickoffs and a conversion.

The Cardinal kicker is one game away from another NFL record. He has booted field goals in 13 consecutive games, one short of the NFL standard of 14 established by Cleveland's Lou Groza back in the 1950-51 seasons.

Offensive line injuries forced some juggling during the game, but the protection held up well enough so that Jim Hart was not dumped at all during the game and the running attack averaged 3.9 yards a carry. With Ken Gray sidelined by bruised ribs, Goode started at left guard, DeMarco at center and Rick Sortun at right guard. When DeMarco went out, Goode shifted to center and Dave O'Brien moved in at left guard.

Our Field hospital unit was bivouacked under canvas on the dusty plains of California's Hunter Liggett Military Reservation. One sergeant had his Pekingese with him, and the pooch always hit the breakfast chow line looking for a handout. This particular morning the mess sergeant served that personal unfavorite -- creamed chipped beef on toast. The first man in the chow line put his piece of toast on the ground in front of the little dog and daintily poured the chipped beef on it.

Roars of approval thundered when everyone in line as the pup sniffed at the mixture uncertainly, then turned his back on it and with his hind leg covered it up with dirt.

Frank Holby

In North Africa I was attached to a headquarters company as liaison officer for the commanding general. The youngest lieutenant colonel in the outfit, I was quite proud of my duties and rank. One day I roared up on my motorcycle and parked it on the steps of the building being used as the general's command post. The MP's guarding the entrance gave me a snappy salute, but as I entered the building I overheard one ask the other, "Who's that?"

"Highest-paid errand i boy in North Africa," was the reply.

CARUTHERSVILLE - Recommendations by the Memphis office of the U. S. corps of engineers on the Missouri state highway department's revised plans for the Mississippi River bridge at Caruthersville were forwarded to federal officials in Vicksburg, Miss., and Washington, D. C. Major James A. West, deputy district engineer of the corps of Engineers' Memphis office, the unit's recommendations were mailed over the signature of Col. James Vivian, District Engineer at Memphis.

Major West said he could not divulge the contents of the recommendations, which were mailed first to the Mississippi River Commission office at Vicksburg and will then be mailed directly to the Corps of Engineers' Chief Engineer in Washington, D. C. The recommendations first went to the Mississippi River Commission as a matter of formality and for information, he said.

The Memphis office's recommendations dealt with recent protests by large line firms on the Missouri Highway Department's plans for the proposed span across the Mississippi to link the Bootheel with western Tennessee. The large lines, speaking through the Mississippi Valley Association, protested the State Highway Department's proposal to build a 900-foot span on the river's downward side, contending that such length should be increased to 1200 feet.

The Memphis office's recommendations, once reviewed by the chief engineer of the corps of engineers, will be sent to the commandant of the U. S. coast guard for what is presumed to be the final decision in the matter.

The coast guard's recent transfer to the newly created department of question as to which indivual will ultimately make the final decision. It is possible that Alas S. Boyd, the new secretary of transportation, will make the decision rather than the coast guard's commanding officer.

Major West said he could give no estimate as to when a decision would be reached.

If the Missouri highway department's plans are rejected new plans will have to be drawn, resulting in a delay and additional costs will be tacked to the original estimates of $15 million for the span.

Our Field hospital unit was bivouacked under canvas on the dusty plains of California's Hunter Liggett Military Reservation. One sergeant had his Pekingese with him, and the pooch always bit the breakfast chow line looking for a handout. This particular morning the mess sergeant served that perennial unfavorite -- creamed chipped beef on toast. The first man in the chow line put his piece of toast on the ground in front of the little dog and daintily poured the chipped beef on it.

Roars of approval thundered from everyone in line as the pup sniffed at the mixture uncertainly, then turned his back on it and with his hind leg covered it up with dirt.

Frank Holby

In North Africa I was attached to a headquarters company as liaison officer for the commanding general. The youngest lieutenant colonel in the outfit, I was quite proud of my duties and rank. One day I roared up on my motorcycle and parked it on the steps of the building being used as the general's command post. The MP's guarding the entrance gave me a snappy salute, but as I entered the building I overheard one ask the other, "Who's that?"

"Highest-paid errand l boy in North Africa," was the reply.

The federal officer went on to state he is familiar with conditions in this part of the state, indicating that at least some of these areas would come under close inspection during the next several months.

Included in the investigation by the new grand jury will be organized crime in the St. Louis area as well as out-state regions. To aid in the investigation, the Justice Department has provided assistance from its Organized Crime Division in Washington.

Racketeering and gambling will also be targets of the grand jury, Riddle pointed out, but without more specific indications as to areas in question.

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Several ladies have asked me to repeat some of my recipes of the past, and so gentlemen, if you will bear with me this week, I will at least bring some enjoyment to your table.

This one is new and simply delicious!!

BROCCOLI SURPRISE

Cook and drain one pkg. of frozen broccoli pieces. Melt ½ of a stick of oleo, and pour over broccoli. Melt another ½ stick of oleo with ½ lb. of Velveeta cheese.

In layers in a casserole, put broccoli, then cheese mixture, and ritz crackers, (crush fifteen Ritz crackers), until all is used up. Then bake at 350, until done.

Just ate this at bridge club and was extremely good and sooo easy!

Tuna or Chicken Chow Mein

Use either 1-7 ounce can of tuna which you have rinsed and drained in cold water, or use two fryers you have boiled and boned.

Mix together in a large casserole:

Your chicken or tuna
1 can of golden mushroom soup diluted with ¼ can of water
1 cup of diced celery
¼ cups of minced green onions
½ lb. of cashews
1 three oz. can of chow mein noodles (reserve 1/2 cup of the noodles for your top)

Mix and top with noodles and bake at 325, for 40 minutes. Don't let it get too brown and dry out.

What a different type salad and again soo good!

Kraut Relish

Mix:
1 no. 303 can of undrained chopped kraut
1 cup of chopped green onions
1 cup of diced celery
1 can of chopped pimento

Bring this to a boil. Pour ½ cup of vinegar and 1 cup of sugar over this. Cover and let age in ice box for 24 hours.

I always think sugar cookies are tastless, believe me these are not.

SUGAR COOKIES

Cream 2/3 cup of butter with 1 cup sugar
Add 1 egg
Mix in 2 cups of flour
½ ts. salt
½ tsp. of baking soda
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix well and chill. Roll out thin, slice and bake at 350, for 10-12 minutes.

These are all in for the first time round, so get out the rollin' pins ladies and for a change use them on the counter top instead of the husband top.

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Several ladies have asked me to repeat some of my recipes of the past, and so gentlemen, if you will bear with me this week, I will at least bring some enjoyment to your table.

This one is new and simply delicious!!

BROCCOLI SURPRISE

Cook and drain one pkg. of frozen broccoli pieces. Melt ½ of a stick of oleo, and pour over broccoli. Melt another ½ stick of oleo with ½ lb. of Velveeta cheese.

In layers in a casserole, put broccoli, then cheese mixture, and ritz crackers, (crush fifteen Ritz crackers), until all is used up. Then bake at 350, until done.

Just ate this at bridge club and was extremely good and sooo easy!

Tuna or Chicken Chow Mein

Use either 1-7 ounce can of tuna which you have rinsed and drained in cold water, or use two fryers you have boiled and boned.

Mix together in a large casserole:

Your chicken or tuna
1 can of golden mushroom soup diluted with ¼ can of water
1 cup of diced celery
¼ cups of minced green onions
¼ lb. of cashews
1 three oz. can of chow mein noodles (reserve 1/2 cup of the noodles for your top)

Mix and top with noodles and bake at 325, for 40 minutes. Don't let it get too brown and dry out.

What a different type salad and again soo good!

Kraut Relish

Mix:
1 no. 303 can of undrained chopped kraut
1 cup of chopped green onions
1 cup of diced celery
1 can of chopped pimento

Bring this to a boil. Pour ½ cup of vinegar and 1 cup of sugar over this. Cover and let age in ice box for 24 hours.

I always think sugar cookies are tastless, believe me these are not.

SUGAR COOKIES

Cream 2/3 cup of butter with 1 cup sugar
Add 1 egg
Mix in 2 cups of flour
½ ts. salt
½ tsp. of baking soda
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix well and chill. Roll out thin, slice and bake at 350, for 10-12 minutes.

These are all in for the first time round, so get out the rollin' pins ladies and for a change use them on the counter top instead of the husband top.

BOSTON (AP) – A Somerville, Mass., woman gave birth to a healthy girl in Massachusetts General Hospital although the mother had been in a coma for 170 days. Dr. Barry G. Aranson, the attending physician, attributed the normal delivery to extraordinary care by the hospital staff. The woman, Mrs. Shirley May Sweency, 36, had suffered a cardiovascular accident and collapsed nearly six months earlier.

The $1 O'Neill stamp, of the "Prominent Americans" series will be issued Oct. 16 at New London, Conn., his boyhood home. The design features a portrait of O'Neill based on a photograph which captures his characteristic brooding mood. The stamp will be printed in dark purple.

Across the top of the verticle stamp is "Eugene O'Neill." In the same type beneath the photo is "Playwright."

O'Neill was born Oct. 16, 1888, in New York – 79 years prior to the issuance of his special stamp. He died in Boston Nov. 27, 1953.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New London, Conn. 06320. DOG OF THE YEAR, according to an annual contest sponsored by a dog food company, is a 180-lb. St. Bernard named Mijo, from Anchorage, Alaska. Mijo swam to the aid of her 13-year-old mistress, shown here. When a mud slide plunged the girl into chin-deep water, her feet stuck in the mire. As Mijo reached her the girl seized the dog's collar and the dog pulled her free of the mud and towed her to a nearby bank. For her heroism, Mijo's awards include the Ken-L Ration gold medal, a gold-plated leash, a $1,000 U.S. Savings bond, a year's supply of dog food, and a dinner in her honor in Chicago.

COED FASHIONS FOR CAMPUS and date-time are perter than ever this time around. Hit the campus in the all-wool plaid mini-jumper (left) with never a worry about peeping petticoats. The skirt flares out beneath. In all-wool gabardine with tiny sleeves and a stand-up collar, it comes in paprika citron and grass green. These designs are by Craig/Craely.

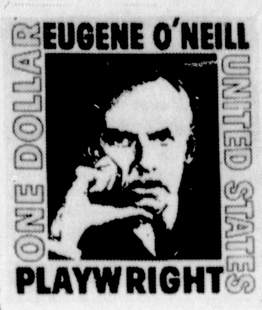
Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

EUGENE O'Neill, winner of four Pulitzer Prizes and a Nobel Prize for literature, will be the first American playwright to be honored with a U.S. stamp.



The $1 O'Neill stamp, of the "Prominent Americans" series will be issued Oct. 16 at New London, Conn., his boyhood home. The design features a portrait of O'Neill based on a photograph which captures his characteristic brooding mood. The stamp will be printed in dark purple.

Across the top of the verticle stamp is "Eugene O'Neill." In the same type beneath the photo is "Playwright."

O'Neill was born Oct. 16, 1888, in New York — 79 years prior to the issuance of his special stamp. He died in Boston Nov. 27, 1953.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New London, Conn. 06320. The envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First-Day Covers Eugene O'Neill Stamp." Requests must be postmarked no later than Oct. 16.

This year's ASDA (American Stamp Dealers' Association) Postage Stamp Show to be held Nov. 17-19 in New York will be a special treat for first-day cover collectors.

The show will feature first-day sales of three new issues. One will be a new U.S. 5-cent regular postage stamp, a 5-cent United Nations commemorative showing a motif from a stained glass window by Marc Chagall, and a special U.N. art presentation sheet of six 5-cent stamps that combine to show the entire Chagall window.

The Israeli Ministry of Posts has announced it has released a set of 12 envelopes with official post office cancellations from occupied territories.

According to word from the Israel Philatelic Agency in New York, the envelopes have cancellations from the following cities — Jerusalem, Jericho, Gaza, Bethlehem, Hebron, Ramalla, Nablus, Jenin, Tul Karm, Rafiah, Kahn Yunis and Deir el Balah.

Each of the 12 envelopes is affixed with a 15-agorot definitive stamp, the official seal of the Ministry of Posts, plus the cancellation. The cancellations have the names of the cities inscribed in Hebrew, English and Arabic. All, except the Jerusalem cancellation, include the word "ZAHAL" — the Hebrew name of the Israel Defense Forces.

This unusual set of envelopes is available at your local stamp dealer or you may write directly to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

Australia will issue a 4-cent postage stamp to mark the fifth World Congress of Gynecology and Obstetrics scheduled for Sydney University. Alan Hulme, Australian postmaster general, said the stamp is also being issued in recognition of the special importance of gynecology and obstetrics in modern medicine.

Lebanon has issued a new set of stamps featuring ancient ruins in that country. The 5 piastres shows the ruins of the Roman settlement at Beit-Mery. The 7½ p depicts the ruined palace at Anjar. The 10 p illustrates water falls at ancient Djezzine. The 15 p shows Crusader Castle at Sidon. The 20 p pictures the Roman amphitheater at Byblos. The 30 p features ruins at Baalbek. The 50 p has the palace at Beit-ed-Dine. The 60 p bears a view of the area at Nahr-el-Kalb. The 75 p shows the mosque at Tripoli.

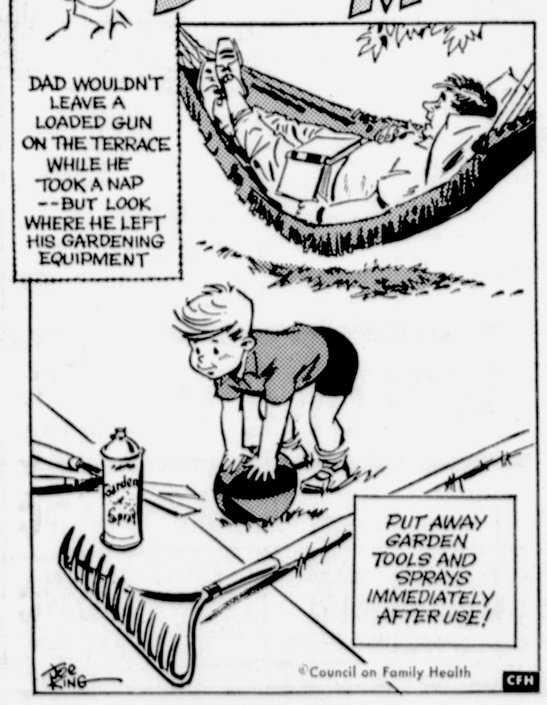
DOG OF THE YEAR, according to an annual contest sponsored by a dog food company, is a 180-lb. St. Bernard named Mijo, from Anchorage, Alaska. Mijo swam to the aid of her 13-year-old mistress, shown here. When a mud slide plunged the girl into chin-deep water, her feet stuck in the mire. As Mijo reached her the girl seized the dog's collar and the dog pulled her free of the mud and towed her to a nearby bank. For her heroism, Mijo's awards include the Ken-L Ration gold medal, a gold-plated leash, a $1,000 U.S. Savings bond, a year's supply of dog food, and a dinner in her honor in Chicago.



COED FASHIONS FOR CAMPUS and date-time are perter than ever this time around. Hit the campus in the all-wool plaid mini-jumper (left) with never a worry about peeping petticoats. It comes with its own plaid-trimmed panties. A-line in shape, it closes with tiny brass hooks and eyes. The dress to meet "him" in (right) is empire in line with a self-belt to mark the place. The skirt flares out beneath. In all-wool gabardine with tiny sleeves and a stand-up collar, i. comes in paprika citron and grass green. These designs are by Craig/Craely.

THE MINI-TRENCH — Cone Mills' cotton corduroy in brick red wins kudos for the double-breasted coat with high hem-line. It's teamed with patterned hose and way-out boots. Coat by N. Y. Machintosh.

Ann Landers

Screaming Mothers Need Care

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Ashamed Screaming Mother" had special meaning for me because my own mother was the champion screamer of all times.

A child never forgets when a mother says, "I wish you had died when you were a baby. You have been a terrible disappointment to me." Or-- "You ruined my life. I wish I had never had you." It's unbelievable the soul-searing things that can come out when a nut begins to yell her head off.

My mother's favorite expression after one of her screaming fits was, "I love you so much I would walk into the ocean to save you." Since we lived 1,000 miles from the nearest ocean I could see no chance of her proving her love in this dramatic manner. I once said to her, "If you love me so much why don't you just treat me a little better and stop saying such awful things?"

I'm a grown woman now and my mother has been in a mental institution for many years but I can truthfully say I have little or no compassion for her. I have memories. Please get this vital message across to all screaming mothers everywhere. It could save their youngsters a lot of grief. -- ONE WHO SURVIVED

Dear One: It is difficult to get ANY message across to a mother who would say to her child, "I wish you had died when you were a baby," and then, minutes later, offer to walk into the ocean to prove her love. You might just as well try to bore a hole through a brick wall with a toothpick.

Your mother's wide emotional swings indicate that she was a very sick woman. What I would like to tell all screaming mothers everywhere is this: When you feel yourself slipping out of control, get professional help. Don't wait until you slide over the edge. It may be too late.

Dear Ann Landers: Don't give me heck. Just tell me what to do. I am 19 now and have grown up a lot these past three years.

When I was a junior in high school there was a gad. If a fellow liked a girl he gave her a street sign. I now have in the basement of our home signs which read Yield, Slow, Dangerous Curve, Stop, Go, No Passing Allowed, and Soft Shoulder.

I would like to take these signs back but I don't know where they belong. Also, I don't want to get into trouble. Will you please tell me what to do? -- CHANGED SIGNALS.

Dear Changed: Telephone the police and ask if they will send someone from the Traffic Department to your home to pick up the signs, or if they would prefer that the signs be brought to the nearest station.

Be aware that you are in possession of property which you do not rightfully own. I am hopeful that the police will be lenient since you are volunteering to return the signs.

And, by the way, I hope no lives were lost because some fun-loving kid removed a sign which was placed at a critical spot for a very good reason.

Confidential to Want To Help: You are not a physician and neither am I. It is a fact that some skin eruptions are caused by emotional problems, but I would not attempt to diagnose the case and neither should you. Suggest that your friend see a specialist.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Report From Washington
Stuart Symington

Poverty Organization Told To Shape Up or Shut Down

Editor's Note: Senator Symington this week is completing his current trip abroad in connection with his work as a member of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees. The past few days, he has been in Israel, other parts of the Mediterranean area and is returning to Washington the end of this week by way of England. In his absence, this report was prepared by his office.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM EXTENDED -- The House and Senate have agreed on a two-year extension of the food stamp program. Funds are authorized in the amount of $200 million for this fiscal year and $225 million for next year to help needy persons obtain a healthy diet.

The food stamp program permits a family to purchase $16 worth of designated surplus food for $10 worth of stamps, with the Federal government paying the difference.

RENT FUNDS RESTORED BY SENATE -- The Senate has approved the $40 million budget request for the 1968 rent supplement program that has been eliminated earlier by the House. The urban program funds are included in the independent offices appropriations bill. Differences between the two chambers will be worked out in a Senate-House conference.

CANNED HAM IMPORTS -- Forty-five Senators, including Sen. Symington, have urged the Commissioner of Customs to take immediate steps to counteract action by the Common Market which would result in undercutting the U.S. canned ham domestic market.

The Common Market has authorized an export subsidy that would amount to approximately 50 cents on a two-pound can of ham. The Senators have asked the Commissioner to impose a countervailing duty to offset this export subsidy set by the Common Market.

PROGRESS ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN -- Opportunities for women to contribute to progress in the fields of education and fairer employment practices continued to expand in 1966, according to the Third Annual Report on the Status of Women.

The efforts and achievements of Missouri groups are pointed out in this report compiled by the Interdepartmental Committee and Citizens' Advisory Council on the Status of Women. They include the successful bid by the Missouri Commission on the Status of Women to secure an amendment to the Fair Employment Practices law to rule out employment discrimination by sex.

PORTAGEVILLE -- The six-county organization which has administered poverty programs for over two years in Southeast Missouri got the word in no uncertain terms--shape up or shut down.

The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation learned that only two programs will funded in November for the coming year and the budget will shrink from about $2.5 million to $600,000.

Wayne Thomas, regional administrator for Community Action Programs, told DAEOC that the administrative organization in the six county program must be completely revamped before the full $600,000 allocation will be approved.

An estimated $100,000 in poverty funds will be granted DAEOC, nearly 80 per cent of it for administrative costs. The remainder will go for Home Health Aids in Stoddard County and possible the After School Study Center in Kennett.

The remainder of the $600,000 allocation will come only when DAEOC "has put its house in order," Thomas told the group in Portageville.

Thomas said no other programs, including Neighborhood Service Centers, will be refunded immediately and suggested that personnel be notified of this.

In order to get the "mess" straightened out, regional officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity have suggested -- parctically ruled--that a management consultant firm be employed.

At the meeting Monday night were three regional OEO officials, Thomas, Assistant Director Dean Lupkey, and Field Representative John Wandeless. Lupkey, a key man on Regional Director Don Thomason's staff oysterved and did not take part in the meeting.

Thamas gave the presentation based on the findings of a 16-man evaluating team that was in this area in July to observe the DAEOC operations.

"We found some very serious problems," Thomas said quite frankly. He said that instead of operating a sic-county program, DAEOC has had 24 separate programs (referring to the Community Action Agencies.) "No one knows who has the authority now the responsibility." A director is hired to do a job but not given the authority to carry out day-to-day operations without approval of the board. Then, when a problem arises or a decision is to be made there is nobody who knows whether it should be decided by the CAA, the county board or the DAEOC board, Thomas pointed out.

The director has no means to hire and discipline the personnel who must carry out the programs, he continued. He has a weak position with no authority.

In addition, Thomas stated, it is a nice system on paper but nobody seems to pay any attention to the paper. There is also a lack of training.

The Neighborhood Service Centers, he went on, are going backwards. Instead of referring people to agencies, agencies are referring them to the Neighborhood Service Centers to provide taxi service. People are hauled to get groceries, to the doctor and many other places and the real job is not being done.

The evaluators did recommend that the six-county organization be maintained rather than splitting them up in any way. Currently the organization covers Pemiscot, Dunklin, New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott and Mississippi counties. He said there would be no advantage in dividing it up.

This virtually killed hope of a new three-county organization being formed in Pemiscot, Dunklin and Stoddard counties. The Bootheel Economic Encouragement Program (BEEP) had hopes to take over administration of poverty programs in the three counties.

Thomas said there is no doubt but that the DAEOC staff must be rebuilt completely. Some persons may lose their jobs, others shift jobs and some stay where they are. But a new personnel system with a personnel officer who can handle these problems is a must. The personnel must be placed on a merit system for hiring and advancement.

The regional CAP director was blunt when he said, "Mr. Wright (executive director) is not the man for a $2.5 million program. A smaller program, maybe, but not that large."

For a program the size of the one in Southeast Missouri a top-notch man is needed, Thomas said. This is something the management consultants can do -- recruit nation-wide to find the right man. Then the board must give him the authority to carry out the program if it is to be successful.

Thomas had the floor for nearly two hours, first outlining the OEO recommendations and then answering questions.

He said there is a long list of management problems, most of which will have to be resolved by the consultants. The main thing, he stated, is that a more effective administration must be set up as the current system is not getting the job done.

The head of CAP programs in an 11-state area went on to say programs in the Delta area have not been up to par. They will have to seek a new direction and more effective means to achieve the goals of the war on poverty.

Current programs, including the Neighborhood Service Centers, are slated to end November 30th. After that only the program in Stoddard County is assured continuation with the study center in Kennett a possibility. The administration of DAEOC will continue to function with federal funds but the main task will be to "get its house in order."

The Head Start program for pre-school children and the Homemaker Aides will be continued but under the sponsorship of the University of Missouri -- not DAEOC.

Thomas said if the reorganization of DAEOC is successful, it is likely that Head Start will be back under its direction by the fall of 1968.

If the re-organization of administrative procedures is carried out, OEO will find additional DAEOC programs as they are capable of handling them with hopes of the entire $600,000 allocation in DAEOC's hands within six months after the next component year has passed.

The DAEOC board voted to make an effort to employ a consulting firm as soon as possible with hope of getting things "shaped up" before the end of November. The main objective is to keep from having to close the Neighborhood Service Centers, considered the key link between the administration and the poor people of the area. There are 24 such centers in the area.

Thomas said the OEO could consider refunding these centers only if DAEOC is well on its way to meeting the recommendations by early November.

Hope for such an accomplishment, in view of the studies the consulting firms myst make, is very slight and one official said it would probably be Frebruary before such progress will be made.

A letter with all of the detailed recommendations by the regional office will be sent out very soon, Thomas said. The report of the evaluation team will not be made public as it is considered "administratively confidential" because it quotes a great deal of hear-say comments made to the evaluators.

Dexter Makes Labor Survey

DEXTER - An effort to make a labor survey of the community is being started this week by the Chamber of Commerce and its industrial committee.

The effort is being made with special emphasis at this time because of "feelers" this week from an industry, seeking a site location, the representatives of which visited Dexter early this week. But the industrial representatives asked immediately for an up to-date labor survey, mainly seeking prospective men employees.

The Chamber of Commerce hopes to secure at least 600 to 800 names and address and other information on prospective employees from this immediate area.

Forms are being prepared and will be distributed through the schools, asking the parents to fill out the forms sent to them by the students. Additional forms will be supplied the students, so, if the parents know of additional persons who might want employment here, they may fill out one of the survey forms for them.

Forms will also be supplied to local industries, which mainly employ women, asking them to fillout one of the survey forms for their husbands, if their husbands would be available for employment.

Local barber shops will also be supplied with the labor survey forms and asked to contact persons, who, though employed elsewhere, often return to Dexter and might be available for employment here.

It is expected also that a small booth will be set up at the forthcoming Stoddard County Fair, where persons may fill out one of the labor survey forms if they desire.

This, it was emphaized, is an all-out community-wide effort and could be of lasting value, not only to Dexter, but to communities throughout the entire county. Results of the survey will not only be available for the industry now considering the industry now considering Dexter as a possible site, but for other industrial development work, as well, it was pointed out.

All persons, whether they are now employed or not, are urged to fill out one of the labor survey forms. And, if persons elsewhere are known about, and it is known that they would be pleased to return to Dexter for employment, then a form can be filled out for them, too, it was pointed out.

Long for Senior Service Corps

WASHINGTON (AP)— Creation of a senior service corps for elderly persons who want to work in community improvement projects was urged by Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo.

In a statement to a Senate subcommittee, Long supported a pending bill to help senior citizens whom he said want to be active but are not given the chance.

Such persons could work in libraries and public schools, help homebound and ill mothers, and work on park and street improvements and clean - up and paint programs, he said.

Under the proposed legislation, Long said, "citizens will be paid for their efforts. They will know they can do the job and they will get the satisfaction of helping others while helping themselves."

If You Were the Judge

Horseburgers Okay For Self Consumption

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While the automobile was largely responsible for the disappearance of the horse, the authorities pinned at least part of the blame on Carl the butcher. While inspecting his shop, several police officers found a batch of hamburgers stacked in his ice box that were made of horsemeat.

Carl was arrested and charged with possessing unadulterated hamburgers, for the purpose of sale, in violation of the law.

"There's no proof that I intended to sell the burgers," Carl objected in court. "The fact is, I made them for myself and my family. We like horseburgers."

"It's a good alibi," responded the district attorney, "but it won't stand up. If Carl and his family had to eat all those horseburgers, they'd stop talking and start neighing. Obviously, they were for sale as charged."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you trot Carl off to jail?

This is how the judge ruled: Carl went free. The judge held that it is not against the law for a person to manufacture meat products from horsemeat if it's for his own use. And, in this case, concluded the judge, there was insufficient proof that Carl had made the patties for sale.

If You Were the Judge

Horseburgers Okay For Self Consumption

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While the automobile was largely responsible for the disappearance of the horse, the authorities pinned at least part of the blame on Carl the butcher. While inspecting his shop, several police officers found a batch of hamburgers stacked in his ice box that were made of horsemeat.

Carl was arrested and charged with possessing unadulterated hamburgers, for the purpose of sale, in violation of the law.

"There's no proof that I intended to sell the burgers," Carl objected in court. "The fact is, I made them for myself and my family. We like horseburgers."

"It's a good alibi," responded the district attorney, "but it won't stand up. If Carl and his family had to eat all those horseburgers, they'd stop talking and start neighing. Obviously, they were for sale as charged."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you trot Carl off to jail?

This is how the judge ruled: Carl went free. The judge held that it is not against the law for a person to manufacture meat products from horsemeat if it's for his own use. And, in this case, concluded the judge, there was insufficient proof that Carl had made the patties for sale.

TODAY'S LEGAL POINTER:

Constantly accusing your husband or wife of infidelity when not founded on reasonable grounds can, in the eyes of the law, amount to cruelty.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Ann Landers

Screaming Mothers Need Care

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from "Ashamed Screaming Mother" had special meaning for me because my own mother was the champion screamer of all times.

A child never forgets when a mother says, "I wish you had died when you were a baby. You have been a terrible disappointment to me." Or-- "You ruined my life. I wish I had never had you." It's unbelievable the soul-searing things that can come out when a nut begins to yell her head off.

My mother's favorite expression after one of her screaming fits was, "I love you so much I would walk into the ocean to save you." Since we lived 1,000 miles from the nearest ocean I could see no chance of her proving her love in this dramatic manner. I once said to her, "If you love me so much why don't you just treat me a little better and stop saying such awful things?"

I'm a grown woman now and my mother has been in a mental institution for many years but I can truthfully say I have little or no compassion for her. I have memories. Please get this vital message across to all screaming mothers everywhere. It could save their youngsters a lot of grief. -- ONE WHO SURVIVED

Dear One: It is difficult to get ANY message across to a mother who would say to her child, "I wish you had died when you were a baby," and then, minutes later, offer to walk into the ocean to prove her love. You might just as well try to bore a hole through a brick wall with a toothpick.

Your mother's wide emotional swings indicate that she was a very sick woman. What I would like to tell all screaming mothers everywhere is this: When you feel yourself slipping out of control, get professional help. Don't wait until you slide over the edge. It may be too late.

Dear Ann Landers: Don't give me heck. Just tell me what to do. I am 19 now and have grown up a lot these past three years.

When I was a junior in high school there was a gad. If a fellow liked a girl he gave her a street sign. I now have in the basement of our home signs which read Yield, Slow, Dangerous Curve, Stop, Go, No Passing Allowed, and Soft Shoulder.

I would like to take these signs back but I don't know where they belong. Also, I don't want to get into trouble. Will you please tell me what to do? -- CHANGED SIGNALS.

Dear Changed: Telephone the police and ask if they will send someone from the Traffic Department to your home to pick up the signs, or if they would prefer that the signs be brought to the nearest station.

Be aware that you are in possession of property which you do not rightfully own. I am hopeful that the police will be lenient since you are volunteering to return the signs.

And, by the way, I hope no lives were lost because some fun-loving kid removed a sign which was placed at a critical spot for a very good reason.

Confidential to Want To Help: You are not a physician and neither am I. It is a fact that some skin eruptions are caused by emotional problems, but I would not attempt to diagnose the case and neither should you. Suggest that your friend see a specialist.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Report From Washington
Stuart Symington

Editor's Note: Senator Symington this week is completing his current trip abroad in connection with his work as a member of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees. The past few days, he has been in Israel, other parts of the Mediterranean area and is returning to Washington the end of this week by way of England. In his absence, this report was prepared by his office.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM EXTENDED -- The House and Senate have agreed on a two-year extension of the food stamp program. Funds are authorized in the amount of $200 million for this fiscal year and $225 million for next year to help needy persons obtain a healthy diet.

The food stamp program permits a family to purchase $16 worth of designated surplus food for $10 worth of stamps, with the Federal government paying the difference.

RENT FUNDS RESTORED BY SENATE -- The Senate has approved the $40 million budget request for the 1968 rent supplement program that has been eliminated earlier by the House. The urban program funds are included in the independent offices appropriations bill. Differences between the two chambers will be worked out in a Senate-House conference.

CANNED HAM IMPORTS -- Forty-five Senators, including Sen. Symington, have urged the Commissioner of Customs to take immediate steps to counteract action by the Common Market which would result in undercutting the U.S. canned ham domestic market.

The Common Market has authorized an export subsidy that would amount to approximately 50 cents on a two-pound can of ham. The Senators have asked the Commissioner to impose a countervailing duty to offset this export subsidy set by the Common Market.

PROGRESS ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN -- Opportunities for women to contribute to progress in the fields of education and fair employment practices continued to expand in 1966, according to the Third Annual Report on the Status of Women.

The efforts and achievements of Missouri groups are pointed out in this report compiled by the Interdepartmental Committee and Citizens' Advisory Council on the Status of Women. They include the successful bid by the Missouri Commission on the Status of Women to secure an amendment to the Fair Employment Practices law to rule out employment discrimination by sex.

Poverty Organization Told To Shape Up or Shut Down

PORTAGEVILLE -- The six-county organization which has administered poverty programs for over two years in Southeast Missouri got the word in no uncertain terms--shape up or shut down.

The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation learned that only two programs will funded in November for the coming year and the budget will shrink from about $2.5 million to $600,000.

Wayne Thomas, regional administrator for Community Action Programs, told DAEOC that the administrative organization in the six county program must be completely revamped before the full $600.000 allocation will be approved.

An estimated $100,000 in poverty funds will be granted DAEOC, nearly 80 per cent of it for administrative costs. The remainder will go for Home Health Aids in Stoddard County and possible the After School Study Center in Kennett.

The remainder of the $600,000 allocation will come only when DAEOC "has put its house in order," Thomas told the group in Portageville.

Thomas said no other programs, including Neighborhood Service Centers, will be refunded immediately and suggested that personnel be notified of this.

In order to get the "mess" straightened out, regional officials of the Office of Economic Opportunity have suggested -- parctically ruled--that a management consultant firm be employed.

At the meeting Monday night were three regional OEO officials, Thomas, Assistant Director Dean Lupkey, and Field Representative John Wandeless. Lupkey, a key man on Regional Director Don Thomason's staff oversaw and did not take part in the meeting.

Thamas gave the presentation based on the findings of a 16-man evaluating team that was in this area in July to observe the DAEOC operations.

"We found some very serious problems," Thomas said quite frankly. He said that instead of operating a six-county program, DAEOC has had 24 separate programs (referring to the Community Action Agencies.) "No one knows who has the authority now the responsibility." A director is hired to do a job but not given the authority to carry out day-to-day operations without approval of the board. Then, when a problem arises or a decision is to be made there is nobody who knows whether it should be decided by the CAA, the county board or the DAEOC board, Thomas pointed out.

The director has no means to hire and discipline the personnel who must carry out the programs, he continued. He has a weak position with no authority.

In addition, Thomas stated, it is a nice system on paper but nobody seems to pay any attention to the paper. There is also a lack of training.

The Neighborhood Service Centers, he went on, are going backwards. Instead of referring people to agencies, agencies are referring them to the Neighborhood Service Centers to provide taxi service. People are hauled to get groceries, to the doctor and many other places and the real job is not being done.

The evaluators did recommend that the six-county organization be maintained rather than splitting them up in any way. Currently the organization covers Pemiscot, Dunklin, New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott and Mississippi counties. He said there would be no advantage in dividing it up.

This virtually killed hope of a new three-county organization being formed in Pemiscot, Dunklin and Stoddard counties. The Bootheel Economic Encouragement Program (BEEP) had hopes to take over administration of poverty programs in the three counties.

Thomas said there is no doubt but that the DAEOC staff must be rebuilt completely. Some persons may lose their jobs, others shift jobs and some stay where they are. But a new personnel system with a personnel officer who can handle these problems is a must. The personnel must be placed on a merit system for hiring and advancement.

The regional CAP director was blunt when he said, "Mr. Wright (executive director) is not the man for a $2.5 million program. A smaller program, maybe, but not that large."

For a program the size of the one in Southeast Missouri a top-notch man is needed, Thomas said. This is something the management consultants can do -- recruit nation-wide to find the right man. Then the board must give him the authority to carry out the program if it is to be successful.

Thomas had the floor for nearly two hours, first outlining the OEO recommendations and then answering questions.

He said there is a long list of management problems, most of which will have to be resolved by the consultants. The main thing, he stated, is that a more effective administration must be set up as the current system is not getting the job done.

The head of CAP programs in an 11-state area went on to say programs in the Delta area have not been up to par. They will have to seek a new direction and more effective means to achieve the goals of the war on poverty.

Current programs, including the Neighborhood Service Centers, are slated to end November 30th. After that only the program in Stoddard County is assured continuation with the study center in Kennett a possibility. The administration of DAEOC will continue to function with federal funds but the main task will be to "get its house in order."

The Head Start program for pre-school children and the Homemaker Aides will be continued but under the sponsorship of the University of Missouri -- not DAEOC.

Thomas said if the reorganization of DAEOC is successful, it is likely that Head Start will be back under its direction by the fall of 1968.

If the re-organization of administrative procedures is carried out, OEO will find additional DAEOC programs as they are capable of handling them with hopes of the entire $600,000 allocation in DAEOC's hands within six months after the next component year has passed.

The DAEOC board voted to make an effort to employ a consulting firm as soon as possible with hope of getting things "shaped up" before the end of November. The main objective is to keep from having to close the Neighborhood Service Centers, considered the key link between the administration and the poor people of the area. There are 24 such centers in the area.

Thomas said the OEO could consider refunding these centers only if DAEOC is well on its way to meeting the recommendations by early November.

Hope for such an accomplishment, in view of the studies the consulting firms myst make, is very slight and one official said it would probably be Frebruary before such progress will be made.

A letter with all of the detailed recommendations by the regional office will be sent out very soon, Thomas said. The report of the evaluation team will not be made public as it is considered "administratively confidential" because it quotes a great deal of hear-say comments made to the evaluators.

Dexter Makes Labor Survey

DEXTER - An effort to make a labor survey of the community is being started this week by the Chamber of Commerce and its industrial committee.

The effort is being made with special emphasis at this time because of "feelers" this week from an industry, seeking a site location, the representatives of which visited Dexter early this week. But the industrial representatives asked immediately for an up to-date labor survey, mainly seeking prospective men employees.

The Chamber of Commerce hopes to secure at least 600 to 800 names and address and other information on prospective employees from this immediate area.

Forms are being prepared and will be distributed through the schools, asking the parents to fill out the forms sent to them by the students. Additional forms will be supplied the students, so, if the parents know of additional persons who might want employment here, they may fill out one of the survey forms for them.

Forms will also be supplied to local industries, which mainly employ women, asking them to fillout one of the survey forms for their husbands, if their husbands would be available for employment.

Local barber shops will also be supplied with the labor survey forms and asked to contact persons, who, though employed elsewhere, often return to Dexter and might be available for employment here.

It is expected also that a small booth will be set up at the forthcoming Stoddard County Fair, where persons may fill out one of the labor survey forms if they desire.

This, it was emphaized, is an all-out community-wide effort and could be of lasting value, not only to Dexter, but to communities throughout the entire county. Results of the survey will not only be available for the industry now considering Dexter as a possible site, but for other industrial development work, as well, it was pointed out.

All persons, whether they are now employed or not, are urged to fill out one of the labor survey forms. And, if persons elsewhere are known about, and it is known that they would be pleased to return to Dexter for employment, then a form can be filled out for them, too, it was pointed out.

Long for Senior Service Corps

WASHINGTON (AP)— Creation of a senior service corps for elderly persons who want to work in community improvement projects was urged by Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo.

In a statement to a Senate subcommittee, Long supported a pending bill to help senior citizens whom he said want to be active but are not given the chance.

Such persons could work in libraries and public schools, help homebound and ill mothers, and work on park and street improvements and clean-up and paint programs, he said.

Under the proposed legislation, Long said, "citizens will be paid for their efforts. They will know they can do the job and they will get the satisfaction of helping others while helping themselves."

Rolla Center Counsels On Fallout Shelters

ROLLA -- People protected by adequately constructed and stocked fallout shelters would have a good chance of surviving the radiation effects of a nuclear blast.

How to include such shelters in all new industrial, educational and office buildings is a job of the University of Missouri at Rolla professional development center and 49 others like it in the United States. This center sends a team of teachers to Missouri towns to advise architects and engineers on shelter construction in public buildings.

The team, sponsored by the office of civil defense of the army, studies architectural building plans and recommends a rearrangement of the design to cost. In most cases, a specifically planned basement as to size, location and wall thickness, will provide an adequate shelter.

The team conducts classes in Missouri towns on fallout shelter analysis.

The UMR center was started last year and has entered wide-scale service this year. The team has aided in the construction plans of fallout shelters in 23 new buildings. Among these are the proposed University City library and the Sisters of the Pallottine Society Convent in Riverview. The team is meeting with the St. Louis city school board and the St. Louis city architects and engineers on the inclusion of fallout shelters in St. Louis buildings.

According to Prof. Robert F. Davidson, director of the UMR program, the nation needs about 200 million more fallour shelters in order to provide protection for every citizen. These shelters must be conveniently placed not only in residencies, but in places of work for the safety of all.

Population Tops 198 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau Monday estimated the U.S. resident population at 198,065,000 as of Aug. 1, up 202,000 from a month earlier and 10.5 per cent above the 179,323,175 persons counted in the 1960 census.

American families today are using almost twice as much hot water as they did 10 years ago.

Employment High in Bootheel

Employment has remained at a high level in Southeast Missouri with an increase of 160 employes in Butler county in three months, the state division of commerce and industrial development reports.

The cotton crop is six percent below last year and 35 per cent below the average year because of unfavorable weather. Soybeans have been planted to replace acreage lost in cotton, and the corn crop is expected to be one of the best in recent years in Southeast Missouri.

Under commercial construction the agency notes a Ramada Inn being built at Cape Girardeau will have the first 100 units completed this year and an additional 148 units completed in 1968. The motel will have convention facilities to seat about 900.

Florsheim Shoe Company will begin construction of a factory at Cape Girardeau which will employ 350-400.

St. Joe Lead Company dedicated its newest facility, the Fletcher mine and mill. The mine has a capacity of 5,000 tons of ore a day.

A new 35-bed hospital at St. Genevieve will be completed in December, employing 70. All equipment will be adequately sized to permit expansion of the hospital to 70-80 beds without change or replacement.

Bankers and savings and loan companies indicated loan applications for new homes were far below normal the first quarter of the year. They expect the remainder of the year to show an increase but not to exceed the boom year of 1965.

Retail sales continue to climb in the area, with Cape Girardeau nowing an increased volume of $1,154,392.66 over 1966.

Lake development in the area has increased. Seventy-five per cent of the tourists come from other parts of the state, and many retired persons come from other states. Increased tourism has been a major factor for increased economy in Southeast Missouri, the agency reported.

The agency said the economy of the Cape Girardeau area should experience a continuing, steady growth because of commercial construction, increased volume of retail sales, small manufacturing and tourism.

The Bootheel portion, however, is experiencing a downward trend because of the loss of cotton. It is expected that soybeans will be the number one crop this year and, along with a good corn crop, will somewhat offset the loss in cotton.

Comparison of local business conditions in Bootheel towns durand April, May and June of 1967 showed:

Charleston--total bank deposits up 17.4 per cent, electric current use up 5.9 per cent, telephones in service up 3.1 per cent, water meters in service unchanged and gas meters in service up .7 per cent.

Dexter--real extate sales down 13 per cent, total bank deposits up 10.8 per cent, postal receipts up 3.7 per cent, electric current use up 10.6 per cent, telephones in service up 7.7 per cent, water meters in service up 1.3 per cent and gas meters in service up 4.5 per cent.

New Madrid--real estate sales down 33.3 per cent, value of property sold down 33.7 per cent, total bank deposits down 8.3 per cent, postal receipts up 10.3 per cent, electric current use up 12.3 per cent, telephones in service up 7.9 per cent, water meters in service unchanged and gas meters in service up 12.9 per cent.

Rolla Center Counsels On Fallout Shelters

ROLLA -- People protected by adequately constructed and stocked fallout shelters would have a good chance of surviving the radiation effects of a nuclear blast.

How to include such shelters in all new industrial, educational and office buildings is a job of the University of Missouri at Rolla professional development center and 49 others like it in the United States. This center sends a team of teachers to Missouri towns to advise architects and engineers on shelter construction in public buildings.

The team, sponsored by the office of civil defense of the army, studies architectural building plans and recommends a rearrangement of the design to cost. In most cases, a specifically planned basement as to size, location and wall thickness, will provide an adequate shelter.

The team conducts classes in Missouri towns on fallout shelter analysis.

The UMR center was started last year and has entered wide-scale service this year. The team has aided in the construction plans of fallout shelters in 23 new buildings. Among these are the proposed University City library and the Sisters of the Pallottine Society Convent in Riverview. The team is meeting with the St. Louis city school board and the St. Louis city architects and engineers on the inclusion of fallout shelters in St. Louis buildings.

According to Prof. Robert F. Davidson, director of the UMR program, the nation needs about 200 million more fallour shelters in order to provide protection for every citizen. These shelters must be conveniently placed not only in residencies, but in places of work for the safety of all.

Population Tops 198 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau Monday estimated the U.S. resident population at 198,065,000 as of Aug. 1, up 202,000 from a month earlier and 10.5 per cent above the 179,323,175 persons counted in the 1960 census.

American families today are using almost twice as much hot water as they did 10 years ago.

Employment High in Bootheel

Employment has remained at a high level in Southeast Missouri with an increase of 160 employes in Butler county in three months, the state division of commerce and industrial development reports.

The cotton crop is six percent below last year and 35 per cent below the average year because of unfavorable weather. Soybeans have been planted to replace acreage lost in cotton, and the corn crop is expected to be one of the best in recent years in Southeast Missouri.

Under commercial construction the agency notes a Ramada Inn being built at Cape Girardeau will have the first 100 units completed this year and an additional 148 units completed in 1968. The motel will have convention facilities to seat about 900.

Florsheim Shoe Company will begin construction of a factory at Cape Girardeau which will employ 350-400.

St. Joe Lead Company dedicated its newest facility, the Fletcher mine and mill. The mine has a capacity of 5,000 tons of ore a day.

A new 35-bed hospital at St. Genevieve will be completed in December, employing 70. All equipment will be adequately sized to permit expansion of the hospital to 70-80 beds without change or replacement.

Bankers and savings and loan companies indicated loan applications for new homes were far below normal the first quarter of the year. They expect the remainder of the year to show an increase but not to exceed the boom year of 1965.

Retail sales continue to climb in the area, with Cape Girardeau nowing an increased volume of $1,154,392.66 over 1966.

Lake development in the area has increased. Seventy-five per cent of the tourists come from other parts of the state, and many retired persons come from other states. Increased tourism has been a major factor for increased economy in Southeast Missouri, the agency reported.

The agency said the economy of the Cape Girardeau area should experience a continuing, steady growth because of commercial construction, increased volume of retail sales, small manufacturing and tourism.

The Bootheel portion, however, is experiencing a downward trend because of the loss of cotton. It is expected that soybeans will be the number one crop this year and, along with a good corn crop, will somewhat offset the loss in cotton.

Comparison of local business conditions in Bootheel towns during April, May and June of 1967 showed:

Charleston--total bank deposits up 17.4 per cent, electric current use up 5.9 per cent, telephones in service up 3.1 per cent, water meters in service unchanged and gas meters in service up .7 per cent.

Dexter--real estate sales down 13 per cent, total bank deposits up 10.8 per cent, postal receipts up 3.7 per cent, electric current use up 10.6 per cent, telephones in service up 7.7 per cent, water meters in service up 1.3 per cent and gas meters in service up 4.5 per cent.

New Madrid--real estate sales down 33.3 per cent, value of property sold down 33.7 per cent, total bank deposits down 8.3 per cent, postal receipts up 10.3 per cent, electric current use up 12.3 per cent, telephones in service up 7.9 per cent, water meters in service unchanged and gas meters in service up 12.9 per cent.

State Park Resort Plan Gets Boost

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An engineering study released shows that Lake of the Ozarks State Park should be considered for immediate development of a major resort-lodge complex capable of handling large conventions.

Joseph Jaeger, state director of parks made the study public today. He said its recommendations will be considered by the State Park Board Oct. 2.

The study was conducted by Economics Research Associates of Los Angeles and Washington at a cost of $22,500.

It recommended a plush layout that would include 254 lodge rooms, extensive convention and conference facilities, a golf course, several restaurants and bars, a marina, health club, baths, three swimming pools, beaches, tennis courts, bowling alley, gift shop and other recreation attractions.

The first site suggested at Lake of the Ozarks State Park would be about six road miles from the Lee C. Fine airport and would be even close by helicopter, Jaeger said.

The plan would be to have the complex built and operated by private enterprise. The syndicate would have to bid successfully for a 25-year lease of the area from the State Park Board with option for an additional 25-year lease.

"The resort is designed to have a rustic and informal atmosphere," the study said, "and to take maximum advantage of the view. The resort's rates and quality are high, but somewhat below the level set by Tan-Tar-A and the Lodge of the Four Seasons"— the two fanciest resort at Lake of the Ozarks now.

It was at Tan-Tar-A that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes arranged for last August's meeting of the Midwest Governor's Conference.

The study suggested the complex would cost $5,586,000 to build over a five-year period, with the convention and conference facilities to be made available in the third year of construction. The initial facilities would be those basic for summer vactioners.

The study also recommended that similar complexes be considered in this order for these other state parks— either existent or planned for future reservoirs:

Pomme de Terre, Table Rock, Lake Wappapello, Meramec, Stockton, Kaysinger and Mark Twain.

Table Rock, in southwestern Missouri, was chosen earlier for construction of such a resort-conventionfacility but the plans fell through because no bidder was able to make adequate financial arrangement. The park board tried for five years to get that plan into operation.

"In view of the Lake of the Ozarks State Park's location, size and natural amenities, its surface and potential air access, and the economic benefits to be gained by the area," the study concluded, "this park was selected as the most logical site for immediate resort development."

Newspaper Ad Urges Johnson Not to Run Again

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Clothing manufacturer Harry Roth, who spent $7,800 on a full-page newspaper advertisement urging President Johnson not to seek renomination, says he believes anyone running on a peace platform could win the 1968 presidential election.

In his "opening letter to the President" in New York Times, Roth said Johnson should decline to run again because the President cannot end the war in Vietnam.

Roth offered $100,000 to help select a successor to Johnson and suggested that Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., head the ticket.

Roth, reached at his Beverly Hills home, said he will "pledge $50,000 this year and $50,000 next year" for the campaign of any peace candidate Johnson would choose.

Asked if he had any personal ideas on how to end the war, Roth said, "This kind of thing is not for a clothing manufacturer. I don't know how it should be done. It should be done honorably."

"The whole problem seems to be one of foreign relations," Roth said. "And let's face it, Fulbright is the head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

Roth said he thought Johnson was "wonderful on domestic matters. But a new face or a new name, I think, will have a better chance of bringing peace."

Asked if he felt anything would be gained by the advertisement, Roth said: "To me personally, definitely. I feel that I've had a chance to do something. I'm usually a follower, not a leader. And I believe there are millions who feel as I do— that the war has got to end."

Roth is president of Louis Roth & Co. of Los Angeles and B. Kuppenheimer & Co. of Chicago.

Condition of Engineer Is Satisfactory

CHAFFEE--Louis Gilmore, 51, Frisco railroad engineer, is reported to be in a satisfactory condition at the railroad hospital in St. Louis from a gunshot wound in the neck.

He was struck by a bullet from a gun fired at a freight train in St. Louis county at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

The bullet entered his neck on the right side about two inches above the collarbone and came out beneath the left shoulder blade. Had the bullet's path been one fourth of an inch away on either side the wound would have been fatal.

St. Louis police took three youths into custody who said they had been shooting at boxcars. One had in his possession a rifle with a telescopic sight.

State Park Resort Plan Gets Boost

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- An engineering study released shows that Lake of the Ozarks State Park should be considered for immediate development of a major resort-lodge complex capable of handling large conventions.

Joseph Jaeger, state director of parks made the study public today. He said its recommendations will be considered by the State Park Board Oct. 2.

The study was conducted by Economics Research Associates of Los Angeles and Washington at a cost of $22,500.

It recommended a plush layout that would include 254 lodge rooms, extensive convention and conference facilities, a golf course, several restaurants and bars, a marina, health club, baths, three swimming pools, beaches, tennis courts, bowling alley, gift shop and other recreation attractions.

The first site suggested at Lake of the Ozarks State Park would be about six road miles from the Lee C. Fine airport and would be even close by helicopter, Jaeger said.

The plan would be to have the complex built and operated by private enterprise. The syndicate would have to bid successfully for a 25-year lease of the area from the State Park Board with option for an additional 25-year lease.

"The resort is designed to have a rustic and informal atmosphere," the study said, "and to take maximum advantage of the view. The resort's rates and quality are high, but somewhat below the level set by Tan-Tar-A and the Lodge of the Four Seasons"-- the two fanciest resort at Lake of the Ozarks now.

It was at Tan-Tar-A that Gov. Warren E. Hearnes arranged for last August's meeting of the Midwest Governor's Conference.

The study suggested the complex would cost $5,586,000 to build over a five-year period, with the convention and conference facilities to be made available in the third year of construction. The initial facilities would be those basic for summer vactioners.

The study also recommended that similar complexes be considered in this order for these other state parks-- either existent or planned for future reservoirs:

Pomme de Terre, Table Rock, Lake Wappapello, Meramec, Stockton, Kaysinger and Mark Twain.

Table Rock, in southwestern Missouri, was chosen earlier for construction of such a resort-convention facility but the plans fell through because no bidder was able to make adequate financial arrangement. The park board tried for five years to get that plan into operation.

"In view of the Lake of the Ozarks State Park's location, size and natural amenities, its surface and potential air access, and the economic benefits to be gained by the area," the study concluded, "this park was selected as the most logical site for immediate resort development."

Newspaper Ad Urges Johnson Not to Run Again

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) -- Clothing manufacturer Harry Roth, who spent $7,800 on a full-page newspaper advertisement urging President Johnson not to seek renomination, says he believes anyone running on a peace platform could win the 1968 presidential election.

In his "opening letter to the President" in New York Times, Roth said Johnson should decline to run again because the President cannot end the war in Vietnam.

Roth offered $100,000 to help select a successor to Johnson and suggested that Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., head the ticket.

Roth, reached at his Beverly Hills home, said he will "pledge $50,000 this year and $50,000 next year" for the campaign of any peace candidate Johnson would choose.

Asked if he had any personal ideas on how to end the war, Roth said, "This kind of thing is not for a clothing manufacturer. I don't know how it should be done. It should be done honorably."

"The whole problem seems to be one of foreign relations," Roth said. "And let's face it, Fulbright is the head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

Roth said he thought Johnson was "wonderful on domestic matters. But a new face or a new name, I think, will have a better chance of bringing peace."

Asked if he felt anything would be gained by the advertisement, Roth said: "To me personally, definitely. I feel that I've had a chance to do something. I'm usually a follower, not a leader. And I believe there are millions who feel as I do--that the war has got to end."

Roth is president of Louis Roth & Co. of Los Angeles and B. Kuppenheimer & Co. of Chicago.
